A Flying Wise Man.
A Good Man Dead.
There's No Free Thinker.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

STANDARD OIL OF INDIANA believes in flying machines, has a big one, all metel, with three engines built by Ford, and big oil men, not little ones, use it. A recent Standard oil "Load" flying into Chicago from Detroit included Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors; Allen Jackson, one of the vice presidents; E. J. Bullock, another vice president; R. E. Humphries, a director, and Norman R. Grimshaw, assistant general manager. Evidently Standard Oil believes it has a safe plane.

LINDBERGH'S description of his flight suggests a mountain climber's experience: "I struck clouds and decided to try to get over them. After a while I succeeded at a height of 10,000 feet . . . I went under some clouds and over others. There was sleet in all of these clouds and the sleet began to cling to the plane."

He climbed over, and climbed under, with wonderful judgment, perfect success.

THE record shows that Lindbergh's Wright motor used less than twelve gallons of gasoline per hour of flying and did better than 100 miles to the hours. At twent cents a gallon that means about $81 worth of gasoline, plus twenty gallons of oil. Not expensive for a trip to Paris.

Anybody who doubts that [illegible] will carry passengers across the ocean for less than $50, "all daylight route," has little confidence in human ingenuity.

THIS nation, and the rest of the world, have cause to regret the death of H. E. Huntington. This son of California was a good American. He spent his fortune intelligently for the finest books and works of art. And he gave his collections and the magnificent estate which contains them to the people of California.

No sane man grudges or envies a gigantic fortune to such a man as Huntington, who knew how to use money. The country honors him.

THE "Free Thinkers' society" of New York plants a tree in Central park in memory of Luther Burbank, praises him as a "free thinker" and denounces "theological hyenas" for villifying him.

Burbank had a right to believe what he chose and clergymen are not necessarily "thological hyenas" because they exercise their right to say what they think of what Burbank thought

As a matter of fact, there is no free thinker. Our thoughts grow out of other men's thoughts as forests grow out of dead trees, long since fallen to the ground.

Council Rejects Plan To Sell Taylor Lot; Report $50,000 Offer

44 Gallons of Gas Left When "Lindy" Arrived in Paris

LE BOURGET AERODROME, FRANCE, May 25.—Captain Charles Lindbergh had 44 gallons of gasoline left when he arrived in Paris last Saturday night at the end of his historic flight from New York, it was revealed today when the seals were removed from the fuel tanks of "The Spirit of St. Louis," and the contents checked.

The fuel that was not consumed would have permitted Lindbergh to have flown on for another 395 miles, it is estimated.

FIFTH STREET SITE BID ASKED

Benedum Uncertain Whether He Shall Veto or Approve Proposed Reduction in Pay.

Legislation reducing the mayor's salary from $1,800 to $1,200 a year, effective January 1, 1928, lacked only the signature of Mayor Ralph C. Benedum today to make it a law, as the result of council's action at a special meeting last evening in enacting the economy measure on third and final reading.

Oppose Taylor Lot Deal.

The mayor has 10 days in which to sign, veto or permit the ordinance to become a law without his signature. He was undecided today what action he shall take, declaring that he had not "made up" his mind.

Councilmen Hughes and Kommel, who failed in an attempt to have the salary cut to $600 about six weeks ago, voted against the legislation, but the other members—Goodballet, Kelly, Poole, Hayes and Farrall—supported it. Because of the Hughes-Kommel opposition, the ordinance required three separate readings.

Ordinance directing the service-safety director to sell the West Sixth street lot, commonly known as the Taylor property, purchased by the city in 1915 as the site for a proposed city hall, was rejected by a vote of 6 to 1, Councilman Hughes dissenting.

The solons voted down another proposed ordinance which would authorize the director to arrange for a new lease on the property, which is now occupied as a parking lot and gasoline station.

Promoter Sought Site.

The ordinance authorizing the sale of the property at a figure not less than $50,000 was prepared, it is claimed, after a local promoter, said to represent outside capital, made an offer to purchase the lot for a public auditorium and recreation center.

Councilman Hayes asserted that the sale of the lot would be removing the city's last hope for a municipal hall ,a $225,000 bond issue for which was defeated last November. He declared that the city should have a certified check as evidence of good faith in the proposed offer. Kelly said that the city should require a cash deposit to bind the deal before legislation was enacted.

LISBON, May 25.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo has not put into Fayal but has continued on the schooner Infantaesagres, with his seaplane in tow, to Horta, according to a dispatch received here today from Horta.

The dispatch stated that the schooner towing De Pinedo's plane, touched Fayal, but proceeded to Horta, after De Pinedo had shouted to those on shore that he needed no assistance.

The Portuguese gunboat Beira is proceeding to Horta with gasoline and will offer aid to De Pinedo.

Airman and Comrades Well.

LONDON, May 25.—The Italian steamship Duilio intercepted a message from St. Michael of Azores, announcing the safe arrival of Commander Francesco De Pinedo at Fayal, according to a message to Lloyd's shipping agency today. The message stated that De Pinedo's machine had been safely towed into port.

ROME, May 25.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo today shared honors in Italy with Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh. News that De Pinedo was safe in the Azores was greeted throughout the entire kingdom with the wildest rejoicing.

Press dispatches that De Pinedo's plane, Santa Maria II., had been towed into Fayal harbor after a forced landing, were followed by an official announcement from the ministry of aviation that De Pinedo and his comrades were safe and well. The delay in getting the airman and his aids into Fayal was due to the fact that they were picked up by a sailing vessel.

TEACHES TO PAY COLLEGE FEES

Most college students would find completing a four year college course in three years strenuous work but Miss Norma Hirschstein, senior at Notre Dame college, Cleveland, in addition to accomplishing that task, has paid her expenses by doing playground work and teaching folk dancing and dramatics at settlement houses during spare hours. She hopes to have a stage career and later a grand opera career.

Express Company Extends Delivery

As a result of a request of the Chamber of Commerce, the American Railway Express company, on June 1, will extend its delivery limits so as to take in approximately three miles of new streets in the Northside district, it was announced today.

The new territory, beginning at 931 Vine street, extends east on Ambrose avenue to Riley avenue, Bradshaw avenue to Avondale street, north on Avondale street to Minerva street, northeast on Minerva street to Chester avenue, north on Chester avenue to Bank stret, west on Bank street to Avondale street, north of Avondale street to North street.

The Chamber of Commerce, which was largely instrumental in having the express company replace its horse-drawn vehicles with motorized equipment more than a year ago, launched a move several months ago for an extension of delivery service. To this end a conference between Anthony Kohler, R. L. Cawood, G. R. Thomas, E. H. Riggs and D. F. Nellis, representing the chamber, and J. L. Ross, Canton, and R. L. Olds, Toledo, district superintendents, and C. W. Heffernan, local agent, representing the express company, was held in the chamber headquarters on May 18.

Express company officials indicated that another extension of their delivery limits may be made later.

"HIP, HOORAYS" GREET "FLYING FOOL" IN HALL OF LEGISLATURE

Herrick Introduces American as "Real Ambassador."

"SLIM" CONFUSED

France Goes Wild Over Solo Flight Hero.

PARIS, May 25.—The French chamber of deputies this afternoon resounded with strange sounds, as the dignified president of the chamber led members in giving a series of rousing "hip, hip, hoorays," instead of the usual "vives." The celebration was in honor of Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, who stands out today as the world's most famous aviator, because of his New York to Paris flight.

Legislators Acclaim Him.

Lindbergh stood in confusion while the dignified French deputies became decidedly undignified in their acclaim, and he was openly puzzled when Ambassador Herrick introduced him as [illegible] from the United States.

The members of the 500 chamber were present and paid the closest attention as Lindbergh spoke in a cool and clear boyish voice, apparently having steeled his courage for this event, for when he entered the gilded corridors of the chamber he had been nervous and had continually clung to Ambassador Herrick and Counselor Whitehouse.

"You have constructed a most magnificent world bridge, which has united two great world capitals, said General Girod, speaking directly to Lindbergh. "You have united not only two continents but two hearts which beat in unison for universal peace."

Herrick Sobs Openly.

Lindbergh shifted uneasily and his face was aflush as this speech was made, and Ambassador Herrick was overcome with emotion and sobbed openly.

"I am overcome by the emotion stirred in me by the expressions and sentiments I feel around me, resulting from what this boy — worthily and so truthfully representing the spirit of American youth—has done for Franco-American friendship," said Ambassador Herrick.

"Your expressions prove that the American sentiment as brought here and expressed by this boy is reciprocated. I can't help remembering that when we needed you, you came to us."

Triumphal Reception.

As a result of a request of the Chamber of Commerce, the American Railway Express company, on June 1, will extend its delivery limits so as to take in approximately three miles of new streets in the Northside district, it was announced today.

The new territory, beginning at 931 Vine street, extends east on Ambrose avenue to Riley avenue, Bradshaw avenue to Avondale street, north on Avondale street to Minerva street, northeast on Minerva street to Chester avenue, north on Chester avenue to Bank stret, west on Bank street to Avondale street, north of Avondale street to North street.

The Chamber of Commerce, which was largely instrumental in having the express company replace its horse-drawn vehicles with motorized equipment more than a year ago, launched a move several months ago for an extension of delivery service. To this end a conference between Anthony Kohler, R. L. Cawood, G. R. Thomas, E. H. Riggs and D. F. Nellis, representing the chamber, and J. L. Ross, Canton, and R. L. Olds, Toledo, district superintendents, and C. W. Heffernan, local agent, representing the express company, was held in the chamber headquarters on May 18.

Express company officials indicated that another extension of their delivery limits may be made later.

France Goes Wild Over Solo Flight Hero.

PARIS, May 25.—The French chamber of deputies this afternoon resounded with strange sounds, as the dignified president of the chamber led members in giving a series of rousing "hip, hip, hoorays," instead of the usual "vives." The celebration was in honor of Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, who stands out today as the world's most famous aviator, because of his New York to Paris flight.

Legislators Acclaim Him.

Lindbergh stood in confusion while the dignified French deputies became decidedly undignified in their acclaim, and he was openly aghast when Ambassador Herrick introduced him as "a real ambassador from the United States—this boy."

The majority of the 500 deputies were present and paid the closest attention as Lindbergh spoke in a cool and clear boyish voice, apparently having steeled his courage for this event, for when he entered the gilded corridors of the chamber he had been nervous and had continually clung to Ambassador Herrick and Counselor Whitehouse.

General Girod addressed Lindbergh on behalf of the chamber.

"You have constructed a most magnificent world bridge, which has united two great world capitals, said General Girod, speaking directly to Lindbergh. "You have united not only two continents but two hearts which beat in unison for universal peace."

Herrick Sobs Openly.

Lindbergh shifted uneasily and his face was aflush as this speech was made, and Ambassador Herrick was overcome with emotion and sobbed openly.

"I am overcome by the emotion stirred in me by the expressions and sentiments I feel around me, resulting from what this boy — worthily and so truthfully representing the spirit of American youth—has done for Franco-American friendship," said Ambassador Herrick.

"Your expressions prove that the American sentiment as brought here and expressed by this boy is reciprocated. I can't help remembering that when we needed you, you came to us."

Triumphal Reception.

PARIS DEPUTIES CHEER LINDY

SOLONS SLASH MAYOR'S SALARY TO $1,200

Today

S. O. In the Air.
A Flying Wise Man.
A Good Man Dead.
There's No Free Thinker.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

STANDARD OIL OF INDIANA believes in flying machines, has a big one, all metel, with three engines built by Ford, and big oil men, not little ones, use it. A recent Standard oil "Load" flying into Chicago from Detroit included Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors; Allen Jackson, one of the vice presidents; E. J. Bullock, another vice president; R. E. Humphries, a director, and Norman R. Grimshaw, assistant general manager. Evidently Standard Oil believes it has a safe plane.

LINDBERGH'S description of his flight suggests a mountain climber's experience: "I struck clouds and decided to try to get over them. After a while I succeeded at a height of 10,000 feet . . . I went under some clouds and over others. There was sleet in all of these clouds and the sleet began to cling to the plane."

He climbed over, and climbed under, with wonderful judgment, perfect success.

THE record shows that Lindbergh's Wright motor used less than twelve gallons of gasoline per hour of flying and did better than 100 miles to the hours. At twent cents a gallon that means about $81 worth of gasoline, plus twenty gallons of oil. Not expensive for a trip to Paris.

Anybody who doubts that airplanes will carry passengers across the ocean for less than $50, "all daylight route," has little confidence in human ingenuity.

THIS nation, and the rest of the world, have cause to regret the death of H. E. Huntington. This son of California was a good American. He spent his fortune intelligently for the finest books and works of art. And he gave his collections and the magnificent estate which contains them to the people of California.

No sane man grudges or envies a gigantic fortune to such a man as Huntington, who knew how to use money. The country honors him.

THE "Free Thinkers' society" of New York plants a tree in Central park in memory of Luther Burbank, praises him as a "free thinker" and denounces "theological hyenas" for villifying him.

Burbank had a right to believe what he chose and clergymen are not necessarily "thological hyenas" because they exercise their right to say what they think of what Burbank thought

As a matter of fact, there is no free thinker. Our thoughts grow out of other men's thoughts as forests grow out of dead trees, long since fallen to the ground.

44 Gallons of Gas Left When "Lindy" Arrived in Paris

LE BOURGET AERODROME, FRANCE, May 25.—Captain Charles Lindbergh had 44 gallons of gasoline left when he arrived in Paris last Saturday night at the end of his historic flight from New York, it was revealed today when the seals were removed from the fuel tanks of "The Spirit of St. Louis," and the contents checked.

The fuel that was not consumed would have permitted Lindbergh to have flown on for another 395 miles, it is estimated.

SCHOOL FIELD MEET IS TAKEN TO MT. UNION

SUDDEN DECISION

Competition Gets Under Way at 2 p. m. Today.

Twenty-fourth annual Columbiana County track and field meet, originally scheduled for Saturday, May 14, and postponed three times as a result of rain, will be held this afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock, at Mt. Union college athletic field, Alliance.

Decision to take the meet from the county fairgrounds, which were covered with mud this morning, to the Alliance stadium, was made by officials of the Columbiana County Track and Field association at a hurriedly called conference at 10 o'clock this morning in the office of County Superintendent of Schools H. C. Leonard, Lisbon.

The session was attended by E. P. Stonebraker, of Leetonia, president of the association; Superintendent Weaver, of Columbiana; I. C. Bean, of Lisbon, member of the committee; and Superintendent H. C. Leonard.

Preliminaries in eight of the 13 events on the program were completed Saturday morning, May 14, before the downpour of rain which forced the first postponement. Unable to go on with the meet on the following Tuesday, officials postponed it until Thursday and then until today.

The staff of officials will remain the same.

FIFTH STREET SITE BID ASKED

Benedum Uncertain Whether He Shall Veto or Approve Proposed Reduction in Pay.

Legislation reducing the mayor's salary from $1,800 to $1,200 a year, effective January 1, 1928, lacked only the signature of Mayor Ralph C. Benedum today to make it a law, as the result of council's action at a special meeting last evening in enacting the economy measure on third and final reading.

Oppose Taylor Lot Deal.

The mayor has 10 days in which to sign, veto or permit the ordinance to become a law without his signature. He was undecided today what action he shall take, declaring that he had not "made up" his mind.

Councilmen Hughes and Kommel, who failed in an attempt to have the salary cut to $600 about six weeks ago, voted against the legislation, but the other members—Goodballet, Kelly, Poole, Hayes and Farrall—supported it. Because of the Hughes-Kommel opposition, the ordinance required three separate readings.

Ordinance directing the service-safety director to sell the West Sixth street lot, commonly known as the Taylor property, purchased by the city in 1915 as the site for a proposed city hall, was rejected by a vote of 6 to 1, Councilman Hughes dissenting.

The solons voted down another proposed ordinance which would authorize the director to arrange for a new lease on the property, which is now occupied as a parking lot and gasoline station.

Promoter Sought Site.

The ordinance authorizing the sale of the property at a figure not less than $50,000 was prepared, it is claimed, after a local promoter, said to represent outside capital, made an offer to purchase the lot for a public auditorium and recreation center.

Councilman Hayes asserted that the sale of the lot would be removing the city's last hope for a municipal hall ,a $225,000 bond issue for which was defeated last November. He declared that the city should have a certified check as evidence of good faith in the proposed offer. Kelly said that the city should require a cash deposit to bind the deal before legislation was enacted.

LISBON, May 25.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo has not put into Fayal but has continued on the schooner Infantaesagres, with his seaplane in tow, to Horta, according to a dispatch received here today from Horta.

The dispatch stated that the schooner towing De Pinedo's plane, touched Fayal, but proceeded to Horta, after De Pinedo had shouted to those on shore that he needed no assistance.

The Portuguese gunboat Beira is proceeding to Horta with gasoline and will offer aid to De Pinedo.

LONDON, May 25.—The Italian steamship Duilio intercepted a message from St. Michael of Azores, announcing the safe arrival of Commander Francesco De Pinedo at Fayal, according to a message to Lloyd Marine agency today. The message stated that De Pinedo's machine had been safely towed into port.

ROME, May 25.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo today shared honors in Italy with Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh. News that De Pinedo was safe in the Azores was greeted throughout the entire kingdom with the wildest rejoicing.

Press dispatches that De Pinedo's plane, Santa Maria II., had been towed into Fayal harbor after a forced landing, were followed by an official announcement from the ministry of aviation that De Pinedo and his comrades were safe and well. The delay in getting the airman and his aids into Fayal was due to the fact that they were picked up by a sailing vessel.

SOVIET STAFF READY TO QUIT LONDON HOUSE ON BREAK EVE

Embassy and Trade Headquarters Scenes of Activity.

PACK BELONGINGS

Commons Will Vote to Sever Diplomatic Relations.

LONDON, May 25.—The Soviet embassy and Russian trade headquarters in Soviet house, which the government describes as a hotbed of communist propaganda directed against both England and America, were the scene of feverish activity today with officials winding up their affairs and preparing for immediate departure for Moscow.

The Soviet officials were prepared to depart as soon as the house of commons gave official confirmation to the cabinet's decision to break off with Moscow, severing both diplomatic and commercial relations.

From present indications the government is assured of a sweeping victory in the commons tomorrow when the breach with Russia comes to a vote.

Laborites to Ask Inquiry.

The parliamentary labor party conferred today and decided not to move a vote of censure of the government in the house of commons tomorrow. The laborites, however, will ask for an inquiry by a house of commons committee before a vote is taken on the proposed rupture with Russia.

According to present plans the foreign office will send a note to Russia giving formal notification as soon as the commons confirms the break off in relations.

This note, it is understood, will notify the Soviet commissary for foreign affairs that all trade agreements between England and the Soviet union are terminated and that diplomatic relations are ended between the two powers. The Soviets will be instructed that the diplomatic mission now in London is persona non grata which is equivalent to inviting the Moscow government to recall the members at once.

STATE ORDER HITS MINERVA AUTO BUS LINE

Utilities Commission Rules Company is "Extinct."

BANS OPERATION

Action Based Upon Complaint From East Liverpool.

COLUMBUS, May 25.—An order declaring that the Minerva-Canton transit company, operating a motor bus line between Canton and Minerva, "passed out of existence" on Feb. 16, 1926, as an Ohio corporation and that its authority to operate over the Canton-Minerva route "became extinct" at the same time was issued by the state utilities commission yesterday afternoon.

The commission announced that, if the company continues to operate, "it will be the duty of this commission to take legal steps to join such operation."

The commission's action was based upon a complain by the Canton-East Liverpool Coach company alleging that the Minerva Canton concern was illegally operating after the secretary of state of Ohio had cancelled the latter company's state charter because of its failure to pay the state excise tax.

The commission pointed out that, apparently, the Minerva-Canton company neglected to apply for reinstatement as a chartered organization within the two-year time limit, fixed by law, which expired Feb. 15, 1926.

Claiming it could not revoke something which does not exist, the commission denied the request of the Canton-East Liverpool company that the Minerva-Canton concern's license to operate a motor bus route be revoked.

JUDGE PAROLES MIDLAND MAN

Judge Frank E. Reader yesterday handed down an order paroling Robert Parris, colored, of Midland, barber and pool room proprietor, who was serving a four months' jail sentence for keeping a gambling house. The order for parole was made on condition that Parris pay the costs, and $200 of the fine and the remaining $300 in monthly installments of $25 each and also that he be of good behavior in the future.

Parris was sentenced on June 7, 1926, but it was several months later before he began serving the sentence imposed, as the case was carried to both the superior and supreme courts. Thomas Smith, colored, also of Midland, was sentenced at the same time and for the same offense and is now serving his sentence in the Allegheny county workhouse.

I'm Most Grateful Every Month

Here's glorious news for long-suffering womankind! To every woman who periodically has suffered pain, Menstruation need no longer be painful. And it is Science that is speaking!

Specialists have developed a tiny tablet called midol. It's a simple thing, utterly harmless to a girl of fourteen, but is brings relief in five to seven minutes. And is effective twelve hours or longer!

Midol is NOT a narcotic. It has no effect whatever on heart or nervous system. It acts directly on those organs affected by menstruation. They function normally, as they should, but the pain is banished. Complete relief—yes, perfect comfort—follows midol.

Your druggist has midol for 50 cents, in a slim aluminum box to tuck in your purse.

SOVIET STAFF READY TO QUIT LONDON HOUSE ON BREAK EVE

Embassy and Trade Headquarters Scenes of Activity.

PACK BELONGINGS

Commons Will Vote to Sever Diplomatic Relations.

LONDON, May 25.—The Soviet embassy and Russian trade headquarters in Soviet house, which the government describes as a hotbed of communist propaganda directed against both England and America, were the scene of feverish activity today with officials winding up their affairs and preparing for immediate departure for Moscow.

The Soviet officials were prepared to depart as soon as the house of commons gave official confirmation to the cabinet's decision to break off with Moscow, severing both diplomatic and commercial relations.

From present indications the government is assured of a sweeping victory in the commons tomorrow when the breach with Russia comes to a vote.

Laborites to Ask Inquiry.

The parliamentary labor party conferred today and decided not to move a vote of censure of the government in the house of commons tomorrow. The laborites, however, will ask for an inquiry by a house of commons committee before a vote is taken on the proposed rupture with Russia.

According to present plans the foreign office will send a note to Russia giving formal notification as soon as the commons confirms the break off in relations.

This note, it is understood, will notify the Soviet commissary for foreign affairs that all trade agreements between England and the Soviet union are terminated and that diplomatic relations are ended between the two powers. The Soviets will be instructed that the diplomatic mission now in London is persona non grata which is equivalent to inviting the Moscow government to recall the members at once.

STATE ORDER HITS MINERVA AUTO BUS LINE

BANS OPERATION

Action Based Upon Complaint From East Liverpool.

COLUMBUS, May 25.—An order declaring that the Minerva-Canton transit company, operating a motor bus line between Canton and Minerva, "passed out of existence" on Feb. 16, 1926, as an Ohio corporation and that its authority to operate over the Canton-Minerva route "became extinct" at the same time was issued by the state utilities commission yesterday afternoon.

The commission announced that, if the company continues to operate, "it will be the duty of this commission to take legal steps to join such operation."

The commission's action was based upon a complain by the Canton-East Liverpool Coach company alleging that the Minerva-Canton concern was illegally operating after the secretary of state of Ohio had cancelled the latter company's state charter because of its failure to pay the state excise tax.

The commission pointed out that, apparently, the Minerva-Canton company neglected to apply for reinstatement as a chartered organization within the two-year time limit, fixed by law, which expired Feb. 15, 1926.

Claiming it could not revoke something which does not exist, the commission denied the request of the Canton-East Liverpool company that the Minerva-Canton concern's license to operate a motor bus route be revoked.

JUDGE PAROLES MIDLAND MAN

Judge Frank E. Reader yesterday handed down an order paroling Robert Parris, colored, of Midland, barber and pool room proprietor, who was serving a four months' jail sentence for keeping a gambling house. The order for parole was made on condition that Parris pay the costs, and $200 of the fine and the remaining $300 in monthly installments of $25 each and also that he be of good behavior in the future.

Parris was sentenced on June 7, 1926, but it was several months later before he began serving the sentence imposed, as the case was carried to both the superior and supreme courts. Thomas Smith, colored, also of Midland, was sentenced at the same time and for the same offense and is now serving his sentence in the Allegheny county workhouse.

A special business session will be held.

MAN ARRESTED IN KNIFE SCRAPE

Jerry Dika, Empire man, arrested Sunday night after a cutting scrape with Nick Bon, yesterday was bound over to the Jefferson county grand jury and taken to the county jail at Steubenville.

Dika asserts he slashed Bon when he saw the latter trying to kiss Mrs. Dika.

BLAST VICTIM IN HOSPITAL

No change was reported today in the condition of Alphonse Bonne, 36 years old, of Buckeye avenue, who is a patient in the East Liverpool City hospital as a result of burns sustained following an explosion in a gas range Saturday night at his home in Buckeye avenue.

Practically the entire upper portion of Bonne's body was badly seared.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS PARTY

Mrs. Charles Jordan will be hostess to members of Sunday school class No. 13 of the First Methodist Protestant church on Thursday evening at her home in Center street. The session will be the monthly business meeting.

Wolves Devour Child.

Wolves made ravenous during the past hard winter in Spain have done great damage. Packs of from 30 to 40 have invaded villages in the mountainous districts of the north and center of the Peninsula, and caused considerable loss among the cattle. At Asturias, a twelve-year-old child who was returning home alone was attacked and devoured by a pack of wolves.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 25.—New forward movements were inaugurated in the high-priced market favorites at the beginning of trading today in spite of a heavy load of realizing sales in other sections of the market. The approach of a triple holiday over the week-end induced caution in all but the professional ranks, and market activity was confined to a comparatively small number of shares.

Baldwin and General Motors were the standard bearers of the bullish party, Baldwin soaring to above 220, while General Motors sold up 2 points to 195½ in a heavy turnover, which suggested the renewal of powerful pool activities. The sugar stocks and the Nickel Plate rails displayed conspicuous strength as prices of all stocks in these groups promptly resumed their advance. Great Western Sugar topped all previous price records, and American Sugar Refining sold near the highest price since the crash in this stock in 1921.

The sixth consecutive million-car-week in freight loadings was reported by the American railway association for the week of May 14, an evidence of the higher rate of commodity exchange in domestic trade. Oil men were hopeful of the result of today's conference on restriction of crude oil production. Call money was unchanged at 2½ per cent.

The market developed a reactionary tone in the second hour as stocks were pressed for sale on profit taking. All of the high-prices speculative leaders fell back a point or two from the best levels of the first period, in a movement which also indicated the dominance of the professionals. Bush terminal's new 6-point jump to 49¾ featured the specialties.

Wolves made ravenous during the past hard winter in Spain have done great damage. Packs of from 30 to 40 have invaded villages in the mountainous districts of the north and center of the Peninsula, and caused considerable loss among the cattle. At Asturias, a twelve-year-old child who was returning home alone was attacked and devoured by a pack of wolves.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 25.—New forward movements were inaugurated in the high-priced market favorites at the beginning of trading today in spite of a heavy load of realizing sales in other sections of the market. The approach of a triple holiday over the week-end induced caution in all but the professional ranks, and market activity was confined to a comparatively small number of shares.

Baldwin and General Motors were the standard bearers of the bullish party, Baldwin soaring to above 220, while General Motors sold up 2 points to 195½ in a heavy turnover, which suggested the renewal of powerful pool activities. The sugar stocks and the Nickel Plate rails displayed conspicuous strength as prices of all stocks in these groups promptly resumed their advance. Great Western Sugar topped all previous price records, and American Sugar Refining sold near the highest price since the crash in this stock in 1921.

The sixth consecutive million-car-week in freight loadings was reported by the American railway association for the week of May 14, an evidence of the higher rate of commodity exchange in domestic trade. Oil men were hopeful of the result of today's conference on restriction of crude oil production. Call money was unchanged at 2½ per cent.

The market developed a reactionary tone in the second hour as stocks were pressed for sale on profit taking. All of the high-prices speculative leaders fell back a point or two from the best levels of the first period, in a movement which also indicated the dominance of the professionals. Bush terminal's new 6-point jump to 49¾ featured the specialties.

LONDON REPORT SHOWS SAVINGS BY INDUSTRIES

British Exchequer Provides Millions for Research.

LONDON.—Large savings in numerous industries are announced in the report of "co-operative industrial research" by associations of manufacturers.

The British government started this movement in 1918 by giving 1,000,000 pounds for research and investigation. In the preface to the report, Lord Balfur, president of the department, says though the policy has had its successes and its failures, yet the successes have greatly predominated.

The Launderers' Research association, to take one instance, turned its attention to the use of softened water. As a result, 50 launderies immediately installed water softening plants. The average saving to the firms i sreckoned at $20,000 yearly and it is estimated that British customers are saved $500,000 yearly, while the life of linen is increased by quite 25 per cent.

In Boots and Shoes.

The Boot and Shoe Trades Research association went into the problem of why patent leather cracks. As a result of the investigations it has been reported that the percentage of cracked shoes has diminished from 25 per cent to practically nil. One feature of this inquiry showed the importance of the minute measurement of feet when fitting shoes.

One of the investigations carried out by the British Electrical and Allied Industries association had reference to the temperature an electric cable can stand.

Other Big Savings.

It was found that British Standard Cables could be safely loaded up to 11,000 volts, under most conditions of laying and working. Engineers were thus enabled to utilize existing cables to greater advantages and to effect large economies in future extensions.

As a result the association estimates that the supply industry would, at once, get an improved supply to existing cables which might be assessed at $20,000,000 and that a saving would be effected of $1,500,000 in the purchase of cables.

Altogether the investigations carried out by the Electrical Research association have an estimated value of $5,500,000 yearly.

Visions Future

America soon will accomplish as amazing feats in music and the arts as in industry and architecture is the belief of Nikolai Sokoloff, conductor of the Cleveland Symphony and guest conductor in London and other world centers. "Americans no longer are satisfied to accumulate wealth for the sheer pleasure of possessing it," he says.

London Police Wage Succesful Campaign On Street Beggars

LONDON. — There are not more than a thousand habitual beggars in the streets of London, according to an estimate made by the London Mendicity Society. This figure compares favorably with 10,000 who beggeds in the streets a hundred years ago.

The society's estimate is based on the number of police court charges, the assumption being that owing to the greater strictness and vigilance of the police most habitual beggars make their appearance in court at least once in twelve months.

There is no decline, however, in the number of begging-letter writers, according to the society.

With skirts the way they are, the old one about "learning" at his mother's knee is strictly up-to-date.—Fostoria Times.

MARION DAVIES AT AMERICAN

Star is Dutch Flapper in "Red Mill."

Can a flapper flap fluently in wooden shoes?

You can't do the Charleston in them, girls—and you have to take them off when you go into church, just as the Japanese flappers take off their shoes when they enter a house—but it's a gay life down by the Zuyder Zee, anyhow.

Marion proves that. She's a flapper from Holland, in lace petticoats, pigtails and lumber slippers that look like gunboats—in "The Red Mill," playing at the American theatre. She has a lot of fun, even if she does have to polish dishpans, attend to her uncle's gout and fill his pipe—and do many other things a modern American girl wouldn't and couldn't do. It's all a matter of geography, though—for the girl on Broadway and the girl in Holland are sisters under the skin, as Mr. Kipling suggested.

Marion is charming as a Dutch girl—and her lover, Owen Moore, is enough to stop any girl's heart with that Irish smile of his. They have a great romance, with a visit a la Romeo and Juliet, a rescue from a haunted mill and a lot of other thrills.

And laughs! There's one a minute. When Marion isn't battling with an ironing board or falling into a lake through the ice, Louise Fazenda and Karl Dane are busy making them—the oddest pair of lovers in the world. Louise's petticoats—a girl wears about eighteen of them in Holland—her elopement—and when she gets crowned with a ripe Holland cheese—these are among the giggles and guffaws of the picture.

When George Siegman acts a villain—he makes a real villain. It makes you creepy to contemplate his menacing aspect. Snitz Edwards is comical as the funny valet of Owen Moore, and the rest of the cast includes William Orlamond, Fred Gambold, Russell Fowell and others in great parts.

The scenery is beautiful. The snow scenes and the winter festival on the ice—the great church scene—the quaint old inn and the hall—they make you feel that you're in a foreign country.

London Police Wage Succesful Campaign On Street Beggars

LONDON. — There are not more than a thousand habitual beggars in the streets of London, according to an estimate made by the London Mendicity Society. This figure compares favorably with 10,000 who begged in the streets a hundred years ago.

The society's estimate is based on the number of police court charges, the assumption being that owing to the greater strictness and vigilance of the police most habitual beggars make their appearance in court at least once in twelve months.

There is no decline, however, in the number of begging-letter writers, according to the society.

MARION DAVIES AT AMERICAN

Can a flapper flap fluently in wooden shoes?

You can't do the Charleston in them, girls—and you have to take them off when you go into church, just as the Japanese flappers take off their shoes when they enter a house—but it's a gay life down by the Zuyder Zee, anyhow.

Marion proves that. She's a flapper from Holland, in lace petticoats, pigtails and lumber slippers that look like gunboats—in "The Red Mill," playing at the American theatre. She has a lot of fun, even if she does have to polish dishpans, attend to her uncle's gout and fill his pipe—and do many other things a modern American girl wouldn't and couldn't do. It's all a matter of geography, though—for the girl on Broadway and the girl in Holland are sisters under the skin, as Mr. Kipling suggested.

Marion is charming as a Dutch girl—and her lover, Owen Moore, is enough to step any girl's heart with that Irish smile of his. They have a great romance, with a visit a la Romeo and Juliet, a rescue from a haunted mill and a lot of other thrills.

And laughs! There's one a minute. When Marion isn't battling with an ironing board or falling into a lake through the ice, Louise Fazenda and Karl Dane are busy making them—the oldest pair of lovers in the world. Louise's petticoats—a girl wears about eighteen of them in Holland—her elopement—and when she gets crowned with a ripe Holland cheese—these are among the giggles and guffaws of the picture.

When George Siegman acts a villain—he makes a real villain. It makes you creepy to contemplate his menacing aspect. Snitz Edwards is comical as the funny valet of Owen Moore, and the rest of the cast includes William Orlamond, Fred Gamble, Russell Powell and others in great parts.

The scenery is beautiful. The snow scenes and the winter festival on the ice—the great church scene—the quaint old inn and the hall—they make you feel that you're in a foreign country.

LONDON REPORT SHOWS SAVINGS BY INDUSTRIES

Economies Effected Through Co-operative Plan.

GOVERNMENT AIDS

British Exchequer Provides Millions for Research.

LONDON—Large savings in numerous industries are announced in the report of "co-operative industrial research" by associations of manufacturers.

The British government started this movement in 1918 by giving 1,000,000 pounds for research and investigation. In the preface to the report, Lord Balfur, president of the department, says though the policy has had its successes and its failures, yet the successes have greatly predominated.

The Launderers' Research association, to take one instance, turned its attention to the use of softened water. As a result, 50 launderies immediately installed water softening plants. The average saving to the firms t xreckoned at $20,000 yearly and it is estimated that British customers are saved $500,000 yearly, while the life of linen is increased by quite 25 per cent.

In Boots and Shoes.

The Boot and Shoe Trades Research association went into the problem of why patent leather cracks. As a result of the investigations it has been reported that the percentage of cracked shoes has diminished from 25 per cent to practically nil. One feature of this inquiry showed the importance of the minute measurement of feet when fitting shoes.

One of the investigations carried out by the British Electrical and Allied Industries association had reference to the temperature an electric cable can stand.

Other Big Savings.

It was found that British Standard Cables could be safely loaded up to 11,000 volts, under most conditions of laying and working. Engineers were thus enabled to utilize existing cables to greater advantages and to effect large economies in future extensions.

As a result the association estimates that the supply industry world would, at once, get an improved supply to existing cables which might be assessed at $20,000,000 and that a saving would be effected of $1,500,000 in the purchase of cables.

Altogether the investigations carried out by the Electrical Research association have an estimated value of $5,500,000 yearly.

Marion proves that. She's a flapper from Holland, in lace petticoats, pigtails and lumber slippers that look like gunboats—in "The Red Mill," playing at the American theatre. She has a lot of fun, even if she does have to polish dishpans, attend to her uncle's gout and fill his pipe—and do many other things a modern American girl wouldn't and couldn't do. It's all a matter of geography, though—for the girl on Broadway and the girl in Holland are sisters under the skin, as Mr. Kipling suggested.

Marion is charming as a Dutch girl—and her lover, Owen Moore, is enough to stop any girl's heart with that Irish smile of his. They have a great romance, with a visit a la Romeo and Juliet, a rescue from a haunted mill and a lot of other thrills.

And laughs! There's one a minute. When Marion isn't battling with an ironing board or falling into a hole through the ice, Louise Fazenda and Karl Dane are busy making them—the oddest pair of lovers in the world. Louise's petticoats—a girl wears about eighteen of them in Holland—her elopment—and when she gets crowned with a ripe Holland cheese—these are among the giggles and guffaws of the picture.

When George Siegman acts a villain—he makes a real villain. It makes you creepy to contemplate his menacing aspect. Snitz Edwards is comical as the funny valet of Owen Moore, and the rest of the cast includes William Orlamond, Fred Gambold, Russell Powell and others in great parts.

The scenery is beautiful. The snow scenes and the winter festival on the ice—the great church scene—the quaint old inn and the ball—they make you feel that you're in a foreign country.

Drunken Drivers .

Massachusetts has a compulsory automobile insurance law. Every owner must insure his car to cover damage liability he may incur in driving. But Massachusetts makes a notable exception.

Recently an insurance company canceled the policy of a motorist who had caused a serious accident by careless driving. It did so on the ground that witnesses smelled liquor on the motorist's breath immediately after the accident. The company was determined not to carry the policy of any motorist who drove while intoxicated.

The state board of appeal which has authority in such cases has sustained the insurance company, and in addition has served notice that it will not require any company to carry insurance on a motor vehicle owner who is found driving a car under alcoholic influence.

This will probably promote sober driving in Massachusetts.

Drinking is the worst evil connected with motor traffic. When every other precaution is taken by careful drivers and police authorities, there still remain the unknown and unforeseeable perils caused by drunken drivers.

Looking Ahead

Much has been written, favorable and unfavorable, about business possibilities this year, with the dominant sentiment of experts indicating that it seems destined to be a fair year, possibly a good year, without any boom. What of next year?

At the annual meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board in New York with 200 economists, research men and statisticians attending, the general belief is expressed that next year is more likely to bring prosperity than depression, as some pessimists have feared.

"The belief that business moves in cycles of depression and prosperity is proving to be a superstition," says Virgil Gordon, chief economist of the board's research staff.

With fundamental economic conditions sound, with business intelligence operating more effectively than ever before, there seems to be no logical rason why prosperity should not continue for a long period, along a fairly level line or a gently ascending grade.

The only perceptible shadows of any importance is psychological. Fear of evil may bring evil. Timidity, widely spread, may realize its own narrow expectations. Business can do what it thinks it can do. The worst foe of American prosperity is the croaker.

Mastering Rivers

Sometimes it takes a serious illness to make a person think seriously about his health. Then the effort he makes to recover and the lesson he learns from his experience enables him to get along better thereafter, and live longer.

It may be that way in the case of the great floods, now on this nation's mind. One hesitates, from sympathy, to say that it may benefit the stricken localities, though it should do so in the long run, helping the flood victims' children if not them, because of the lessons learned and the remedial measures taken. However that may be, it should unquestionably benefit the country as a whole. For it starts the nation to thinking seriously not only about floods, but about rivers and all the problems and possibilities connected with them.

If out of national sympathy with the flood victims there develops enough national impetus really to do something about the Mississippi, then the public and the government may be disposed to go ahead and do something about other rivers. The Colorado, for example, which has long been a dreadful example of flood menace and wasted power.

The American people should control their rivers and other inland waters, and utilize them for the common welfare—for navigation, power and irrigation—instead of letting the rivers run amuck and control them. This nation has done a good job so far toward mastering the continent. It should go ahead and finish the job.

The Summer White House

The president should find it easier than ever to keep cool there. He can have any temperature he pleases, any day, by the simple procedure of going up or down a few thousand feet.

It is fine for the president, and fine for the country, to have him break precedent and go so far west for the summer. It helps president and country to know each other better, to their mutual advantage. One of these times a president should go all the way, summering on the Pacific coast. It is about as easy to run the country from one part of it as another. Eventually Alaska may beckon as a summer abode for weltering statesmen.

INQUIRY REGARDING THE AUTHORS

The old-time repertoire actor had been looking for a job for many a day, trying to keep up appearances with his one carefully pressed, but well-worn suit, and subsisting on his knowledge of where the largest meal for forty cents could be found.

When he was down to his last penny somebody told him of a vacancy in a small-town stock company thirty miles away and he borrowed the money to pay his railroad fare thither.

"By gosh, I'm glad you turned up," he said. "You're just the man and just the type. We're going into rehearsal today for next week's bill, which is where I need you."

"Modern play, I suppose?" inquired the newcomer, thinking of his one suit and mindful, of course, of the rule that stock actors must furnish their own costumes.

"Sure," said the manager; "modern society drama."

"That's good," declared the old-timer, feeling much cheered. "I presume then that a simple garb will be ample?"

"Well, let's see now just what wardrobe you will need," said his new boss. 'In the first act you will require a suit of tweeds. You are a rich mine owner. The English syndicate calls you to London and so, in the middle of the act, you have to make a change for a suit that you would wear on a train. Also, as you have an ocean trip ahead of you, there must be something characteristic in the way of a long ulster. Possibly you might wear the ulster and carry a lighter coat.

"The second act finds you in the smoking room of Lord Worcestershire's mansion. You are telling the Englishman about the mine, and, as it is in the evening you will be in full dress, naturally.

"The thrd act shows his lordship's yacht anchored at Ostend, and here again your dress must be precise. I would suggest white flannel trousers, blue jacket, white shoes and something classy in the way of a cap.

"This takes us to the fourth act, the scene of which is the breakfast room of a country house. It isn't necessary for me to tell you how to dress the part in this act. It is simply a matter of looking the part—rich mine owner, etc., not letting any Englishman show you up in the matter of clothes."

"Say," demanded the veteran, "who wrote this show—Hart, Schaffner & Marx?"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

LONDON, May 25.—Flying from Paris to London is as unexciting and casual as motoring to Oyster Bay. Save for striking a few air pockets with a sickening dip the trip is as smooth and uneventful as a three-hour motor journey.

The only sinister note is in soaring over the channel when the mechanician places a life preserver beside your seat. Passengers read newspapers and books or play solitaire. The countryside from the clouds resembles a huge patched quilt. But to avoid air sickness you are advised not to look out.

I started early in the morning and motored from Croyden in time to lunch at Simpson's. London has undergone vast changes. Regent street, the Fifth Avenue shopping center, has been widened and ranparted with new buildings. There are other evidences of progress.

The unemployment that has, however, existed since the war is noticeable along the curbs of the Strand where men you feel are fitted for something better are hawking matches, mechanical toys, lead pencils and guide books. Their shabby gentility is pronounced.

Many young men walk about encased in those portable news posters—a job once only allotted to the broken down old sandwich men types of our Bryant Park corners. Women are frequently seen driving taxis. The new tax budget has been a hard blow, yet somehow London seems cheerful.

A group of us had tea at the Cavendish, presided over by Rosa Lewis, England's most famous cook who recently paid America a visit. Her hotel once the rendezvous of Lord Ribblesdale and other famous men is quite a meeting place for Americans. Mrs. Lewis is an amusing hostess, sometimes a little shocking in her observations but a favorite among her patrons.

At dusk a fog the thickness of heavy soup descended. A kindly bobby led me into an A. B. C. restaurant until he could commandeer a cab. He never came back although he accepted my half crown. I remained there an hour, the only customer. Old Albion is still perfidious.

The Burlington Arcade is a paradise for men who like doggy haber-dashery geegaws. Having stocked up in Paris I enjoyed reading the signs such as "Lounge Suitings for Park Wear," "Cricket Togs and Shooting Mackintoshes," "Morning Cravats," "Monogrammed Weskits," "Evening Shirtings" and, of all things, "Tea Trousers."

One of my favorite haunts in London is a row of pubs in Houndsditch where cabbies collect at night. They are ancient jebus with generous drooping mustaches, noses shot with tiny red veins and weather beaten complexions. Bonneted Cockney women cajole the 'Arries and Alfs into buying them ale and bitters amid volleys of good natured baddnage. There is a sprinkling of children who come out of the mews to carry pitchers of beer to their parents. Street musicians play their doleful melodies. It is perhaps London squalor at its worst but the impression is one of lightheartedness.

Limehouse has been given an unwarranted glamour through the writings of Thomas Burke. Its nocturnal dangers are about the same as that of Chinatown in New York—which means it is as safe as Times Square at noon. I walked through several of the causeways after midnight in the dripping darkness and aside from a few solitary droping figures in doorways it was as lifeless as Trinity churchyard.

The night clubs are no different from those in Gotham, patronized chiefly by tourists and offering the same treachery and boredom. London, for the most part, is abed by ten o'clock. It is an interesting city, as interesting as any in the world but I am happy to return to Paris in the morning. London is not London without "Spike" Hunt.

Among other things I saw on the flying visit were Buckingham Castle, Birdcage Walk, Old Bailey, the Thames, the Tower of London, London Bridge, Parliament and Big Ben, Hyde Park, the changing of guards at Whitehall, Trafalgar Square and the crowds feeding pigeons and several other sights the yokel always sees.

An Amazing Case.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 25.—One of the most amazing criminal cases known in the history of this or any other country is that of Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Nicola Sacco, avowed anarchists, under sentence of death for murder in Massachusetts.

It has created more world-wide commotion of serious character than any case of which there is a record. It has been dragged out for a longer period than any similar case. It has been the cause of attacks made or threatened upon United States embassies and consulates in Europe, Japan, Mexico, and South America. It has led, more recently, to an attempt upon the life of Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, through a bomb sent by mail, but fortunately intercepted.

It has inspired petitions for executive clemency from millions of people in this and other countries. It has been the subject of thousands of columns of newspaper articles and editorials, and even a book has been written about it by a professor in a famous law school. It presents the extraordinary features of a conviction on circumstantial evidence and of legal technicalities that are to the disadvantage rather than the advantage of the accused.

It is, in short, in every sense of the expression, what the French call a "cause celebre," involving as it does national and international politics and governmental principles, although the crime in question was not in the slightest degree political. What its ultimate effects will be can not even be conjectured until it is known what the end of the case is to be.

That, it seems, is to be determined by Governor Fuller, although he will have an abundance of able assistance and presumptively valuable advice in arriving at his decision. The governor must decide whether the two alien "reds" are to be electrocuted during the week beginning July 10 next, for the legal situation now is such that no court and not even the President of the United States could intervene. There can not be a new trial. The governor can pardon the convicted men or change their punishment to Drunken Drivers .

Massachusetts has a compulsory automobile insurance law. Every owner must insure his car to cover damage liability he may incur in driving. But Massachusetts makes a notable exception.

Recently an insurance company canceled the policy of a motorist who had caused a serious accident by careless driving. It did so on the ground that witnesses smelled liquor on the motorist's breath immediately after the accident. The company was determined not to carry the policy of any motorist who drove while intoxicated.

The state board of appeal which has authority in such cases has sustained the insurance company, and in addition has served notice that it will not require any company to carry insurance on a motor vehicle owner who is found driving a car under alcoholic influence.

This will probably promote sober driving in Massachusetts.

Drinking is the worst evil connected with motor traffic. When every other precaution is taken by careful drivers and police authorities, there still remain the unknown and unforeseeable perils caused by drunken drivers.

Looking Ahead

Much has been written, favorable and unfavorable, about business possibilities this year, with the dominant sentiment of experts indicating that it seems destined to be a fair year, possibly a good year, without any boom. What of next year?

At the annual meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board in New York with 200 economists, research men and statisticians attending, the general belief is expressed that next year is more likely to bring prosperity than depression, as some pessimists have feared.

"The belief that business moves in cycles of depression and prosperity is proving to be a superstition," says Virgil Gordon, chief economist of the board's research staff.

With fundamental economic conditions sound, with business intelligence operating more effectively than ever before, there seems to be no logical rason why prosperity should not continue for a long period, along a fairly level line or a gently ascending grade.

The only perceptible shadows of any importance is psychological. Fear of evil may bring evil. Timidity, widely spread, may realize its own narrow expectations. Business can do what it thinks it can do. The worst foe of American prosperity is the croaker.

Mastering Rivers

Sometimes it takes a serious illness to make a person think seriously about his health. Then the effort he makes to recover and the lesson he learns from his experience enables him to get along better thereafter, and live longer.

It may be that way in the case of the great floods, now on this nation's mind. One hesitates, from sympathy, to say that it may benefit the stricken localities, though it should do so in the long run, helping the flood victims' children if not them, because of the lessons learned and the remedial measures taken. However that may be, it should unquestionably benefit the country as a whole. For it starts the nation to thinking seriously not only about floods, but about rivers and all the problems and possibilities connected with them.

If out of national sympathy with the flood victims there develops enough national impetus really to do something about the Mississippi, then the public and the government may be disposed to go ahead and do something about other rivers. The Colorado, for example, which has long been a dreadful example of flood menace and wasted power.

The American people should control their rivers and other inland waters, and utilize them for the common welfare—for navigation, power and irrigation—instead of letting the rivers run amuck and control them. This nation has done a good job so far toward mastering the continent. It should go ahead and finish the job.

The Summer White House

The president should find it easier than ever to keep cool there. He can have any temperature he pleases, any day, by the simple procedure of going up or down a few thousand feet.

It is fine for the president, and fine for the country, to have him break precedent and go so far west for the summer. It helps president and country to know each other better, to their mutual advantage. One of these times a president should go all the way, summering on the Pacific coast. It is about as easy to run the country from one part of it as another. Eventually Alaska may beckon as a summer abode for weltering statesmen.

INQUIRY REGARDING THE AUTHORS

The old-time repertoire actor had been looking for a job for many a day, trying to keep up appearances with his one carefully pressed, but well-worn suit, and subsisting on his knowledge of where the largest meal for forty cents could be found.

When he was down to his last penny somebody told him of a vacancy in a small-town stock company thirty miles away and he borrowed the money to pay his railroad fare thither.

"By gosh, I'm glad you turned up," he said. "You're just the man and just the type. We're going into rehearsal today for next week's bill, which is where I need you."

"Modern play, I suppose?" inquired the newcomer, thinking of his one suit and mindful, of course, of the rule that stock actors must furnish their own costumes.

"Sure," said the manager; "modern society drama."

"That's good," declared the old-timer, feeling much cheered. "I presume then that a simple garb will be ample?"

"Well, let's see now just what wardrobe you will need," said his new boss. 'In the first act you will require a suit of tweeds. You are a rich mine owner. The English syndicate calls you to London and so, in the middle of the act, you have to make a change for a suit that you would wear on a train. Also, as you have an ocean trip ahead of you, there must be something characteristic in the way of a long ulster. Possibly you might wear the ulster and carry a lighter coat.

"The second act finds you in the smoking room of Lord Worcestershire's mansion. You are telling the Englishman about the mine, and, as it is in the evening you will be in full dress, naturally.

"The thrd act shows his lordship's yacht anchored at Ostend, and here again your dress must be precise. I would suggest white flannel trousers, blue jacket, white shoes and something classy in the way of a cap.

"This takes us to the fourth act, the scene of which is the breakfast room of a country house. It isn't necessary for me to tell you how to dress the part in this act. It is simply a matter of looking the part—rich mine owner, etc., not letting any Englishman show you up in the matter of clothes."

"Say," demanded the veteran, "who wrote this show—Hart, Schaffner & Marx?"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

LONDON, May 25.—Flying from Paris to London is as unexciting and casual as motoring to Oyster Bay. Save for striking a few air pockets with a sickening dip the trip is as smooth and uneventful as a three-hour motor journey.

The only sinister note is in soaring over the channel when the mechanician places a life preserver beside your seat. Passengers read newspapers and books or play solitaire. The countryside from the clouds resembles a huge patched quilt. But to avoid air sickness you are advised not to look out.

I started early in the morning and motored from Croyden in time to lunch at Simpson's. London has undergone vast changes. Regent street, the Fifth Avenue shopping center, has been widened and ranparted with new buildings. There are other evidences of progress.

The unemployment that has, however, existed since the war is noticeable along the curbs of the Strand where men you feel are fitted for something better are hawking matches, mechanical toys, lead pencils and guide books. Their shabby gentility is pronounced.

Many young men walk about encased in those portable news posters—a job once only allotted to the broken down old sandwich men types of our Bryant Park corners. Women are frequently seen driving taxis. The new tax budget has been a hard blow, yet somehow London seems cheerful.

A group of us had tea at the Cavendish, presided over by Rosa Lewis, England's most famous cook who recently paid America a visit. Her hotel once the rendezvous of Lord Ribblesdale and other famous men is quite a meeting place for Americans. Mrs. Lewis is an amusing hostess, sometimes a little shocking in her observations but a favorite among her patrons.

At dusk a fog the thickness of heavy soup descended. A kindly bobby led me into an A. B. C. restaurant until he could commandeer a cab. He never came back although he accepted my half crown. I remained there an hour, the only customer. Old Albion is still perfidious.

The Burlington Arcade is a paradise for men who like doggy haber-dashery geegaws. Having stocked up in Paris I enjoyed reading the signs such as "Lounge Suitings for Park Wear," "Cricket Togs and Shooting Mackintoshes," "Morning Cravats," "Monogrammed Weskits," "Evening Shirtings" and, of all things, "Tea Trousers."

One of my favorite haunts in London is a row of pubs in Houndsditch where cabbies collect at night. They are ancient jebus with generous drooping mustaches, noses shot with tiny red veins and weather beaten complexions. Bonneted Cockney women cajole the 'Arries and Alfs into buying them ale and bitters amid volleys of good natured baddnage. There is a sprinkling of children who come out of the mews to carry pitchers of beer to their parents. Street musicians play their doleful melodies. It is perhaps London squalor at its worst but the impression is one of lightheartedness.

Limehouse has been given an unwarranted glamour through the writings of Thomas Burke. Its nocturnal dangers are about the same as that of Chinatown in New York—which means it is as safe as Times Square at noon. I walked through several of the causeways after midnight in the dripping darkness and aside from a few solitary droping figures in doorways it was as lifeless as Trinity churchyard.

The night clubs are no different from those in Gotham, patronized chiefly by tourists and offering the same treachery and boredom. London, for the most part, is abed by ten o'clock. It is an interesting city, as interesting as any in the world but I am happy to return to Paris in the morning. London is not London without "Spike" Hunt.

Among other things I saw on the flying visit were Buckingham Castle, Birdcage Walk, Old Bailey, the Thames, the Tower of London, London Bridge, Parliament and Big Ben, Hyde Park, the changing of guards at Whitehall, Trafalgar Square and the crowds feeding pigeons and several other sights the yokel always sees.

CAPTAIN LINDBERGH REPAIRS HIS LONE WOLF PLANE

"SLIM" HAPPY AS HE TINKERS WITH WRENCHES

Spurns Offers From Mechanics of Overalls and Jumpers.

AIRCRAFT O. K.

American Flier Prepares for Another Busy Day.

By WILLIAM P. CARNEY.

LE BOURGET, May 25. — Captain Charles A. Lindbergh was back in his own sphere today, completely happy as he tinkered with wrenches and drills, working as an ordinary mechanic upon his plane, which has been standing in a hangar here since Saturday when Lindbergh arrived on his epochal flight from New York.

The grinning youth seemed hardly able to restrain himself when he arrived at the hangar this morning to work on his machine. He spurned offers from mechanics of overalls and jumpers and unmindful of his new clothes started immediately climbing over the plane, examining damage done by souvenir hunters and making arrangements for materials and tools with which to repair the plane.

The young flier made no effort to hide his satisfaction at being back in the world of motors and struts and gasoline and oil.

Tires of Receptions.

"I wish I could stay here all day and I wish I could fly a little," Lindbergh said as he started to work.

"My only chance of being alone is to go up on a flight, but unfortunately I cannot do that now because I have too many engagements commencing at noon."

Then Lindbergh outlined his engagements for the day, which include a reception by the chamber of deputies, and there was no doubt left that he has found his life of receptions and honors during the past three days more tiring and more exacting than the 33 hours he spent on his solo flight across the Atlantic.

Foch's Aide On Job.

As Lindbergh, draging a stepladder with him to enable him to reach parts of the plane, worked busily upon the giant machine, French mechanics gathered and stood in their grimy overalls admiring the hero of the hour and remarking upon his intimate knowledge with the mechanical workings of his machine.

Several French mechanics had been assigned to aid Lindbergh, but their admiration exceeded their energy and for the most part they stood by as awe-inspired onlookers while the American boy adjusted and tinkered, apparently tickled to death to do all of the work himself.

Marshal Foch's aide, Captain Hospital, acted as interpreter to Lindbergh, but not with a great deal of success. Lindbergh knew only the English mechanical phrases and Captain Hospital knew only the French phrases, and there was a good deal of laughing, expostulating and sign language going on between Lindbergh and the French mechanics as the American attempted to indicate his wants.

Damage Repaired.

With good humour and apparent willingness to undergo any handicaps as long as he could remain with his machine, Lindbergh stumbled over the little groups that had gathered about in a desire to help him, but who actually impeded his work. Always courteous whenever he alighted from a step-ladder upon the toes of some gaping French mechanic, Lindbergh apologized and there was an exchange of courtesies which would have made the mechanics at Garden City, where there is no mincing of language, gasp with surprise.

Damage done to Lindbergh's machine by souvenir hunters has been repaired. Mechanics have patched up the holes cut in the canvas by the crowds of curious that swarmed into the airdrome Saturday night despite the efforts of the police to keep them out.

A crowd got within the fenced enclosure containing the machine this morning and started cutting strips of canvas from the wings of the plane but they were quickly routed by the guards.

Vaults High Fence.

Lindbergh finished working on his plane at 11:30 and leaving the hangar vaulted a high fence, instead of seeking the gate, much to the enjoyment of the assembled admirers. He then proceeded to visit other hangars on the field and was in his glory inspecting commercial planes and watching mechanics at work on motors. Captain Richard White, naval attache, suggested to Lindbergh that he get into his automobile and drive from hangar to hangar. "You get the car and ride along and pick me up later" answered Lindbergh, which White did.

The young flier admitted that he found the constant receptions very tiring and he feared that today would be an even more tiring day.

When the International News Service correspondent gave the flier a message from his mother in Detroit, saying she was not coming to Paris, Lindbergh smiled and said, "Thank you, I knew that. Please tell her I'll advise her in plenty of time when to go to New York to meet me. I wish I could say right now when I'll go, but I don't know."

The official invitation for Lindbergh to return home by a warship has not been received yet.

Mayor's Pay Cut

Solon Farrall declared that he did not favor the sale of the lot but if it were to be sold that is was worth $75,000. He said that the property had been purchased for city hall purposes and should be used to that end.

"The lot is worth more than $50,000—let's keep it" was the advice of Councilman Goodballet.

The ordinance was passed on first reading with opposition but was killed when a move to suspend the rules was made, Hughes being the only member to support the measure.

Repealer on Second Reading.

Sale of the lot, owned by the city, opposite the city hospital at a figure not less than $4,000 was authorized. The service-safety director was instructed to advertise for bids and to sell the property to the highest bidder. It is said that an offer has been received by the city from a party who wishes to use the lot as a residence site.

Repealer of ordinance, No. 2061, passed last June, prohibiting the obstruction of streets and alleys, was passed on second reading without a dissenting vote. However, when an attempt was made to suspend the rules in order to put it through on third reading, Kelly and Poole voted "no," blocking the action. Hayes declared the ordinance was a little too drastic and that another measure should be drafted which would eliminate some of the more stringent regulations. Kelly replied that the measure was based on the state law which prohibited obstructions and that the city could gain nothing by removing it from the statute books.

A petition asking for the surfacing of Smithfield street from McKinnon to Orchard Grove avenue, was received. It was signed by persons representing about 75 percent of the abutting property, Service-Safety Director Moore declared. The ordinance committee was instructed to bring in the necessary legislation at the next meeting.

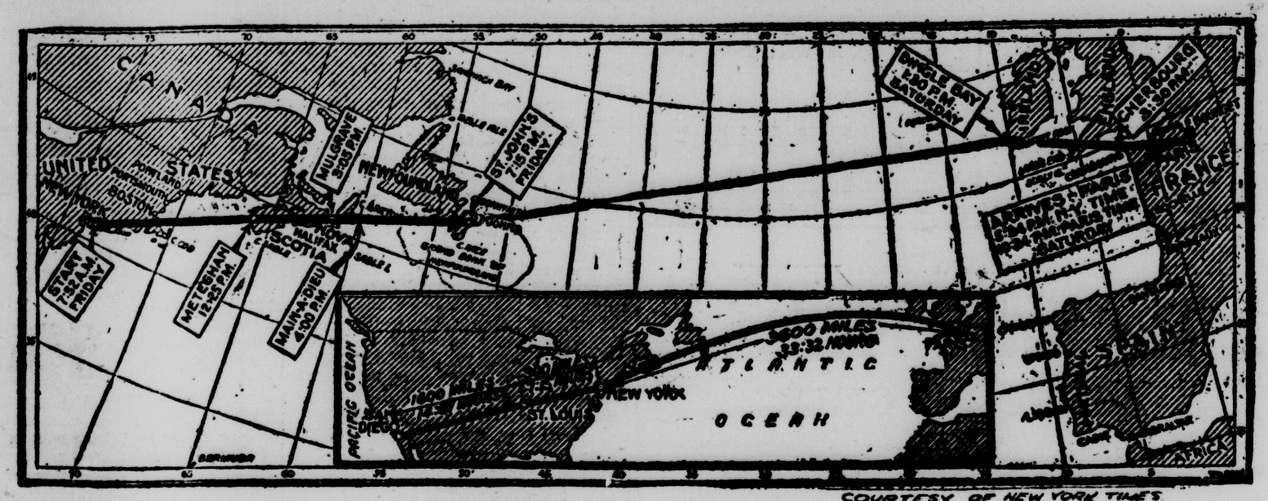
COMPLETE MAP AND SCHEDULE OF LINDBERGH'S GREAT FEAT



COURTESY OF NEW YORK TIMES

Deputies Cheer Lindy

Leaving the chamber, Lindbergh's progress was a triumphal reception as he made his way through the boulevards. Crowds thronged about him and cheered wildly when he stopped at the offices of Le Matin building and entered.

Seemingly unimpressed by this great ovation, Lindbergh went to the upper stories of Le Matin building for a view of the city, and looked out a long time as the broad expanses spread before him.

"This is more like the Paris I have dreamed about and read about and I am beginning to feel for the first time that I am in France," he said.

Leaving Le Matin offices Lindbergh was again besieged on all sides by his admirers as he proceeded to the American embassy.

Paris seems unable to get enough of Lindbergh and he made his way to the embassy with slow progress. At the embassy he decided to take a well earned rest.

While in Brussels, Lindbergh will be a guest at the American embassy.

PARIS, May 25.—Any reputation the French people may have had for fleeting fancies is belied by their consistent and persistent adoration of Captain Charles A. Lindbergh.

The American ace was just as great a center of attraction today as he was in the dusk of last Saturday evening, when he zoomed down out of the skies, completing the greatest solo flight yet recorded in aerial history.

The French masses have continued to pay their tributes to Lindbergh, and French officialdom has paid its respects, and now French politics will offer its bit of admiration. Tomorrow Lindbergh has a program that is awaited by hundreds who have not yet had their chance to shout their "vives" at him. He is to be officially welcomed by the city of Paris, with all of their glittering, clanking pomp and ceremony that is generally accorded only to royal visitors or high official dignataries.

French Cavalry Escorts Hero.

The flying mail-man is to be carried to the city hall in an open carriage, with an escort of French cavalry clattering by his side, and he will be kissed on both cheeks and again told how great a man he is. Even the center doors of the city hall will be opened for his entrance, and the opening of these doors is an event of more than passing interest.

To Lindbergh all this is a matter of mere obligation. If he had his own choice he would steal away from it all and get back to the hangars and the planes at Le Bourget, but he realizes his duties as an unofficial ambassador and he is carrying out these duties remarkably well.

The Parisian newspapers, generally rather careful of their space, continue to devote columns to Lindbergh, his comings and his goings, and to editorials upon his feat and his subsequent receptions.

Observers of international courtesies and niceties are amazed at the rare tact which Lindbergh, inexperienced in the ways of diplomacy, has shown, and it is generally admitted that this youth through his natural and inborn courtesy and kindness has outdone any effort towards establishing better Franco-American relations than could have been offered by even the most experienced of the American diplomatic corps.

Bleriot Entertains "Slim."

"A king of courage" was the title bestowed upon Lindbergh today by the Petit Parisien, in a leading article that was marked by its frankness.

Louis Bleriot, who was the first man to fly across the English channel, entertained Lindbergh at luncheon today. Among the guests were Minister of War Painleve and several other members of the cabinet, Ambassador Herrick and the French aviator, Captain De Letier D' Oisy.

Adolph Zukor, leaving for New York on the S. S. Majestic today, announced that Lindbergh had definitely rejected his offer of a $300,000 motion picture contract. "He told me definitely that he would not accept any theatrical movie offer, but he would consider a commercial offer connected with aviation," said Zukor.

A crowd of more than 500 waited in front of the Bleriot apartment where Lindbergh lunched today, hoping to see him and demanding his appearance on a balcony. The apartment, however, is on a court and Lindbergh could not hear the cheering demands made by his admirers.

Scene Compared To Armistice Days.

The scene in the chamber was one of the most moving since the days of the armistice.

Lindbergh, the boy, spoke and then stood uneasy and shy as General Girod addressed a great tribute to his feat in uniting the hearts of two nations.

Ambassador Herrick was overcome with emotion at the scene and after a brief speech he was forced to return to the embassy and leave Lindbergh to the care of others.

Surmounting his natural shyness and suppressing his dislike for public speaking, Lindbergh arose to the occasion as he arose to the difficulties of flying across the Atlantic—he spoke before the French chamber—an honor extended to but few Americans heretofore.

Addresses French Legislature.

This lad, who a fortnight ago was unknown and who still loves the grime of the hangars and the whirring of motors tearing through space more than adulation, arose and addressed the French legislature, and did it in a manner that would have been a credit to men of greater experience in public life.

"About 150 years ago Ben Franklin was asked what use the free balloon was," said Lindbergh, "and replied, 'what use is a new born babe.'

"Less than 20 years ago Bleriot, your countryman, flew across the English channel and people said, 'what good is this?'

"Today a New-York Paris flight is a fact and they are asking, 'what good is an Atlantic flight?'

"It seems to me that we have served a wonderful purpose in bringing together two peoples and two continents in a friendship that has existed more than 100 years."

Then Lindbergh, the boy, having for the first time since he made his flight admitted his belief that he had actually accomplished something worthy of world attention, withdrew, his short speech being wildly acclaimed but being all too short to suit his listeners.

Earle Foxe and Nancy Nash in "Upstream."

Earle Foxe, popular comedian, has the leading masculine role in "Upstream," a John Ford production for Fox Films, at the Strand theatre, today and tomorrow. Nancy Nash, who had a featured role in "The City," plays opposite Foxe in this comedy-drama of American theatrical life.

The story, a screen version of "The Snake's Wife," written by Wallace Smith, was adapted by Randall H. Faye. The scene is laid in New York and London. The plot centers about the activities of a presumptuous young actor who achieves greatness as a Shakespearean tragedian by virtue of some timely advice given by an older star. Comedy and tragedy are blended in the lives of a group of "professionals" who live in a typical boarding-house in Forty-sixth street.

In addition to Foxe and Miss Nash, the cast includes many well known names.

Has 77 Great-Grandchildren. No Furniture Era Seen.

Interior decorators of Europe see a tendency toward the elimination of furniture from homes. They declare that wall-papers of today, with their elaborate panels, of highly colored flowers, are too beautiful to be spoiled by chairs and bookcases. Divans and low tables are all that should be allowed at present, they say.

Dayton Man Wins $600 Damage Suit Against Patrolman

DAYTON, O., May 25.—The Ohio supreme court today upheld the decree of the Montgomery county courts which awarded a judgment of $600 in favor of Daniel McDiarmid and against the Maryland Casualty company.

The judgment represents the full amount of an indemnity bond executed by the company to the city of Dayton in the case of Policeman Patrick Roach.

McDiarmid sued the company and Roach after Roach and the late George E. Clark, plain clothes policemen, it was alleged, mistook McDiarmid for a highwayman while he was enroute home, at 4:30 a. m., January 28, 1923, from work at a Dayton rubber factory, and shot McDiarmid four times.

CAPTAIN LINDBERGH REPAIRS HIS LONE WOLF PLANE

"SLIM" HAPPY AS HE TINKERS WITH WRENCHES

Spurns Offers From Mechanics of Overalls and Jumpers.

AIRCRAFT O. K.

American Flier Prepares for Another Busy Day.

By WILLIAM P. CARNEY.

LE BOURGET, May 25. — Captain Charles A. Lindbergh was back in his own sphere today, completely happy as he tinkered with wrenches and drills, working as an ordinary mechanic upon his plane, which has been standing in a hangar here since Saturday when Lindbergh arrived on his epochal flight from New York.

The grinning youth seemed hardly able to restrain himself when he arrived at the hangar this morning to work on his machine. He spurned offers from mechanics of overalls and jumpers and unmindful of his new clothes started immediately climbing over the plane, examining damage done by souvenir hunters and making arrangements for materials and tools with which to repair the plane.

The young flier made no effort to hide his satisfaction at being back in the world of motors and struts and gasoline and oil.

Tires of Receptions.

"I wish I could stay here all day and I wish I could fly a little," Lindbergh said as he started to work.

"My only chance of being alone is to go up on a flight, but unfortunately I cannot do that now because I have too many engagements commencing at noon."

Then Lindbergh outlined his engagements for the day, which include a reception by the chamber of deputies, and there was no doubt left that he has found his life of receptions and honors during the past three days more tiring and more exacting than the 33 hours he spent on his solo flight across the Atlantic.

Foch's Aide On Job.

As Lindbergh, draging a stepladder with him to enable him to reach parts of the plane, worked busily upon the giant machine, French mechanics gathered and stood in their grimy overalls admiring the hero of the hour and remarking upon his intimate knowledge with the mechanical workings of his machine.

Several French mechanics had been assigned to aid Lindbergh, but their admiration exceeded their energy and for the most part they stood by as awe-inspired onlookers while the American boy adjusted and tinkered, apparently tickled to death to do all of the work himself.

Marshal Foch's aide, Captain Hospital, acted as interpreter to Lindbergh, but not with a great deal of success. Lindbergh knew only the English mechanical phrases and Captain Hospital knew only the French phrases, and there was a good deal of laughing, expostulating and sign language going on between Lindbergh and the French mechanics as the American attempted to indicate his wants.

Damage Repaired.

With good humour and apparent willingness to undergo any handicaps as long as he could remain with his machine, Lindbergh stumbled over the little groups that had gathered about in a desire to help him, but who actually impeded his work. Always courteous whenever he alighted from a step-ladder upon the toes of some gaping French mechanic, Lindbergh apologized and there was an exchange of courtesies which would have made the mechanics at Garden City, where there is no mincing of language, gasp with surprise.

Damage done to Lindbergh's machine by souvenir hunters has been repaired. Mechanics have patched up the holes cut in the canvas by the crowds of curious that swarmed into the airdrome Saturday night despite the efforts of the police to keep them out.

A crowd got within the fenced enclosure containing the machine this morning and started cutting strips of canvas from the wings of the plane but they were quickly routed by the guards.

Vaults High Fence.

Lindbergh finished working on his plane at 11:30 and leaving the hangar vaulted a high fence, instead of seeking the gate, much to the enjoyment of the assembled admirers. He then proceeded to visit other hangars on the field and was in his glory inspecting commercial planes and watching mechanics at work on motors. Captain Richard White, naval attache, suggested to Lindbergh that he get into his automobile and drive from hangar to hangar. "You get the car and ride along and pick me up later" answered Lindbergh, which White did.

The young flier admitted that he found the constant receptions very tiring and he feared that today would be an even more tiring day.

When the International News Service correspondent gave the flier a message from his mother in Detroit, saying she was not coming to Paris, Lindbergh smiled and said, "Thank you, I knew that. Please tell her I'll advise her in plenty of time when to go to New York to meet me. I wish I could say right now when I'll go, but I don't know."

The official invitation for Lindbergh to return home by a warship has not been received yet.

COURTESY OF NEW YORK TIMES

Leaving the chamber, Lindbergh's progress was a triumphal reception as he made his way through the boulevards. Crowds thronged about him and cheered wildly when he stopped at the offices of Le Matin building and entered.

Seemingly unimpressed by this great ovation, Lindbergh went to the upper stories of Le Matin building for a view of the city, and looked out a long time as the broad expanses spread before him.

"This is more like the Paris I have dreamed about and read about and I am beginning to feel for the first time that I am in France," he said.

Leaving Le Matin offices Lindbergh was again besieged on all sides by his admirers as he proceeded to the American embassy.

Paris seems unable to get enough of Lindbergh and he made his way to the embassy with slow progress. At the embassy he decided to take a well earned rest.

While in Brussels, Lindbergh will be a guest at the American embassy.

PARIS, May 25.—Any reputation the French people may have had for fleeting fancies is belied by their consistent and persistent adoration of Captain Charles A. Lindbergh.

The American ace was just as great a center of attraction today as he was in the dusk of last Saturday evening, when he zoomed down out of the skies, completing the greatest solo flight yet recorded in aerial history.

The French masses have continued to pay their tributes to Lindbergh, and French officialdom has paid its respects, and now French politics will offer its bit of admiration. Tomorrow Lindbergh has a program that is awaited by hundreds who have not yet had their chance to shout their "vives" at him. He is to be officially welcomed by the city of Paris, with all of their glittering, clanking pomp and ceremony that is generally accorded only to royal visitors or high official dignataries.

French Cavalry Escorts Hero.

The flying mail-man is to be carried to the city hall in an open carriage, with an escort of French cavalry clattering by his side, and he will be kissed on both cheeks and again told how great a man he is. Even the center doors of the city hall will be opened for his entrance, and the opening of these doors is an event of more than passing interest.

To Lindbergh all this is a matter of mere obligation. If he had his own choice he would steal away from it all and get back to the hangars and the planes at Le Bourget, but he realizes his duties as an unofficial ambassador and he is carrying out these duties remarkably well.

The Parisian newspapers, generally rather careful of their space, continue to devote colums to Lindbergh, his comings and his goings, and to editorials upon his feat and his subsequent receptions.

Observers of international courtesies and niceties are amazed at the rare tact which Lindbergh, inexperienced in the ways of diplomacy, has shown, and it is generally admitted that this youth through his natural and inborn courtesy and kindness has outdone any effort towards establishing better Franco-American relations than could have been offered by even the most experienced of the American diplomatic corps.

Bleriot Entertains "Slim."

"A king of courage" was the title bestowed upon Lindbergh today by the Petit Parisien, in a leading article that was marked by its frankness.

Louis Bleriot, who was the first man to fly across the English channel, entertained Lindbergh at luncheon today. Among the guests were Minister of War Painleve and several other members of the cabinet, Ambassador Herrick and the French aviator, Captain De Letier D' Oisy.

Adolph Zukor, leaving for New York on the S. S. Majestic today, announced that Lindbergh had definitely rejected his offer of a $300,000 motion picture contract. "He told me definitely that he would not accept any theatrical movie offer, but he would consider a commercial offer connected with aviation," said Zukor.

A crowd of more than 500 waited in front of the Bleriot apartment where Lindbergh lunched today, hoping to see him and demanding his appearance on a balcony. The apartment, however, is on a court and Lindbergh could not hear the cheering demands made by his admirers.

Scene Compared To Armistice Days.

The scene in the chamber was one of the most moving since the days of the armistice.

Lindbergh, the boy, spoke and then stood uneasy and shy as General Girod addressed a great tribute to his feat in uniting the hearts of two nations.

Ambassador Herrick was overcome with emotion at the scene and after a brief speech he was forced to return to the embassy and leave Lindbergh to the care of others.

Surmounting his natural shyness and suppressing his dislike for public speaking, Lindbergh arose to the occasion as he arose to the difficulties of flying across the Atlantic—he spoke before the French chamber—an honor extended to but few Americans heretofore.

Addresses French Legislature.

This lad, who a fortnight ago was unknown and who still loves the grime of the hangars and the whirring of motors tearing through space more than adulation, arose and addressed the French legislature, and did it in a manner that would have been a credit to men of greater experience in public life.

"About 150 years ago Ben Franklin was asked what use the free balloon was," said Lindbergh, "and replied, 'what use is a new born babe.'

"Less than 20 years ago Bleriot, your countryman, flew across the English channel and people said, 'what good is this?'

"Today a New-York Paris flight is a fact and they are asking, 'what good is an Atlantic flight?'

"It seems to me that we have served a wonderful purpose in bringing together two peoples and two continents in a friendship that has existed more than 100 years."

Then Lindbergh, the boy, having for the first time since he made his flight admitted his belief that he had actually accomplished something worthy of world attention, withdrew, his short speech being wildly acclaimed but being all too short to suit his listeners.

Earle Foxe and Nancy Nash in "Upstream."

Earle Foxe, popular comedian, has the leading masculine role in "Upstream," a John Ford production for Fox Films, at the Strand theatre, today and tomorrow. Nancy Nash, who had a featured role in "The City," plays opposite Foxe in this comedy-drama of American theatrical life.

The story, a screen version of "The Snake's Wife," written by Wallace Smith, was adapted by Randall H. Faye. The scene is laid in New York and London. The plot centers about the activities of a presumptuous young actor who achieves greatness as a Shakespearean tragedian by virtue of some timely advice given by an older star. Comedy and tragedy are blended in the lives of a group of "professionals" who live in a typical boarding-house in Forty-sixth street.

In addition to Foxe and Miss Nash, the cast includes many well known names.

The list includes Raymond Hitchcock, Emile Chautard, Grant Withers, Judy King, Jane Winton, Lillian Worth, Harry Bailey, Francis Ford, Ted McNamara, Sammy Cohen, Lydia Yeamans Titus and others.

For the first time since the founding of the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, in 1837, a set of triplets will be graduated from that institution, when three members of the Guffey family of McKeesport, Pa., receive their diplomas in June. They plan to enter medical school and practice together upon completion of their course. Their father is a physician.

Has 77 Great-Grandchildren. No Furniture Era Seen.

Interior decorators of Europe see a tendency toward the elimination of furniture from homes. They declare that wall-papers of today, with their elaborate panels, of highly colored flowers, are too beautiful to be spoiled by chairs and bookcases. Divans and low tables are all that should be allowed at present, they say.

The trouble with a bigamist is that he loves not wisely but "two" well.—Lima News.

Dayton Man Wins $600 Damage Suit Against Patrolman

DAYTON, O., May 25.—The Ohio supreme court today upheld the decree of the Montgomery county courts which awarded a judgment of $600 in favor of Daniel McDiarmid and against the Maryland Casualty company.

The judgment represents the full amount of an indemnity bond executed by the company to the city of Dayton in the case of Policeman Patrick Roach.

McDiarmid sued the company and Roach after Roach and the late George E. Clark, plain clothes policemen, it was alleged, mistook McDiarmid for a highwayman while he was enroute home, at 4:30 a. m., January 28, 1923, from work at a Dayton rubber factory, and shot McDiarmid four times.

Ohio Woman Held For Making Threats Against President

TOLEDO, O., May 25.—Mrs. Augusta Johnson, mother of a 10-year-old girl, was to be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Gaines today on a charge of threatening the life of President Calvin Coolidge. She was arrested by secret service agents at her home here late Tuesday. The agents are holding a letter of May 17, said to have been written by the woman, which threatens the life of the president.

CAPTAIN LINDBERGH REPAIRS HIS LONE WOLF PLANE

"SLIM" HAPPY AS HE TINKERS WITH WRENCHES

Spurns Offers From Mechanics of Overalls and Jumpers.

AIRCRAFT O. K.

American Flier Prepares for Another Busy Day.

By WILLIAM P. CARNEY.

LE BOURGET, May 25. — Captain Charles A. Lindbergh was back in his own sphere today, completely happy as he tinkered with wrenches and drills, working as an ordinary mechanic upon his plane, which has been standing in a hangar here since Saturday when Lindbergh arrived on his epochal flight from New York.

The grinning youth seemed hardly able to restrain himself when he arrived at the hangar this morning to work on his machine. He spurned offers from mechanics of overalls and jumpers and unmindful of his new clothes started immediately climbing over the plane, examining damage done by souvenir nunters and making arrangements for materials and tools with which to repair the plane.

The young flier made no effort to hide his satisfaction at being back in the world of motors and struts and gasoline and oil.

Tires of Receptions.

"I wish I could stay here all day and I wish I could fly a little," Lindbergh said as he started to work.

"My only chance of being alone is to go up on a flight, but unfortunately I cannot do that now because I have too many engagements commencing at noon."

Then Lindbergh outlined his engagements for the day, which include a reception by the chamber of deputies, and there was no doubt left that he has found his life of receptions and honors during the past three days more tiring and more exacting than the 33 hours he spent on his solo flight across the Atlantic.

Foch's Aide On Job.

As Lindbergh, draging a stepladder with him to enable him to reach parts of the plane, worked busily upon the giant machine, French mechanics gathered and stood in their grimy overalls admiring the hero of the hour and remarking upon his intimate knowledge with the mechanical workings of his machine.

Several French mechanics had been assigned to aid Lindbergh, but their admiration exceeded their energy and for the most part they stood by as awe-inspired onlookers while the American boy adjusted and tinkered, apparently tickled to death to do all of the work himself.

Marshal Foch's aide, Captain Hospital, acted as interpreter to Lindbergh, but not with a great deal of success. Lindbergh knew only the English mechanical phrases and Captain Hospital knew only the French phrases, and there was a good deal of laughing, expostulating and sign language going on between Lindbergh and the French mechanics as the American attempted to indicate his wants.

Damage Repaired.

With good humour and apparent willingness to undergo any handicaps as long as he could remain with his machine, Lindbergh stumbled over the little groups that had gathered about in a desire to help him, but who actually impeded his work. Always courteous whenever he alighted from a step-ladder upon the toes of some gaping French mechanic, Lindbergh apologized and there was an exchange of courtesies which would have made the mechanics at Garden City, where there is no mincing of language, gasp with surprise.

Damage done to Lindbergh's machine by souvenir hunters has been repaired. Mechanics have patched up the holes cut in the canvas by the crowds of curious that swarmed into the airdrome Saturday night despite the efforts of the police to keep them out.

A crowd got within the fenced enclosure containing the machine this morning and started cutting strips of canvas from the wings of the plane but they were quickly routed by the guards.

Vaults High Fence.

Lindbergh finished working on his plane at 11:30 and leaving the hangar vaulted a high fence, instead of seeking the gate, much to the enjoyment of the assembled admirers. He then proceeded to visit other hangars on the field and was in his glory inspecting commercial planes and watching mechanics at work on motors. Captain Richard White, naval attache, suggested to Lindbergh that he get into his automobile and drive from hangar to hangar. "You get the car and ride along and pick me up later" answered Lindbergh, which White did.

The young flier admitted that he found the constant receptions very tiring and he feared that today would be an even more tiring day.

When the International News Service correspondent gave the flier a message from his mother in Detroit, saying she was not coming to Paris, Lindbergh smiled and said, "Thank you, I knew that. Please tell her I'll advise her in plenty of time when to go to New York to meet me. I wish I could say right now when I'll go, but I don't know."

The official invitation for Lindbergh to return home by a warship has not been received yet.

Petroleum produced in Venezuela this year would fill nearly 50,000,000 barrels.

One-armed Player Smashes Home Run For School Team

WASHINGTON, May 25.—If Ned Sterling, center fielder on the Leonardtown, Md., prep school team, had two arms he probably would be a second Babe Ruth.

As it is he has only one arm, but he slashed a home run in a game here with Georgetown prep. He also had a single to his credit, and his fielding was brilliant. Leonardtown won, 12 to 7.

Movie Actor Found Guilty of Killing Song-dance Man

LOS ANGELES, May 25.—Paul Kelly, movie juvenile, was found guilty today of manslaughter in the death of Ray Raymond, song and dance man, whom he was charged with killing with his fists. The conviction carries a sentence of from one to ten years' imprisonment.

The jury brought in its verdict at 10:10 a. m., after deliberating nearly 24 hours.

Solon Farrall declared that he did not favor the sale of the lot but if it were to be sold that is was worth $75,000. He said that the property had been purchased for city hall purposes and should be used to that end.

"The lot is worth more than $50,000—let's keep it" was the advice of Councilman Goodballet.

The ordinance was passed on first reading with opposition but was killed when a move to suspend the rules was made, Hughes being the only member to support the measure.

Repealer on Second Reading.

Sale of the lot, owned by the city, opposite the city hospital at a figure not less than $4,000 was authorized. The service-safety director was instructed to advertise for bids and to sell the property to the highest bidder. It is said that an offer has been received by the city from a party who wishes to use the lot as a residence site.

Repealer of ordinance, No. 2061, passed last June, prohibiting the obstruction of streets and alleys, was passed on second reading without a dissenting vote. However, when an attempt was made to suspend the rules in order to put it through on third reading, Kelly and Poole voted "no," blocking the action. Hayes declared the ordinance was a little too drastic and that another measure should be drafted which would eliminate some of the more stringent regulations. Kelly replied that the measure was based on the state law which prohibited obstructions and that the city could gain nothing by removing it from the statute books.

A petition asking for the surfacing of Smithfield street from McKinnon to Orchard Grove avenue, was received. It was signed by persons representing about 75 percent of the abutting property, Service-Safety Director Moore declared. The ordinance committee was instructed to bring in the necessary legislation at the next meeting.

Louis Bleriot, who was the first man to fly across the English channel, entertained Lindbergh at luncheon today. Among the guests were Minister of War Painleve and several other members of the cabinet, Ambassador Herrick and the French aviator, Captain De Letier D' Oisy.

Adolph Zukor, leaving for New York on the S. S. Majestic today, announced that Lindbergh had definitely rejected his offer of a $300,000 motion picture contract. "He told me definitely that he would not accept any theatrical movie offer, but he would consider a commercial offer connected with aviation," said Zukor.

A crowd of more than 500 waited in front of the Bleriot apartment where Lindbergh lunched today, hoping to see him and demanding his appearance on a balcony. The apartment, however, is on a court and Lindbergh could not hear the cheering demands made by his admirers.

Scene Compared To Armistice Days.

The scene in the chamber was one of the most moving since the days of the armistice.

Lindbergh, the boy, spoke and then stood uneasy and shy as General Girod addressed a great tribute to his feat in uniting the hearts of two nations.

Ambassador Herrick was overcome with emotion at the scene and after a brief speech he was forced to return to the embassy and leave Lindbergh to the care of others.

Surmounting his natural shyness and suppressing his dislike for public speaking, Lindbergh arose to the occasion as he arose to the difficulties of flying across the Atlantic—he spoke before the French chamber—an honor extended to but few Americans heretofore.

Addresses French Legislature.

This lad, who a fortnight ago was unknown and who still loves the grime of the hangars and the whirring of motors tearing through space more than adulation, arose and addressed the French legislature, and did it in a manner that would have been a credit to men of greater experience in public life.

"About 150 years ago Ben Franklin was asked what use the free balloon was," said Lindbergh, "and replied, 'what use is a new born babe.'

"Less than 20 years ago Bleriot, your countryman, flew across the English channel and people said, 'what good is this?'

"Today a New-York Paris flight is a fact and they are asking, 'what good is an Atlantic flight?'

"It seems to me that we have served a wonderful purpose in bringing together two peoples and two continents in a friendship that has existed more than 100 years."

Then Lindbergh, the boy, having for the first time since he made his flight admitted his belief that he had actually accomplished something worthy of world attention, withdrew, his short speech being wildly acclaimed but being all too short to suit his listeners.

Earle Foxe and Nancy Nash in "Upstream."

Earle Foxe, popular comedian, has the leading masculine role in "Upstream," a John Ford production for Fox Films, at the Strand theatre, today and tomorrow. Nancy Nash, who had a featured role in "The City," plays opposite Foxe in this comedy-drama of American theatrical life.

The story, a screen version of "The Snake's Wife," written by Wallace Smith, was adapted by Randall H. Faye. The scene is laid in New York and London. The plot centers about the activities of a presumptuous young actor who achieves greatness as a Shakespearean tragedian by virtue of some timely advice given by an older star. Comedy and tragedy are blended in the lives of a group of "professionals" who live in a typical boarding-house in Forty-sixth street.

In addition to Foxe and Miss Nash, the cast includes many well known names.

The list includes Raymond Hitchcock, Emile Chautard, Grant Withers, Judy King, Jane Winton, Lillian Worth, Harry Bailey, Francis Ford, Ted McNamara, Sammy Cohen, Lydia Yeamans Titus and others.

Interior decorators of Europe see a tendency toward the elimination of furniture from homes. They declare that wall-papers of today, with their elaborate panels, of highly colored flowers, are too beautiful to be spoiled by chairs and bookcases. Divans and low tables are all that should be allowed at present, they say.

Youth of the Atlas

BY MARSHALL R. HALL

SYNOPSIS.

LARRY GRENFALL, American traveler and student of Eastern magic, receives a telephone call from

BEN MANSOUR, cosmopolite and old friend, saying he must see him at once. Larry goes and Mansour tells him he is about to die and that he wants him to go to Morocco, where he, Mansour, is a sherif or native ruler. He is to find the Temple, endure the Ordeal, crush the Group and put Mansour's son on the throne. A Moor appears and gives Mansour a token, a ruby ring which Larry later wears. The Moor also throws into the room a tiny ivory tiger—the Striped Deth. Mansour dies and his body disappears—carried off by the Moors. Larry goes to Morocco, finds

OMAR BEN MEDJAD, who dresses him as a wizerd, and as Youssef el-Habbassi he starts on his travels.

Larry demonstrates his gifts as a wizard to a Moor he meets, who proves to be Omar, who has disguised himself to test Larry.

His next adventure is with a Berber outlaw who asks him to read his future. Larry tells him that three days from the present time he will die by the hands of an unknown assassin.

He reaches the market place of Duk el-Abda.

He again encounters Ben Ahmed, who is determined to kill him. Larry is saved by a knife thrown by a strange hand which kills Beni Ahmed as Larry had prophesied. The stranger beckons Larry to follow him.

The stranger proves to be

ALLAL ABDI, son of Mansour.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN.

"Speak not the name, wizard. Even walls, especially Moroccan walls, have ears and sometimes eyes. I know whom you mean for I have talked with him only recently. It was his counsel that set me to spying on Ben Ahmed and following his every move for the one we both know said Beni Ahmed likely would try for your life and that I was to keep near him and protect you if you seemed trapped. The man we speak of was here today. At this minute, however, he is somewhere on the Forbidden Road, traveling south, unless, indeed, he is dead."

"Then if you saw him and talked with him perhaps he left a message for me?" Larry's voice was eager.

"And you go with me, Allal Abdi?"

"I go with you, as one who sits at the feet of wisdom and seeks to learn of the art of wizards. It is for you to say when we start and once we are on the road I have no doubt we shall see and hear strange things. And if dangers should threaten us, wizard, you must use your power to preserve peace for, having been raised quietly and without the opportunities that are given the young of the hills, I am not overly-strong, and it would go ill with me in physical combat, I feel."

"Yet, you threw a knife with marvelous dexterity," Larry reminded him.

"That was because I had to throw it, else see you die, and he whom we both know said that on your survival of all dangers lay the success that which we are fighting to achieve."

"And that," said Larry, "is, in effect, what?"

The boy's eyes widened.

"Verily, you are forgetting your magic if you do not know that it is I whom you are to help to set up as sherif over the Seven Tribes of the Berbers, even as my father would have been had he not been forced to flee, or as I would have been had he died a natural death in his native land and handed down to me his powers; and you should know that in putting me in power you are placing me only where I belong and at the same time you are helping to save civilization in Morocco, for if you succeed in making me the sherif, then you will already have recovered the Sacred Eye."

"I did but speak to test you, beardless one," Larry said, his mind racing. "Full well I know, indeed, that you are the true ruler over the Berbers, over the Seven Tribes of the Alliance; full well I know, also, that the Marabout Group has it in mind to elevate you only long enough to show the people a sherif, and then—" he paused, having no heart to say the words that had came to his mind.

"Slit my throat in the night else tie a silken cord about it or hand me a poison decoction with my couscous," the youth finished calmly. Then:

"Your apparel is most filthy for one of your exalted standing. If you are of a mind to change, there are fresh burnouses here, the one we both know had prepared especially for your use, saying you required many pockets. You are, of course, welcome to what you choose to take."

"I shall accept a clean burnouse and fresh turban gladly, Allal Abdi," Larry said, beginning to cast aside the dirty robes he wore. Allal Adbi ran quickly to a nearby door, pausing only long enough to say:

"I shall be back soon, ready to accompany you on the Forbidden Road; array yourself hastily, and I shall prepare coffee."

The youth disappeared on the words and Larry set about donning clean raiment and disposing of his wizard's paraphernalia beneath his fresh burnouse. He found a stubble of a beard was beginning to turn silky on his chin and sensed that as the days passed he was coming more and more to resemble a true Moor.

Allal Abdi re-appeared shortly after Larry, freshly clad and feeling clean for the first time in days, had placed his last packet beneath his burnouse. The youth bore coffee, cup and cigarets. He poured two cups of the black, aromatic beverage and Larry picked up one, sipping it, the while he drew on his cigaret. And he wondered greatly at Allal Adbi, sipping coffee daintily, much as a bird might have sipped a pool of dew from a lotus leaf.

For Allal Abdi was the first Berber he had ever known who did not smoke!

If the road from Ad Dukkar had been rough, the way south from Duk el-Abda was almost impassable. Towering mountain peaks stalked high toward the blue, blue skies and the road wound circuitously through these, with many a halt and slant that only an agile man, sure of himself, could conquer. No horse nor other beast of burden could possibly have followed the Forbidden Road after it erupted from the south gate of Duk el-Abda, threaded through a narrow, high-walled pass, then headed on into the eternal mountains.

Larry, following in Allal Adbi's agile footsteps and wondering at the stamina the youth displayed, knew that it was roads such as this that had prevented the encroachment of civilization; he knew, also, that unless some event of which none now living had knowledge came to pass it was probable that the far Berber tribes never would be subjugated, but until the very end would pursue their wild, rugged ways, fighting off attacks of all natures.

"Verily, you are forgetting your magic if you do not know that it is I whom you are to help to set up as sherif over the Seven Tribes of the Berbers, even as my father would have been had he not been forced to flee, or as I would have been had he died a natural death in his native land and handed down to me his powers; and you should know that in putting me in power you are placing me only where I belong and at the same time you are helping to save civilization in Morocco, for if you succeed in making me the sherif, then you will already have recovered the Sacred Eye."

"I did but speak to test you, beardless one." Larry said, his mind racing. "Full well I know, indeed, that you are the true ruler over the Berbers, over the Seven Tribes of the Alliance; full well I know, also, that the Marabout Group has it in mind to elevate you only long enough to show the people a sherif, and then—" he paused, having no heart to say the words that had came to his mind.

"Slit my throat in the night else tie a silken cord about it or hand me a poison decoction with my couscous," the youth finished calmly. Then:

"Your apparel is most filthy for one of your exalted standing. If you are of a mind to change, there are fresh burnouses here, the one we both know had prepared especially for your use, saying you required many pockets. You are, of course, welcome to what you choose to take."

"I shall accept a clean burnouse and fresh turban gladly, Allal Abdi," Larry said, beginning to cast aside the dirty robes he wore. Allal Adbi ran quickly to a nearby door, pausing only long enough to say:

"I shall be back soon, ready to accompany you on the Forbidden Road; array yourself hastily, and I shall prepare coffee."

The youth disappeared on the words and Larry set about donning clean raiment and disposing of his wizard's paraphernalia beneath his fresh burnouse. He found a stubble of a beard was beginning to turn silky on his chin and sensed that as the days passed he was coming more and more to resemble a true Moor.

Allal Abdi re-appeared shortly after Larry, freshly clad and feeling clean for the first time in days, had placed his last packet beneath his burnouse. The youth bore coffee, cup and cigarets. He poured two cups of the black, aromatic beverage and Larry picked up one, sipping it, the while he drew on his cigaret. And he wondered greatly at Allal Adbi, sipping coffee daintily, much as a bird might have sipped a pool of dew from a lotus leaf.

For Allal Abdi was the first Berber he had ever known who did not smoke!

If the road from Ad Dukkar had been rough, the way south from Duk el-Abda was almost impassable. Towering mountain peaks stalked high toward the blue, blue skies and the road wound circuitously through these, with many a halt and slant that only an agile man, sure of himself, could conquer. No horse nor other beast of burden could possibly have followed the Forbidden Road after it erupted from the south gate of Duk el-Abda, threaded through a narrow, high-walled pass, then headed on into the eternal mountains.

Larry, following in Allal Adbi's agile footsteps and wondering at the stamina the youth displayed, knew that it was roads such as this that had prevented the encroachment of civilization; he knew, also, that unless some event of which none now living had knowledge came to pass it was probable that the far Berber tribes never would be subjugated, but until the very end would pursue their wild, rugged ways, fighting off attacks of all natures.

Teeth That Gleam

Sweet breath — delightful taste

Here is the way to beautify teeth—the best way science knows. Also the way to spring-like breath, and to hygienic mouth conditions. Some 50 great experts have collaborated to combine in this one dentifrice all they know to help you.

One day of use will amaze and delight you. The glistening teeth, the sweeter breath, the nicer morning taste. You will know at once that Phillips' Dental Magnesia is the tooth paste your folks should employ.

But behind all these quick benefits lies something more important. That is magnesia. Not ordinary magnesia, but Phillips Milk of Magnesia in concentrated form. Dentists have advised this for 50 years for daily use in the mouth.

Magnesia neutralizes acids, the greatest foes of teeth and gums. It penetrates where the acids form, through sugar and starch fermentation. It kills those acids instantly. The use of magnesia protects you night and day from acid attacks.

Use this new-day tooth paste to beautify the teeth, to sweeten the breath, and combat mouth germs. It will do those things in the best ways known. But, above all, it will supply the magnesia to fight acids. That is the greatest reason any dentist knows for the regular use of a tooth paste. Please learn—and now—how much this new day application means to you and yours. You will always be glad that you know it.

A Good Veteran War Story.

The old campaigner was relating his experience during the late war. A fussy old lady was one of his listeners.

"One night just as we woz pulling into Wipers—"

"Ypres," corrected the old lady.

"We was about a mile from Wipers—"

"Ypres," said his listener patiently.

"Ypres," put in the old lady.

Irresistible Beauty

Girls are so lovely when their hair fairly entices you to touch it and stroke its luxurious silkiness. That's why it is no noticeable when this part of one's toilette is neglected. There is such a decided contrast.

It is so easy, too, to keep the hair young, alive with its natural color and so soft it feels like maribou, that there is no reason to deny yourself this daintiest charm.

Two things will do it—your hair brush and Danderine. Get one of the generous 35c bottles of Danderine from your nearest dealer, wet your brush with a few dashes of it, and draw it through your hair clear to the scalp, with long, even strokes until each strang is alive and glowing, free from dandruff and that oily film which only Danderine can remove. It takes just a few minutes. There is nothing greasy about it, and it does not dry out the hair so that you have to use greasy things afterward to bring it back to life.

From then on you will enjoy the thrills which come to all girls who keep themselves good to look at, and you will never let a day go past without using Danderine. More than a million girls have made it a habit. It will help to keep in your waves.

TOM MEIGHAN IN SCREEN HIT

The Ceramic screen is the proud possessor of a first rate melodrama today. "Blind Alleys" presents a new departure for Tom Meighan but one in which he wins new honors. As the title suggests, "Blind Alleys" tells the tale of two people, how they become separated and then, after vainly walking through various "blind alleys" finally find themselves reunited after all seems lost.

Frank Tuttle's latest Paramount productions starts with a colorful Cuban wedding. Handsome young Dan Kirby and his beautiful sweetheart, Maria, are being united in the well known bonds of matrimony. Dan has triumphed over Julio Lachados. The happy couple arrive in New York and catastrophes start failing in their path.

An accident causes Dan to drop out of Maria's life and in the interval she almost loses her mind. Finally, she gets a clue as to his whereabouts and sets out—only to become involved with a gang of thieves who promptly hie her away to an empty shack. Dan leaves his hospital room, loses consciousness and wakes up in a shady boarding house.

Oh and that just starts to tell of the thrills in store. As an example of entertaining melodrama, Author Owen Davis has created a winner in "Blind Alleys." Greta Nissen is the bride and Evelyn Brent the mysterious "other woman."

"But I am perfectly well again," says Mrs. Welling. "Nobody can imagine what I went through with for two years. Every time I ate gas would form in my stomach and press up against my heart until I could harly get my breath.

"My food felt like a big, heavy lump in my stomach. I was so nervous that I couldn't sleep soundly and would get up in the morning all tired out.

"After taking two bottles of Redwood's Tonic I had a good appetite and was able to eat a hearty meal with no trouble following. My nerves improved and I could sleep soundly. Consequently I arose refreshed and my housework didn't seem hard like it was before.

Teeth That Gleam

Sweet breath — delightful taste

Here is the way to beautify teeth—the best way science knows. Also the way to spring-like breath, and to hygienic mouth conditions. Some 50 great experts have collaborated to combine in this one dentifrice all they know to help you.

One day of use will amaze and delight you. The glistening teeth, the sweeter breath, the nicer morning taste. You will know at once that Phillips' Dental Magnesia is the tooth paste your folks should employ.

But behind all these quick benefits lies something more important. That is magnesia. Not ordinary magnesia, but Phillips Milk of Magnesia in concentrated form. Dentists have advised this for 50 years for daily use in the mouth.

Magnesia neutralizes acids, the greatest foes of teeth and gums. It penetrates where the acids form, through sugar and starch fermentation. It kills those acids instantly. The use of magnesia protects you night and day from acid attacks.

Use this new-day tooth paste to beautify the teeth, to sweeten the breath, and combat mouth germs. It will do those things in the best ways known. But, above all, it will supply the magnesia to fight acids. That is the greatest reason any dentist knows for the regular use of a tooth paste. Please learn—and now—how much this new day application means to you and yours. You will always be glad that you know it.

Five in One

Its 15 ingredients combine in one tooth paste these five important helps:

Antacids Cleansers
Antiseptics Polishers
Breath Deodorants

DINNER STORIES.

A Serious Drawback.

"Do you know that Clementine is two-thirds married?"

"How's that?"

Only a Few Left.

"I have a rare old victrola. It was once in the possession of George Washington."

"But there were no such things as victrolas in Washington's time."

"I know. That's what makes it so rare."

A Good Veteran War Story.

The old campaigner was relating his experience during the late war. A fussy old lady was one of his listeners.

"One night just as we wuz pulling into Wipers—"

"Ypres," corrected the old lady.

"We was about a mile from Wipers—"

"Ypres," said his listener patiently.

"Ypres," put in the old lady.

Irresistible Beauty

Girls are so lovely when their hair fairly entices you to touch it and stroke its luxurious silkiness. That's why it is no noticeable when this part of one's toilette is neglected. There is such a decided contrast.

It is so easy, too, to keep the hair young, alive with its natural color and so soft it feels like maribou, that there is no reason to deny yourself this daintiest charm.

Two things will do it—your hair brush and Danderine. Get one of the generous 35c bottles of Danderine from your nearest dealer, wet your brush with a few dashes of it, and draw it through your hair clear to the scalp, with long, even strokes until each strang is alive and glowing, free from dandruff and that oily film which only Danderine can remove. It takes just a few minutes. There is nothing greasy about it, and it does not dry out the hair so that you have to use greasy things afterward to bring it back to life.

From then on you will enjoy the thrills which come to all girls who keep themselves good to look at, and you will never let a day go past without using Danderine. More than a million girls have made it a habit. It will help to keep in your waves.

TOM MEIGHAN IN SCREEN HIT

The Ceramic screen is the proud possessor of a first rate melodrama today. "Blind Alleys" presents a new departure for Tom Meighan but one in which he wins new honors. As the title suggests, "Blind Alleys" tells the tale of two people, how they become separated and then, after vainly walking through various "blind alleys" finally find themselves reunited after all seems lost.

Frank Tuttle's latest Paramount productions starts with a colorful Cuban wedding. Handsome young Dan Kirby and his beautiful sweetheart, Maria, are being united in the well known bonds of matrimony. Dan has triumphed over Julio Lachados. The happy couple arrive in New York and catastrophes start failing in their path.

An accident causes Dan to drop out of Maria's life and in the interval she almost loses her mind. Finally, she gets a clue as to his whereabouts and sets out—only to become involved with a gang of thieves who promptly hie her away to an empty shack. Dan leaves his hospital room, loses consciousness and wakes up in a shady boarding house.

Oh and that just starts to tell of the thrills in store. As an example of entertaining melodrama, Author Owen Davis has created a winner in "Blind Alleys." Greta Nissen is the bride and Evelyn Brent the mysterious "other woman."

AFTER TWO YEARS OF ILLNESS THIS WOMAN IS Wwell

She credits Redwood's Tonic with Restoring Her Health.

Two years is a long time to suffer with stomach and bowel troubles especially when you have cramps after every meal, accompanied by headaches and dizzy spells. That was the case with Mrs. Elizabeth Welling, 476 Cleveland Road, Cleveland, Ohio, before she took Redwood's Tonic.

Redwood.

"But I am perfectly well again," says Mrs. Welling. "Nobody can imagine what I went through with for two years. Every time I ate gas would form in my stomach and press up against my heart until I could harly get my breath.

"My food felt like a big, heavy lump in my stomach. I was so nervous that I couldn't sleep soundly and would get up in the morning all tired out.

"After taking two bottles of Redwood's Tonic I had a good appetite and was able to eat a hearty meal with no trouble following. My nerves improved and I could sleep soundly. Consequently I arose refreshed and my housework didn't seem hard like it was before.

Unkept Hands Spoil Entire Effect

Every woman should have soft, white, youthful hands to complete the picture of daintiness expected of her.

While eating, dancing, playing cards, in fact, whatever you do, your hands are noticed as much as your complexion. You can't neglect them without spoiling the impression you make by being well groomed in every other detail

The easiest way to keep your hands soft, white and firm is to massage them with the dainty lotion you can make by simply squeezing the juice of two lemons into a bottle of Orchard White, which you can get from your nearest dealer. It clears and refines the skin, making toil-worn and stained hands look like a queen's.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

PROHIBITION QUESTIONNAIRE OF DOCTORS EXPECTED TO DIE

WASHINGTON, May 25.—As usual when wets and drys get to arguing, nobody knows who had the better of the prohibition debate at the American Medical Association convention, the biggest physicians' gathering in the country's history, which ended here a few days ago.

The m. d.'s evidently were as deathly afraid of the subject as politicians are.

They were perfectly willing to discuss everything else in public. They talked that over in whispers, behind locked doors. There weren't any leaks worth mentioning, either. Docs are trained to keep their traps shut.

All other questions were considered in the cold light of science.

It's rumored that that one generated plenty of heat — none the less so from the fact that the medicos had to keep it bottled up.

THE best information is that the disciples of Aesculapius were split every which way, like most of the rest of us, and if prohibition came to a referendum among them, one man's guess is as good as another's as to how it would pan out.

A few medical Nicholas Murray Butlers did yell for a showdown, and managed to get before the convention a questionnaire which it was proposed to send to every doc in the United States, asking him straight out, in substance:

"Do you believe alcohol has any medicinal value?—yes or no."

HOWEVER, this proposition wasn't acted on on the convention floor.

The questionnaire was referred to the trustees, to be treated as they think best, whenever they get around to it.

They'll decide an operation is what that questionnaire needs.

The operation will be a success, but unfortunately the patient will croak—that is to say, the questionnaire.

That's a safe bet.

Just how many wet, as compared with just how many dry, members it has plainly is one of the things the American Medical Association is particularly anxious not to find out.

THE docs did, indeed, decide that congress and state legislatures have no business telling them what to prescribe or not to prescribe, or how much or little of anything to prescribe, for their patients.

Removal of legal restrictions of this sort was one of the association's demands.

I HAVE it on the best authority that this declaration was intended neither as a pro-wet expression of opinion nor as an anti-dry jab.

The docs simply mean to say that they claim the privilege of prescribing anything, from bread pills to rat poison, without consulting a human being on earth who can't write "m. d." after his name.

Another sign of mechanical progress is that pedestrians have to be mended oftener than automobiles.—Coshocton Tribune.

That's a safe bet.

Just how many wet, as compared with just how many dry, members it has plainly is one of the things the American Medical Association is particularly anxious not to find out.

THE docs did, indeed, decide that congress and state legislatures have no business telling them what to prescribe or not to prescribe, or how much or little of anything to prescribe, for their patients.

I HAVE it on the best authority that this declaration was intended neither as a pro-wet expression of opinion nor as an anti-dry jab.

The docs simply mean to say that they claim the privilege of prescribing anything, from bread pills to rat poison, without consulting a human being on earth who can't write "m. d." after his name.

Another sign of mechanical progress is that pedestrians have to be mended oftener than automobiles.—Coshocton Tribune.

Only Choicest of Creams and Candies are Sold By Paradise Confectionery

Home Made Products Contribute to Rapid Growth of Diamond Establishment; Appointments and Equipment Always Kept to High Standard.

Cleanliness in appointments and the handling of products, courtesy that never wears out, the most modern of equipment and quarters, and quality in their candies, ice cream and confections that never deviates from its high standard of perfection combine to place the Paradise Confectionery among the front rank of establishments of its kind in this district.

This high plane has been reached following 16 years of business activity in the Diamond, directed by George Conton and Christopher Spirakis, the proprietors.

Alive to every feature that would serve to better and quicken the manufacture of ice cream, one of their principal products, which is made in the commodious kitchen of their quarters in the rear of the first floor, they operate a refrigeration plant by which cream is automatically frozen without packing and their needed ice produced by it. No labor, save the mixing of the cream, is necessary to complete it.

Pasteurized cream only is used in the manufacture of the ice cream which the Paradise makes and serves; milk, used for the various drinks on their soda fountain menu, also is pasteurized. Flavors for the different kinds of ice cream made are of the best obtainable and include a wide range of the wholesome fruit juices that are used for the purpose.

The Paradise boasts an excellent and constantly growing trade in candy, a considerable amount of which is made by its own candy makers in the kitchen on the first floor. Chocolates and bonbons are made in quantities and during the holidays the hand stick variety is also produced by means of special machinery designed for the purpose.

Always on hand to supplement this large stock of home-made candy is a supply of the best makes of assorted chocolates and candies that can be procured in outside markets.

For the demands of discriminating cigar and tobacco users the leading brands of cigars and all grades of tobaccos are maintained, a sufficient variety being followed to cater to all tastes.

The business and sales operations of the Paradise are conducted in a large room 100 by 25 feet and these quarters it must be said, are always spotless and inviting, clean and kept constantly in a high state of sanitation.

At frequent periods, the large room has been given thorough cleanings and overhaulings.

The Paradise's quarters also cater to the customer's demands for beauty as well as other qualities. The walls are mirrored all the way around in the table serving section, topping sections of white vitrolized glass the whole underlaid by black gray Italian marble.

In addition to the serving tables in the center of the room, attractive booths line the walls, of mahogany finish, providing cozy and comfortable nooks in which the customer can while away a pleasurable few minutes.

The soda fountain in the front of the room, adjoining the cigar counter, is as modern as they make them and over its clean white top is dispensed almost every known soda and soft drink.

Victrola music is always available to add to the attractiveness of a visit to the ice cream parlors.

Ever courteous, accomodating and with a purpose of contributing pure confections to the public the owners of the Paradise Confectionery have built a clientele that includes the best residents of the city and surrounding district. To have made a purchase at the Paradise is a guarantee of satisfaction which, naturally, prompts additional frequent visits.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED

Report Dempsey Will Ask $450,000 for Bout With Sharkey

SCRAP MAY NET AROUND $1,200,000

By Davis J. Walsh.

This was the comment Jack Dempsey wired east today from the mountain fastness of his training camp on the matter of Jack Sharkey's impressive knockout of Jimmy Maloney. He didn't say it was a great thing for himself because that was unnecessary. Dempsey wants $450,000 for meeting the man who beat the man who didn't win.

Rickard probably isn't aware of the situation but the fact of the matter is that Dempsey's price went up as Maloney went down. Miss Taylor's husband was ready to go for the Paulino shot for a mere stipend like $300,000 but a Dempsey-Sharkey bout figures to gross about $1,200,000 and Dempsey will have to be declared in rather heavily or they will have to get another first baseman to throw at.

You see, the boy was born of poor but honest parents and it's been a hard life. They told him the first million was the hardest but they didn't say anything about the other three. It was this oversight that has kept him a poor man. All he has is the first million, or at least, that is the common impression. However, the writer has heard rumors that Dempsey's announced come back is the result of financial stress but how he got that way so quickly after collecting $750,000 in Philadelphia last September was not explained nor is it likely to be.

Dempsey's message contained a denial that he had said Sharkey would knock Tunney out, this item being mentioned merely in line with the policy of keeping the record straight. Within the last year, he has denied everything except that Tunney won the last fight.

As to his financial program, which will be transmitted to Rickard within a week, Dempsey will make no demand that deals in sordid dollars. He will ask for a percentage and I understand that it will be 37 1-2, the cut usually allowed a champion in title fights. In this way, he will get his $450,000 if the gate runs up to $1,200,000 and I don't see how it can miss.

Meantime, any belief that Sharkey will start for less than $250,000 is open to doubt; so Rickard may have to do a lot of slick city talking to close this one. He has Sharkey tied up on one of those blanket contracts for so many fights but it says nothing about so many dollars and that is where the boys may become pestiferous, now that they are up in the chips. It may or may not be significant that Sharkey declined to talk terms the day after the Maloney fight.

All of this, of course, is taking a lot for granted about Dempsey who may change his mind a thousand times between now and August. The ordinary man doesn't change his collar more often. However, a lot of critical money is there and one may be pardoned for suspecting that, that being the case, Dempsey will be there, too.

The spring of the year used to be the time for the appearance of Bock beer and sassafras tea. Well, we still have the sassafras tea.—News Republican, Kenton.

MEADOWS REGISTERS SIXTH WIN

Veteran Right Hander Holds Reds to 3 Hits.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 25.—As the Pittsburgh Pirates continue to ride roughshod over their rivals in the National league pennant race, their one best bet is Lee Meadows, veteran right hander. The bespectacled gentleman from North Carolina held the Reds to three hits yesterday, winning, 11 to 1, and turning in one of the finest performances of his 12 year career in the majors.

Meadows has yet to be beaten this season and has accounted for six of Pittsburgh's 19 victories. He shared honors yesterday with Pie Traynor, who pounded out four hits in one game for the second time within a week. The execution would have been worse if the Reds had not engineered a triple play, the first of the season.

The Cincinnati team has gone on the rocks again after a short winning spurt and the depression in the frankfurter colony is terrible. The fans are hammering out the anvil chorus again and some of the good burghers are even clamoring for the scalp of Manager Jack Hendricks.

Detroit knocked George Uhle out of the box and downed Cleveland, 6 to 3, taking sixth place away from the Indians. Manush hit a homer.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia staged another slugging match and when the last towel was lifted the Robins were found to be leading, 6 to 5. The relief pitching of Father Bill Doak featured.

BULGERS DOWN NEWELL, 5 TO 4, IN 11 INNINGS

Clash Breaks Triple Tie Among Review-Tribune Recreation Loop Leaders; Finish Game in Rain.

Over 200 of the innumerable district fans who have taken a liking to recreation league ball turned out last night at Newell for the clash between the Bulger Drugs and the Laughlin club and, despite a downpour of rain, stuck until the eleventh inning as the Bulgers finished with a 5 to 4 victory in one of the greatest games of the league to date..

Bulgers' victory breaks the triple tie for first place and leaves the Drugs and Heimies on the top of the crowd. The league and its followers in general are looking forward to the first meeting of these two rivals which is scheduled for June 7.

The Drugs took the lead in the first inning by scoring two runs. They turned in another in the seventh and then Laughlin came through to knot the count with a trio of counters in the eighth.

Both went scoreless in the ninth and goose eggs were handed out in the tenth. In the first of the eleventh, however, the visitors crossed the plate twice and Laughlin came within an ace of tying it up again when one Newell run was scored in the last half of the final frame.

Green was on the mound for the pharmacy outfit while Timberlake beaved the horsehide for the Potters. Greene gave up 10 blows and Timberlake 14.

L. Reese, who worked at first in the absence of his brother, Earl, fitted right into the position. Art Smith was the big sticker with four blows in six times up. He also had seven putouts in left where he was stationed in the absence of Paul White, the regular gardener. Cubberly at short for Laughlin contributed several sensational one-handed stops.

Wise, with three home runs, was the clouting star while Smith, Clark and Werkheiser each had three blows. Hancock kept Laughlin's 10 hits well scattered.

CITY LOOP LEADERS IN TWO GAMES

Contests Billed Thursday at Chester and Newell.

Two engagements are scheduled in the City Industrial League on Thursday, both involving the three contenders who are leading the race at this particular stage.

Turk Nash will play at Chester and the American Billiards at Laughlin.

Should Laughlin and Turk Nash win, the two teams, now tied for second place, would have another tie in first place, with Chester dropping a couple of notches.

But if Chester wins, the Riley nine will have a two-game lead in front of the others while Turk Nash would go to third place if Laughlin wins or be tied if the Newell club should meet defeat.

Rain completely washed out the American Billiards and Turk Nash last night at Columbian park while Chester and Wellsville played two innings at Wellsville, most of the second frame being staged in a rain.

A downpour at 5 o'clock nearly covered Columbian park, although there was only a slight drizzle downtown.

Chester was leading, 6 to 2, as hostilities terminated in Wellsville.

Both games will be postponed to date agreed upon by managers.

It's much easier now for a wife to poison her husband than it used to be, because nine times out of ten it will be blamed on the home brew.—Kenton News Republican.

Flag Fight Just Starting for Nats; Johnson is Ready

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The real pennant fight in the American league, as capital fans figure it, starts Friday.

True, the season has been running some weeks but not so far as Washington is concerned. Walter Johnson has been out of the game with a broken leg. He makes his 1927 debut in New York in the series starting Friday and Washington fandom expects the result to be electrical.

"Big Barney" started his first game of the season yesterday, an exhibition against Baltimore, and won handily, 5 to 2.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TILT POSTPONED

Contest between the Lutherans and the Methodist Protestants of the Sunday school softball league, scheduled for last night at Newell, was postponed until a later date, league officials announced today.

The Christians and the Second Presbyterians are scheduled to play tomorrow night on the Second street playground lot.

INFIELDER IN NEW ROLE

Grimm May Pitch Against Salineville Saturday.

Joseph Dickey, business manager of the Laughlin, Newell, City Industrial league club, today announced completion of arrangements for the first "outside" clash of the season Saturday afternoon at Newell.

Pilot Dailey's squad is scheduled to tackle the Salineville Independents, beginning at 3:45 o'clock.

Club officials announced that Second Baseman Grimm, who has been playing a great game for the Newell contenders at the hot corner, will take a try at flinging against the Salineville aggregation. It will be Grimm's first appearance on the mound here.

Grimm, or in the event that Burris may start, will be caught by Earl Potts, former Chester backstop.

BULGERS DOWN NEWELL, 5 TO 4, IN 11 INNINGS

Over 200 of the innumerable district fans who have taken a liking to recreation league ball turned out last night at Newell for the clash between the Bulger Drugs and the Laughlin club and, despite a downpour of rain, stuck until the eleventh inning as the Bulgers finished with a 5 to 4 victory in one of the greatest games of the league to date..

Bulgers' victory breaks the triple tie for first place and leaves the Drugs and Heimies on the top of the crowd. The league and its followers in general are looking forward to the first meeting of these two rivals which is scheduled for June 7.

The Drugs took the lead in the first inning by scoring two runs. They turned in another in the seventh and then Laughlin came through to knot the count with a trio of counters in the eighth.

Both went scoreless in the ninth and goose eggs were handed out in the tenth. In the first of the eleventh, however, the visitors crossed the plate twice and Laughlin came within an ace of tying it up again when one Newell run was scored in the last half of the final frame.

Green was on the mound for the pharmacy outfit while Timberlake heaved the horsehide for the Potters. Greene gave up 10 blows and Timberlake 14.

L. Reese, who worked at first in the absence of his brother, Earl, fitted right into the position. Art Smith was the big sticker with four blows in six times up. He also had seven putouts in left where he was stationed in the absence of Paul White, the regular gardener. Cubberly at short for Laughlin contributed several sensational one-handed stops.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The real pennant fight in the American league, as capital fans figure it, starts Friday.

True, the season has been running some weeks but not so far as Washington is concerned. Walter Johnson has been out of the game with a broken leg. He makes his 1927 debut in New York in the series starting Friday and Washington fandom expects the result to be electrical.

"Big Barney" started his first game of the season yesterday, an exhibition against Baltimore, and won handily, 5 to 2.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TILT POSTPONED

Contest between the Lutherans and the Methodist Protestants of the Sunday school softball league, scheduled for last night at Newell, was postponed until a later date, league officials announced today.

CITY LOOP LEADERS IN TWO GAMES

Contests Billed Thursday at Chester and Newell.

Two engagements are scheduled in the City Industrial League on Thursday, both involving the three contenders who are leading the race at this particular stage.

Turk Nash will play at Chester and the American Billiards at Laughlin.

Should Laughlin and Turk Nash win, the two teams, now tied for second place, would have another tie in first place, with Chester dropping a couple of notches.

But if Chester wins, the Riley nine will have a two-game lead in front of the others while Turk Nash would go to third place if Laughlin wins or be tied if the Newell club should meet defeat.

Rain completely washed out the American Billiards and Turk Nash last night at Columbian park while Chester and Wellsville played two innings at Wellsville, most of the second frame being staged in a rain.

A downpour at 5 o'clock nearly covered Columbian park, although there was only a slight drizzle downtown.

Chester was leading, 6 to 2, as hostilities terminated in Wellsville.

Both games will be postponed to date agreed upon by managers.

Report Dempsey Will Ask $450,000 for Bout With Sharkey

SCRAP MAY NET AROUND $1,200,000

By Davis J. Walsh.

This was the comment Jack Dempsey wired east today from the mountain fastness of his training camp on the matter of Jack Sharkey's impressive knockout of Jimmy Maloney. He didn't say it was a great thing for himself because that was unnecessary. Dempsey wants $450,000 for meeting the man who beat the man who didn't win.

Rickard probably isn't aware of the situation but the fact of the matter is that Dempsey's price went up as Maloney went down. Miss Taylor's husband was ready to go for the Paulino shot for a mere stipend like $300,000 but a Dempsey-Sharkey bout figures to gross about $1,200,000 and Dempsey will have to be declared in rather heavily or they will have to get another first baseman to throw at.

You see, the boy was born of poor but honest parents and it's been a hard life. They told him the first million was the hardest but they didn't say anything about the other three. It was this oversight that has kept him a poor man. All he has is the first million, or at least, that is the common impression. However, the writer has heard rumors that Dempsey's announced come back is the result of financial stress but how he got that way so quickly after collecting $750,000 in Philadelphia last September was not explained nor is it likely to be.

Dempsey's message contained a denial that he had said Sharkey would knock Tunney out, this item being mentioned merely in line with the policy of keeping the record straight. Within the last year, he has denied everything except that Tunney won the last fight.

As to his financial program, which will be transmitted to Rickard within a week, Dempsey will make no demand that deals in sordid dollars. He will ask for a percentage and I understand that it will be 37 1-2, the cut usually allowed a champion in title fights. In this way, he will get his $450,000 if the gate runs up to $1,200,000 and I don't see how it can miss.

Meantime, any belief that Sharkey will start for less than $250,000 is open to doubt; so Rickard may have to do a lot of slick city talking to close this one. He has Sharkey tied up on one of those blanket contracts for so many fights but it says nothing about so many dollars and that is where the boys may become pestiferous, now that they are up in the chips. It may or may not be significant that Sharkey declined to talk terms the day after the Maloney fight.

All of this, of course, is taking a lot for granted about Dempsey who may change his mind a thousand times between now and August. The ordinary man doesn't change his collar more often. However, a lot of critical money is there and one may be pardoned for suspecting that, that being the case, Dempsey will be there, too.

The spring of the year used to be the time for the appearance of Bock beer and sassafras tea. Well, we still have the sassafras tea.—News Republican, Kenton.

MEADOWS REGISTERS SIXTH WIN

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 25.—As the Pittsburgh Pirates continue to ride roughshod over their rivals in the National league pennant race, their one best bet is Lee Meadows, veteran right hander. The bespectacled gentleman from North Carolina held the Reds to three hits yesterday, winning, 11 to 1, and turning in one of the finest performances of his 12 year career in the majors.

Meadows has yet to be beaten this season and has accounted for six of Fittsburgh's 19 victories. He shared honors yesterday with Pie Traynor, who pounded out four hits in one game for the second time within a week. The execution would have been worse if the Reds had not engineered a triple play, the first of the season.

The Cincinnati team has gone on the rocks again after a short winning spurt and the depression in the frankfurter colony is terrible. The fans are hammering out the anvil chorus again and some of the good burghers are even clamoring for the scalp of Manager Jack Hendricks.

Detroit knocked George Uhle out of the box and downed Cleveland, 6 to 3, taking sixth place away from the Indians. Manush hit a homer.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia staged another slugging match and when the last towel was lifted the Robins were found to be leading, 6 to 5. The relief pitching of Father Bill Doak featured.

imprisonment, or by withholding executive clemency he may let them go to the chair.

History of Crime and Case.

In 1920 a paymaster and guard carrying $15,000 to a shoe factory in South Braintree, Mass., were held up in broad daylight on the street, murdered and robbed by bandits who made their escape in an automobile. Some three weeks later, Vanzetti, the fish peddler, and Sacco, a shoe-factory worker, both Italians, aliens, and anarchists, were arrested on suspicion.

On July 14, 1921, after a trial before a jury in the court of Judge Webster Thayer, in Dedham, they were found guilty of murder in the first degree on evidence which the judge himself declared to be circumstantial.

Numerous petitions for a new trial were denied, the final adverse decision coming from the Supreme Court of the State, but every legal expedient available to men fighting for their lives was restored to, and such are the processes of justice in this country that it was not until April 9 of this year, almost six years after the conviction, that Vanzetti and Sacco were brought before Judge Thayer and sentenced to death.

Immediately following their conviction, Vanzetti and Sacco became international characters. Through channels of communication of which the average citizen knows nothing the word went forth to radicals all over the world that the men had been found guilty because they were anarchists and not because they had been proved guilty of the crime charged against them, that the jury had been composed wholly of conservatives, that public sentiment at the time had been running high against radicals and radicalism, and that Judge Thayer had been so prejudiced that the men could not have a fair trial. This resulted in a world-wide movement in their behalf.

Last year, after the Massachusetts Supreme Court denied Vanzetti and Sacco a new trial, United States embassies and legations in France, Switzerland, Argentina and Uruguay were attacked or threatened by "red" sympathizers of the defendants, and there were hostile demonstrations against our diplomatic and consular officials at Copenhagen, Sofia, Havana, Lima, Tampico, and elsewhere.

Following the death sentence of the anarchists protests and appeals from this country, from Europe, from South America, and from Japan began pouring in upon Governor Fuller and he has been subjected to a flood comparable with that in the Mississippi valley. One appeal was signed by 20 members of the British praliament. Another came in the name of 500,000 German "reds" and some one assumed to speak for "seven million workers organized in the labor and Socialist internationale."

Evidence Never Reviewed.

It is asserted by men and newspapers in this country who are neither "reds" nor "red" sympathizers that the evidence upon which Vanzetti and Sacco were convicted in Judge Thayer's court has never been reviewed by any other tribunal, that legal technicalities have prevented the submission and consideration of new evidence that would acquit the men or at least create more than a reason doubt as to their guilt, and that if they die they will be the victims of judicial murder.

News papers such as the Boston Herald, Springfield Republican, New York World, Hartford Times, Baltimore Sun, New Haven Journal, Cleveland Press, and Brooklyn Eagle have questioned the guilt of the condemned men, criticised the nature of their trial and conviction, or urged executive interference in view of all the circumstances surounding the case.

A Harvard professor, William E. Hocking, says that the case reveals "the incredible, the essentially disgraceful situation that men may be sent to their death in Massachusetts because the courts refuse to hear relevant evidence." Prof. Felix Frankfurter, also of Harvard, says, in substance, that the men were convicted primarily because they were radical aliens and draft dodgers, and tried at a time when anti-red agitation was at its height; that they had no previous criminal record; that witnesses who undertook to identify them as the murderers were contradictory and inconclusive; that the men had alibis supported by reputable witnesses; and that a new trial was called for by new evidence unearthed which included a gangster's confession that his gang committed the crime.

Not the least amazing feature of the case is the 5,000 word petition written by Vanzetti and addressed to Governor Fuller in which he reviewed the trial and the evidence and said that he was not asking for a pardon nor for mercy, but for justice, and urged the governor "publicly to investigate all the facts of our case and to set us free from that sentence if the findings will so dictate to your understanding and conscience."

He also said that he and Sacco were willing to die for their cause, "but not for the low and sordid South Braintree crime."

Sacco declined to sign this petition, saying that to do so would be inconsistent with his principles as an anarchist.

Whether Vanzetti and Sacco are executed, it is freely predicted that the near future will see changes made in the procedure in criminal cases in the State of Massachusetts.

It is easy to acquire a reputation, but it takes a lot of hard work to make a good one. — Martin's Ferry Times.

History of Crime and Case.

In 1920 a paymaster and guard carrying $15,000 to a shoe factory in South Braintree, Mass., were held up in broad daylight on the street, murdered and robbed by bandits who made their escape in an automobile. Some three weeks later, Vanzetti, the fish peddler, and Sacco, a shoe-factory worker, both Italians, aliens, and anarchists, were arrested on suspicion.

On July 14, 1921, after a trial before a jury in the court of Judge Webster Thayer, in Dedham, they were found guilty of murder in the first degree on evidence which the judge himself declared to be circumstantial.

Numerous petitions for a new trial were denied, the final adverse decision coming from the Supreme Court of the State, but every legal expedient available to men fighting for their lives was restored to, and such are the processes of justice in this country that it was not until April 9 of this year, almost six years after the conviction, that Vanzetti and Sacco were brought before Judge Thayer and sentenced to death.

Immediately following their conviction, Vanzetti and Sacco became international characters. Through channels of communication of which the average citizen knows nothing the word went forth to radicals all over the world that the men had been found guilty because they were anarchists and not because they had been proved guilty of the crime charged against them, that the jury had been composed wholly of conservatives, that public sentiment at the time had been running high against radicals and radicalism, and that Judge Thayer had been so prejudiced that the men could not have a fair trial. This resulted in a world-wide movement in their behalf.

Last year, after the Massachusetts Supreme Court denied Vanzetti and Sacco a new trial, United States embassies and legations in France, Switzerland, Argentina and Uruguay were attacked or threatened by "red" sympathizers of the defendants, and there were hostile demonstrations against our diplomatic and consular officials at Copenhagen, Sofia, Havana, Lima, Tampico, and elsewhere.

Following the death sentence of the anarchists protests and appeals from this country, from Europe, from South America, and from Japan began pouring in upon Governor Fuller and he has been subjected to a flood comparable with that in the Mississippi valley. One appeal was signed by 20 members of the British praliament. Another came in the name of 500,000 German "reds" and some one assumed to speak for "seven million workers organized in the labor and Socialist internationale."

Evidence Never Reviewed.

It is asserted by men and newspapers in this country who are neither "reds" nor "red" sympathizers that the evidence upon which Vanzetti and Sacco were convicted in Judge Thayer's court has never been reviewed by any other tribunal, that legal technicalities have prevented the submission and consideration of new evidence that would acquit the men or at least create more than a reason doubt as to their guilt, and that if they die they will be the victims of judicial murder.

News papers such as the Boston Herald, Springfield Republican, New York World, Hartford Times, Baltimore Sun, New Haven Journal, Cleveland Press, and Brooklyn Eagle have questioned the guilt of the condemned men, criticised the nature of their trial and conviction, or urged executive interference in view of all the circumstances surounding the case.

A Harvard professor, William E. Hocking, says that the case reveals "the incredible, the essentially disgraceful situation that men may be sent to their death in Massachusetts because the courts refuse to hear relevant evidence." Prof. Felix Frankfurter, also of Harvard, says, in substance, that the men were convicted primarily because they were radical aliens and draft dodgers, and tried at a time when anti-red agitation was at its height; that they had no previous criminal record; that witnesses who undertook to identify them as the murderers were contradictory and inconclusive; that the men had alibis supported by reputable witnesses; and that a new trial was called for by new evidence unearthed which included a gangster's confession that his gang committed the crime.

Not the least amazing feature of the case is the 5,000 word petition written by Vanzetti and addressed to Governor Fuller in which he reviewed the trial and the evidence and said that he was not asking for a pardon nor for mercy, but for justice, and urged the governer "publicly to investigate all the facts of our case and to set us free from that sentence if the findings will so dictate to your understanding and conscience."

He also said that he and Sacco were willing to die for their cause, "but not for the low and sordid South Braintree crime."

Sacco declined to sign this petition, saying that to do so would be inconsistent with his principles as an anarchist.

Whether Vanzetti and Sacco are executed, it is freely predicted that the near future will see changes made in the procedure in criminal cases in the State of Massachusetts.

It is easy to acquire a reputation, but it takes a lot of hard work to make a good one. — Martin's Ferry Times.

imprisonment, or by withholding executive clemency he may let them go to the chair.

History of Crime and Case.

In 1920 a paymaster and guard carrying $15,000 to a shoe factory in South Braintree, Mass., were held up in broad daylight on the street, murdered and robbed by bandits who made their escape in an automobile. Some three weeks later, Vanzetti, the fish pedler, and Sacco, a shoe-factory worker, both Italians, aliens, and anarchists, were arrested on suspicion.

On July 14, 1921, after a trial before a jury in the court of Judge Webster Thayer, in Dedham, they were found guilty of murder in the first degree on evidence which the judge himself declared to be circumstantial.

Numerous petitions for a new trial were denied, the final adverse decision coming from the Supreme Court of the State, but every legal expedient available to men fighting for their lives was restored to, and such are the processes of justice in this country that it was not until April 9 of this year, almost six years after the conviction, that Vanzetti and Sacco were brought before Judge Thayer and sentenced to death.

Immediately following their conviction, Vanzetti and Sacco became international characters. Through channels of communication of which the average citizen knows nothing the word went forth to radicals all over the world that the men had been found guilty because they were anarchists and not because they had been proved guilty of the crime charged against them, that the jury had been composed wholly of conservatives, that public sentiment at the time had been running high against radicals and radicalism, and that Judge Thayer had been so prejudiced that the men could not have a fair trial. This resulted in a world-wide movement in their behalf.

Last year, after the Massachusetts Supreme Court denied Vanzetti and Sacco a new trial, United States embassies and legations in France, Switzerland, Argentina and Uruguay were attacked or threatened by "red" sympathizers of the defendants, and there were hostile demonstrations against our diplomatic and consular officials at Copenhagen, Sofia, Havana, Lima, Tampico, and elsewhere.

Following the death sentence of the anarchists protests and appeals from this country, from Europe, from South America, and from Japan began pouring in upon Governor Fuller and he has been subjected to a flood comparable with that in the Mississippi valley. One appeal was signed by 20 members of the British praliament. Another came in the name of 500,000 German "reds" and some one assumed to speak for "seven million workers organized in the labor and Socialist in ternationale."

Evidence Never Reviewed.

It is asserted by men and newspapers in this country who are neither "reds" nor "red" sympathizers that the evidence upon which Vanzetti and Sacco were convicted in Judge Thayer's court has never been reviewed by any other tribunal, that legal technicalities have prevented the submission and consideration of new evidence that would acquit the men or at least create more than a reason doubt as to their guilt, and that if they die they will be the victims of judicial murder.

News papers such as the Boston Herald, Springfield Republican, New York World, Hartford Times, Baltimore Sun, New Haven Journal, Cleveland Press, and Brooklyn Eagle have questioned the guilt of the condemned men, criticised the nature of their trial and conviction, or urged executive interference in view of all the circumstances surounding the case.

A Harvard professor, William F. Hocking, says that the case reveals "the incredible, the essentially disgraceful situation that men may be sent to their death in Massachusetts because the courts refuse to hear relevant evidence." Prof. Felix Frankfurter, also of Harvard, says, in substance, that the men were convicted primarily because they were radical aliens and draft dodgers, and tried at a time when anti-red agitation was at its height; that they had no previous criminal record; that witnesses who undertook to identify them as the murderers were contradictory and inconclusive; that the men had alibis supported by reputable witnesses; and that a new trial was called for by new evidence unearthed which included a gangster's confession that his gang committed the crime.

Not the least amazing feature of the case is the 5,000 word petition written by Vanzetti and addressed to Governor Fuller in which he reviewed the trial and the evidence and said that he was not asking for a pardon nor for mercy, but for justice, and urged the governer "publicly to investigate all the facts of our case and to set us free from that sentence if the findings will so dictate to your understanding and conscience."

He also said that he and Sacco were willing to die for their cause, "but not for the low and sordid South Braintree crime."

Sacco declined to sign this petition, saying that to do so would be inconsistent with his principles as an anarchist.

Whether Vanzetti and Sacco are executed, it is freely predicted that the near future will see changes made in the procedure in criminal cases in the State of Massachusetts.

It is easy to acquire a reputation, but it takes a lot of hard work to make a good one. — Martin's Ferry Times.

HOME TRUSTEES SUBMIT REPORT

Holdings of Fairmont Institution Placed at High Figure.

Back in 1876 when Stark and Columbiana counties joined to buy land and erect a joint county children's home, the land was purchased at $13,000 and now the value of the land has increased to $38,000 according to a detailed report issued by the trustees of that institution.

Original buildings were erected at a cost of $51,000 and since then extensions have been made creating a total cost of buildings of $100,000. The value of these buildings has been placed at $225,000 and the total value of the holdings of the institution has been set at $263,000.

The land held in trust for the institution now amounts to 154 acres, of which 90 acres are in cultivation.

Since the home was opened to the public 2,712 boys and 1,992 girls have been registered. The record discloses mothers of 1,538 boys and 2,330 girls were living at the time of admission.

Where parents have been separated, this record is much higher, as it is disclosed that where this situation was revealed, 2,706 boys and 1,831 girls were made to suffer the loss of a home.

COMMISSIONERS AWARD CONTRACTS

At a special meeting of the county commissioners Tuesday afternoon, Cox and Myers of Kensington were awarded the contract for maintenance of improved county roads in district No. 1 on a low bid of $6,202. This district includes the improved highways in Knox, Butler, Perry, West, Hanover and Center townships.

For maintenance of improved county highways in district No. 2, the contract was awarded to Coppock Brothers of Fairfield township on their bid of $8,200. A similar bid of $8,200 for maintenance work in this district was submitted by John Suffill of Lisbon, but after they were read Suffill suggested to the commissioners that the award be made to Coppock Bros.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

Minnie Dorff, through her counsel, Foulks and Stevenson, of East Liverpool, has filed an action for divorce against her husband in common pleas court. Dorff is a cooper employed by the National China company of Salineville.

The couple was married at East Liverpool July 2, 1923.

Dorff is declared by his wife to have been guilty of three years' wilful absence and also gross neglect of duty. Dorff was a former resident of East Liverpool.

Sale Confirmed.

A sale has been confirmed in the foreclosure action pending in common pleas court in the case of the Union Savings & Loan company of East Liverpool against Anthony Crowley and others, the original petition having been filed February 21 last. A deed has been ordered and a writ of possession has been awarded the plaintiff, together with a decree of distribution.

Granted Leave To File.

In the case of Georgia Davidson against Lee R. Mackey, filed in common pleas court April 18, and wherein the reformation of a deed was sought, Mackey as defendant has been granted leave to file his answer to the petition at once.

Attachment Issued.

An attachment for the defendant has been issued on order of court in the divorce action filed Sept. 22nd. last by Leona M. Cable against her husband, Arthur S. Cable and others.

A decree of divorce was granted the plaintiff May 5th last by Judge W. M. Whitcraft on the grounds of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty, and at the same time the plaintiff was awarded $375 permanent alimony.

The court also ordered the defendant to pay his former wife $10 per week for the support of minor children, the custody of which was awarded the plaintiff. Because of failure of Cable to follow the court order resulted in the attachment for him being issued.

Case Settled.

An action in attachment filed in common pleas court May 22, 1925 by the Dollar Savings & Trust Co., of Youngstown, against Joseph N. Shilling and others has been settled out of court by agreement between both parties.

Holdings of Fairmont Institution Placed at High Figure.

Back in 1876 when Stark and Columbiana counties joined to buy land and erect a joint county children's home, the land was purchased at $13,000 and now the value of the land has increased to $38,000 according to a detailed report issued by the trustees of that institution.

Original buildings were erected at a cost of $51,000 and since then extensions have been made creating a total cost of buildings of $100,000. The value of these buildings has been placed at $225,000 and the total value of the holdings of the institution has been set at $263,000.

The land held in trust for the institution now amounts to 154 acres, of which 90 acres are in cultivation.

Since the home was opened to the public 2,712 boys and 1,992 girls have been registered. The record discloses mothers of 1,533 boys and 2,330 girls were living at the time of admission.

Where parents have been separated, this record is much higher, as it is disclosed that where this situation was revealed, 2,706 boys and 1,831 girls were made to suffer the loss of a home.

COMMISSIONERS AWARD CONTRACTS

For maintenance of improved county highways in district No. 2, the contract was awarded to Coppock Brothers of Fairfield township on their bid of $8,200. A similar bid of $8,200 for maintenance work in this district was submitted by John Suffill of Lisbon, but after they were read Suffill suggested to the commissioners that the award be made to Coppock Bros.

District No. 2 includes Salem, Fairfield, Unity, Middleton, Elkrun and Wayne townships.

S. O. in the Air.
A Flying Wise Man.
A Good Man Dead.
There's No Free Thinker.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

STANDARD OIL OF INDIANA believes in flying machines, has a big one, all metel, with three engines built by Ford, and big oil men, not little ones, use it. A recent Standard oil "Load" flying into Chicago from Detroit included Col. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors; Allen Jackson, one of the vice presidents; E. J. Bullock, another vice president; R. E. Humphries, a director, and Norman R. Grimshaw, assistant general manager. Evidently Standard Oil believes it has a safe plane.

LINDBERGH'S description of his flight suggests a mountain climber's experience: "I struck clouds and decided to try to get over them. After a while I succeeded at a height of 10,000 feet . . . I went under some clouds and over others. There was sleet in all of these clouds and the sleet began to cling to the plane."

He climbed over, and climbed under, with wonderful judgment, perfect success.

THE record shows that Lindbergh's Wright motor used less than twelve gallons of gasoline per hour of flying and did better than 100 miles to the hours. At twent cents a gallon that means about $81 worth of gasoline, plus twenty gallons of oil. Not expensive for a trip to Paris.

Anybody who doubts that airplanes will carry passengers across the ocean for less than $50, "all daylight route," has little confidence in human ingenuity.

THIS nation, and the rest of the world, have cause to regret the death of H. E. Huntington. This son of California was a good American. He spent his fortune intelligently for the finest books and works of art. And he gave his collections and the magnificent estate which contains them to the people of California.

No sane man grudges or envies a gigantic fortune to such a man as Huntington, who knew how to use money. The country honors him.

THE "Free Thinkers' society" of New York plants a tree in Central park in memory of Luther Burbank, praises him as a "free thinker" and denounces "theological hyenas" for villifying him.

Burbank had a right to believe what he chose and clergymen are not necessarily "thological hyenas" because they exercise their right to say what they think of what Burbank thought

As a matter of fact, there is no free thinker. Our thoughts grow out of other men's thoughts as forests grow out of dead trees, long since fallen to the ground.

44 Gallons of Gas Left When "Lindy" Arrived in Paris

LE BOURGET AERODROME, FRANCE, May 25.—Captain Charles Lindbergh had 44 gallons of gasoline left when he arrived in Paris last Saturday night at the end of his historic flight from New York, it was revealed today when the seals were removed from the fuel tanks of "The Spirit of St. Louis," and the contents checked.

The fuel that was not consumed would have permitted Lindbergh to have flown on for another 395 miles, it is estimated.

FIFTH STREET SITE BID ASKED

Benedum Uncertain Whether He Shall Veto or Approve Proposed Reduction in Pay.

Legislation reducing the mayor's salary from $1,800 to $1,200 a year, effective January 1, 1928, lacked only the signature of Mayor Ralph C. Benedum today to make it a law, as the result of council's action at a special meeting last evening in enacting the economy measure on third and final reading.

Oppose Taylor Lot Deal.

The mayor has 10 days in which to sign, veto or permit the ordinance to become a law without his signature. He was undecided today what action he shall take, declaring that he had not "made up" his mind.

Councilmen Hughes and Kommel, who failed in an attempt to have the salary cut to $600 about six weeks ago, voted against the legislation, but the other members—Goodballet, Kelly, Poole, Hayes and Farrall—supported it. Because of the Hughes-Kommel opposition, the ordinance required three separate readings.

Ordinance directing the service-safety director to sell the West Sixth street lot, commonly known as the Taylor property, purchased by the city in 1915 as the site for a proposed city hall, was rejected by a vote of 6 to 1, Councilman Hughes dissenting.

The solons voted down another proposed ordinance which would authorize the director to arrange for a new lease on the property, which is now occupied as a parking lot and gasoline station.

Promoter Sought Site.

The ordinance authorizing the sale of the property at a figure not less than $50,000 was prepared, it is claimed, after a local promoter, said to represent outside capital, made an offer to purchase the lot for a public auditorium and recreation center.

Councilman Hayes asserted that the sale of the lot would be removing the city's last hope for a municipal hall ,a $225,000 bond issue for which was defeated last November. He declared that the city should have a certified check as evidence of good faith in the proposed offer. Kelly said that the city should require a cash deposit to bind the deal before legislation was enacted.

LISBON, May 25.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo has not put into Fayal but has continued on the schooner Infantaesagres, with his seaplane in tow, to Horta, according to a dispatch received here today from Horta.

The dispatch stated that the schooner towing De Pinedo's plane, touched Fayal, but proceeded to Horta, after De Pinedo had shouted to those on shore that he needed no assistance.

The Portuguese gunboat Beira is proceeding to Horta with gasoline and will offer aid to De Pinedo.

Airman and Comrades Well.

LONDON, May 25.—The Italian steamship Duilio intercepted a message from St. Michael, of Azores, announcing the safe arrival of Commander Francesco De Pinedo at Fayal, according to a message to Lloyd Marine agency today. The message stated that De Pinedo's machine had been safely towed into port.

ROME, May 25.—Commander Francesco De Pinedo today shared honors in Italy with Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh. News that De Pinedo was safe in the Azores was greeted throughout the entire kingdom with the wildest rejoicing.

Press dispatches that De Pinedo's plane, Santa Maria II., had been towed into Fayal harbor after a forced landing, were followed by an official announcement from the ministry of aviation that De Pinedo and his comrades were safe and well. The delay in getting the airman and his aids into Fayal was due to the fact that they were picked up by a sailing vessel.

TEACHES TO PAY COLLEGE FEES

Most college students would find completing a four year college course in three years strenuous work but Miss Norma Kirschstein, senior at Notre Dame college, Cleveland, in addition to accomplishing that feat, has paid her expenses by doing playground work and teaching folk dancing and dramatics at settlement houses during spare hours. She hopes to have a stage career and later a grand opera debut.

Express Company Extends Delivery

As a result of a request of the Chamber of Commerce, the American Railway Express company, on June 1, will extend its delivery limits so as to take in approximately three miles of new streets in the Northside district, it was announced today.

The new territory, beginning at 931 Vine street, extends east on Ambrose avenue to Riley avenue, Bradshaw avenue to Avondale street, north on Avondale street to Minerva street, northeast on Minerva street to Chester avenue, north on Chester avenue to Bank stret, west on Bank street to Avondale street, north of Avondale street to North street.

The Chamber of Commerce, which was largely instrumental in having the express company replace its horse-drawn vehicles with motorized equipment more than a year ago, launched a move several months ago for an extension of delivery service. To this end a conference between Anthony Kohler, R. L. Cawood, G. R. Thomas, E. H. Riggs and D. F. Nellis, representing the chamber, and J. L. Ross, Canton, and R. L. Olds, Toledo, district superintendents, and C. W. Heffernan, local agent, representing the express company, was held in the chamber headquarters on May 18.

Express company officials indicated that another extension of their delivery limits may be made later.

"HIP, HOORAYS" GREET "FLYING FOOL" IN HALL OF LEGISLATURE

"SLIM" CONFUSED

France Goes Wild Over Solo Flight Hero.

PARIS, May 25.—The French chamber of deputies this afternoon resounded with strange sounds, as the dignified president of the chamber led members in giving a series of rousing "hip, hip, hoorays," instead of the usual "vives." The celebration was in honor of Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, who stands out today as the world's most famous aviator, because of his New York to Paris flight.

Legislators Acclaim Him.

Lindbergh stood in confusion while the dignified French deputies became decidedly undignified in their acclaim, and he was openly aghast when Ambassador Herrick introduced him as "a real ambassador from the United States—this boy."

The majority of the 500 deputies were present and paid the closest attention as Lindbergh spoke in a cool and clear boyish voice, apparently having steeled his courage for this event, for when he entered the gilded corridors of the chamber he had been nervous and had continually clung to Ambassador Herrick and Counselor Whitehouse.

"You have constructed a most magnificent world bridge, which has united two great world capitals, said General Girod, speaking directly to Lindbergh. "You have united not only two continents but two hearts which beat in unison for universal peace."

Herrick Sobs Openly.

Lindbergh shifted uneasily and his face was aflush as this speech was made, and Ambassador Herrick was overcome with emotion and sobbed openly.

"I am overcome by the emotion stirred in me by the expressions and sentiments I feel around me, resulting from what this boy — worthily and so truthfully representing the spirit of American youth—has done for Franco-American friendship," said Ambassador Herrick.

"Your expressions prove that the American sentiment as brought here and expressed by this boy is reciprocated. I can't help remembering that when we needed you, you came to us."

Triumphal Reception.

SOVIET STAFF READY TO QUIT LONDON HOUSE ON BREAK EVE

Embassy and Trade Headquarters Scenes of Activity.

PACK BELONGINGS

Commons Will Vote to Sever Diplomatic Relations.

LONDON, May 25.—The Soviet embassy and Russian trade headquarters in Soviet house, which the government describes as a hotbed of communist propaganda directed against both England and America, were the scene of feverish activity today with officials winding up their affairs and preparing for immediate departure for Moscow.

The Soviet officials were prepared to depart as soon as the house of commons gave official confirmation to the cabinet's decision to break off with Moscow, severing both diplomatic and commercial relations.

From present indications the government is assured of a sweeping victory in the commons tomorrow when the breach with Russia comes to a vote.

Laborites to Ask Inquiry.

The parliamentary labor party conferred today and decided not to move a vote of censure of the government in the house of commons tomorrow. The laborites, however, will ask for an inquiry by a house of commons committee before a vote is taken on the proposed rupture with Russia.

According to present plans the foreign office will send a note to Russia giving formal notification as soon as the commons confirms the break off in relations.

This note, it is understood, will notify the Soviet commissary for foreign affairs that all trade agreements between England and the Soviet union are terminated and that diplomatic relations are ended between the two powers. The Soviets will be instructed that the diplomatic mission now in London is persona non grata which is equivalent to inviting the Moscow government to recall the members at once.

STATE ORDER HITS MINERVA AUTO BUS LINE

BANS OPERATION

Action Based Upon Complaint From East Liverpool.

COLUMBUS, May 25.—An order declaring that the Minerva-Canton transit company, operating a motor bus line between Canton and Minerva, "passed out of existence" on Feb. 16, 1926, as an Ohio corporation and that its authority to operate over the Canton-Minerva route "became extinct" at the same time was issued by the state utilities commission yesterday afternoon.

The commission announced that, if the company continues to operate, "it will be the duty of this commission to take legal steps to join such operation."

The commission's action was based upon a complain by the Canton-East Liverpool Coach company alleging that the Minerva-Canton concern was illegally operating after the secretary of state of Ohio had cancelled the latter company's state charter because of its failure to pay the state excise tax.

The commission pointed out that, apparently, the Minerva-Canton company neglected to apply for reinstatement as a chartered organization within the two-year time limit, fixed by law, which expired Feb. 15, 1926.

Claiming it could not revoke something which does not exist, the commission denied the request of the Canton-East Liverpool company that the Minerva-Canton concern's license to operate a motor bus route be revoked.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 25.—New forward movements were inaugurated in the high-priced market favorites at the beginning of trading today in spite of a heavy load of realizing sales in other sections of the market. The approach of a triple holiday over the week-end induced caution in all but the professional ranks, and market activity was confined to a comparatively small number of shares.

Baldwin and General Motors were the standard bearers of the bullish party, Baldwin soaring to above 220, while General Motors sold up 2 points to 195½ in a heavy turnover, which suggested the renewal of powerful pool activities. The sugar stocks and the Nickel Plate rails displayed conspicuous strength as prices of all stocks in these groups promptly resumed their advance. Great Western Sugar topped all previous price records, and American Sugar Refining sold near the highest price since the crash in this stock in 1921.

The sixth consecutive million-car-week in freight loadings was reported by the American railway association for the week of May 14, an evidence of the higher rate of commodity exchange in domestic trade. Oil men were hopeful of the result of today's conference on restriction of crude oil production. Call money was unchanged at 2½ per cent.

The market developed a reactionary tone in the second hour as stocks were pressed for sale on profit taking. All of the high-prices speculative leaders fell back a point or two from the best levels of the first period, in a movement which also indicated the dominance of the professionals. Bush terminal's new 6-point jump to 49¾ featured the specialties.

LONDON REPORT SHOWS SAVINGS BY INDUSTRIES

Economies Effected Through Co-operative Plan.

GOVERNMENT AIDS

British Exchequer Provides Millions for Research.

LONDON.—Large savings in numerous industries are announced in the report of "co-operative industrial research" by associations of manufacturers.

The British government started this movement in 1918 by giving 1,000,000 pounds for research and investigation. In the preface to the report, Lord Balfur, president of the department, says though the policy has had its successes and its failures, yet the successes have greatly predominated.

The Launderers' Research association, to take one instance, turned its attention to the use of softened water. As a result, 50 launderies immediately installed water softening plants. The average saving to the firms 1 srecckoned at $20,000 yearly and it is estimated that British customers are saved $500,000 yearly while the life of linen is increased by quite 25 per cent.

In Boots and Shoes.

The Boot and Shoe Trades Research association went into the problem of why patent leather cracks. As a result of the investigations it has been reported that the percentage of cracked shoes has diminished from 25 per cent to practically nil. One feature of this inquiry showed the importance of the minute measurement of feet when fitting shoes.

One of the investigations carried out by the British Electrical and Allied Industries association had reference to the temperature an electric cable can stand.

Other Big Savings.

It was found that British Standard Cables could be safely loaded up to 11,000 volts, under most conditions of laying and working. Engineers were thus enabled to utilize existing cables to greater advantages and to effect large economies in future extensions.

As a result the association estimates that the supply industry world would, at once, get an improved supply to existing cables which might be assessed at $20,000,000 and that a saving would be effected of $1,500,000 in the purchase of cables.

Altogether the investigations carried out by the Electrical Research association have an estimated value of $5,500,000 yearly.

Visions Future

America soon will accomplish as amazing feats in music and the arts as in industry and architecture is the belief of Nikolai Sokoloff, conductor of the Cleveland Sypphony and guest conductor of London and other world centers. "Americans no longer are satisfied to accumulate wealth for the sheer pleasure of possessing it," he says.

London Police Wage Succesful Campaign On Street Beggars

LONDON. — There are not more than a thousand habitual beggars in the streets of London, according to an estimate made by the London Mendicity Society. This figure compares favorably with 10,000 who beggeds in the streets a hundred years ago.

The society's estimate is based on the number of police court charges, the assumption being that owing to the greater strictness and vigilance of the police most habitual beggars make their appearance in court at least once in twelve months.

There is no decline, however, in the number of begging-letter writers, according to the society.

MARION DAVIES AT AMERICAN

Can a flapper flap fluently in wooden shoes?

You can't do the Charleston in them, girls—and you have to take them off when you go into church, just as the Japanese flappers take off their shoes when they enter a house —but it's a gay life down by the Zuyder Zee, anyhow.

Marion proves that. She's a flapper from Holland, in lace petticoats, pigtails and lumber slippers that look like gumboats—in "The Red Mill," playing at the American theatre. She has a lot of fun, even if she does have to polish dishpans, attend to her uncle's gout and fill his pipe—and do many other things a modern American girl wouldn't and couldn't do. It's all a matter of geography, though—for the girl on Broadway and the girl in Holland are sisters under the skin, as Mr. Kipling suggested.

Marion is charming as a Dutch girl—and her lover, Owen Moore, is enough to step away any girl's heart with that Irish smile of his. They have a great romance, with a visit a la Romeo and Juliet, a rescue from a haunted mill and a lot of other thrills.

And laughs! There's one a minute. When Marion isn't battling with an ironing board or falling into a lake through the ice, Louise Fazenda and Karl Dane are busy making them—the oddest pair of lovers in the world. Louise's pettcoats—a cold wave about eighteen of them in Holland —her elopment—and when she gets crowned with a ripe Holland cheese —these are among the giggles and guffaws of the picture.

When George Sierman acts a villain—he makes a real villain. It makes you creepy to contemplate his menacing aspect. Snitz Edwards is comical as the funny valet of Owen Moore, and the rest of the cast includes William Orlamond, Fred Gambold, Russell Powell and others in great parts.

The scenery is beautiful. The snow scenes and the winter festival on the ice—the great church scene—the quaint old inn and the hall—they make you feel that you're in a foreign country.

Drunken Drivers .

Massachusetts has a compulsory automobile insurance law. Every owner must insure his car to cover damage liability he may incur in driving. But Massachusetts makes a notable exception.

Recently an insurance company canceled the policy of a motorist who had caused a serious accident by careless driving. It did so on the ground that witnesses smelled liquor on the motorist's breath immediately after the accident. The company was determined not to carry the policy of any motorist who drove while intoxicated.

The state board of appeal which has authority in such cases has sustained the insurance company, and in addition has served notice that it will not require any company to carry insurance on a motor vehicle owner who is found driving a car under alcoholic influence.

This will probably promote sober driving in Massachusetts.

Drinking is the worst evil connected with motor traffic. When every other precaution is taken by careful drivers and police authorities, there still remain the unknown and unforeseeable perils caused by drunken drivers.

Looking Ahead

Much has been written, favorable and unfavorable, about business possibilities this year, with the dominant sentiment of experts indicating that it seems destined to be a fair year, possibly a good year, without any boom. What of next year?

At the annual meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board in New York with 200 economists, research men and statisticians attending, the general belief is expressed that next year is more likely to bring prosperity than depression, as some pessimists have feared.

"The belief that business moves in cycles of depression and prosperity is proving to be a superstition," says Virgil Gordon, chief economist of the board's research staff.

With fundamental economic conditions sound, with business intelligence operating more effectively than ever before, there seems to be no logical rason why prosperity should not continue for a long period, along a fairly level line or a gently ascending grade.

The only perceptible shadows of any importance is psychological. Fear of evil may bring evil. Timidity, widely spread, may realize its own narrow expectations. Business can do what it thinks it can do. The worst foe of American prosperity is the croaker.

Mastering Rivers

Sometimes it takes a serious illness to make a person think seriously about his health. Then the effort he makes to recover and the lesson he learns from his experience enables him to get along better thereafter, and live longer.

It may be that way in the case of the great floods, now on this nation's mind. One hesitates, from sympathy, to say that it may benefit the stricken localities, though it should do so in the long run, helping the flood victims' children if not them, because of the lessons learned and the remedial measures taken. However that may be, it should unquestionably benefit the country as a whole. For it starts the nation to thinking seriously not only about floods, but about rivers and all the problems and possibilities connected with them.

If out of national sympathy with the flood victims there develops enough national impetus really to do something about the Mississippi, then the public and the government may be disposed to go ahead and do something about other rivers. The Colorado, for example, which has long been a dreadful example of flood menace and wasted power.

The American people should control their rivers and other inland waters, and utilize them for the common welfare—for navigation, power and irrigation—instead of letting the rivers run amuck and control them. This nation has done a good job so far toward mastering the continent. It should go ahead and finish the job.

The Summer White House

The president should find it easier than ever to keep cool there. He can have any temperature he pleases, any day, by the simple procedure of going up or down a few thousand feet.

It is fine for the president, and fine for the country, to have him break precedent and go so far west for the summer. It helps president and country to know each other better, to their mutual advantage. One of these times a president should go all the way, summering on the Pacific coast. It is about as easy to run the country from one part of it as another. Eventually Alaska may beckon as a summer abode for weltering statesmen.

INQUIRY REGARDING THE AUTHORS

The old-time repertoire actor had been looking for a job for many a day, trying to keep up appearances with his one carefully pressed, but well-worn suit, and subsisting on his knowledge of where the largest meal for forty cents could be found.

When he was down to his last penny somebody told him of a vacancy in a small-town stock company thirty miles away and he borrowed the money to pay his railroad fare thither.

"By gosh, I'm glad you turned up," he said. "You're just the man and just the type. We're going into rehearsal today for next week's bill, which is where I need you."

"Modern play, I suppose?" inquired the newcomer, thinking of his one suit and mindful, of course, of the rule that stock actors must furnish their own costumes.

"Sure," said the manager; "modern society drama."

"That's good," declared the old-timer, feeling much cheered. "I presume then that a simple garb will be ample?"

"Well, let's see now just what wardrobe you will need," said his new boss. "In the first act you will require a suit of tweeds. You are a rich mine owner. The English syndicate calls you to London and so, in the middle of the act, you have to make a change for a suit that you would wear on a train. Also, as you have an ocean trip ahead of you, there must be something characteristic in the way of a long ulster. Possibly you might wear the ulster and carry a lighter coat.

"The second act finds you in the smoking room of Lord Worcestershire's mansion. You are telling the Englishman about the mine, and, as it is in the evening you will be in full dress, naturally.

"The thrd act shows his lordship's yacht anchored at Ostend, and here again your dress must be precise. I would suggest white flannel trousers, blue jacket, white shoes and something classy in the way of a cap.

"This takes us to the fourth act, the scene of which is the breakfast room of a country house. It isn't necessary for me to tell you how to dress the part in this act. It is simply a matter of looking the part—rich mine owner, etc., not letting any Englishman show you up in the matter of clothes."

"Say," demanded the veteran, "who wrote this show—Hart, Schaffner & Marx?"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

LONDON, May 25.—Flying from Paris to London is as unexciting and casual as motoring to Oyster Bay. Save for striking a few air pockets with a sickening dip the trip is as smooth and uneventful as a three-hour motor journey.

The only sinister note is in soaring over the channel when the mechanician places a life preserver beside your seat. Passengers read newspapers and books or play solitaire. The countryside from the clouds resembles a huge patched quilt. But to avoid air sickness you are advised not to look out.

I started early in the morning and motored from Croyden in time to lunch at Simpson's. London has undergone vast changes. Regent street, the Fifth Avenue shopping center, has been widened and ranparted with new buildings. There are other evidences of progress.

The unemployment that has, however, existed since the war is noticeable along the curbs of the Strand where men you feel are fitted for something better are hawking matches, mechanical toys, lead pencils and guide books. Their shabby gentility is pronounced.

Many young men walk about encased in those portable news posters—a job once only allotted to the broken down old sandwich men types of our Bryant Park corners. Women are frequently seen driving taxis. The new tax budget has been a hard blow, yet somehow London seems cheerful.

A group of us had tea at the Cavendish, presided over by Rosa Lewis, England's most famous cook who recently paid America a visit. Her hotel once the rendezvous of Lord Ribblesdale and other famous men is quite a meeting place for Americans. Mrs. Lewis is an amusing hostess, sometimes a little shocking in her observations but a favorite among her patrons.

At dusk a fog the thickness of heavy soup descended. A kindly bobby led me into an A. B. C. restaurant until he could commandeer a cab. He never came back although he accepted my half crown. I remained there an hour, the only customer. Old Albion is still perfidious.

The Burlington Arcade is a paradise for men who like doggy haber-dashery geegaws. Having stocked up in Paris I enjoyed reading the signs such as "Lounge Suitings for Park Wear," "Cricket Togs and Shooting Mackintoshes," "Morning Cravats," "Monogrammed Weskits," "Evening Shirtings" and, of all things, "Tea Trousers."

One of my favorite haunts in London is a row of pubs in Houndsditch where cabbies collect at night. They are ancient jebus with generous drooping mustaches, noses shot with tiny red veins and weather beaten complexions. Bonneted Cockney women cajole the 'Arries and Alfs into buying them ale and bitters amid volleys of good natured baddnage. There is a sprinkling of children who come out of the mews to carry pitchers of beer to their parents. Street musicians play their doleful melodies. It is perhaps London squalor at its worst but the impression is one of lightheartedness.

Limehouse has been given an unwarranted glamour through the writings of Thomas Burke. Its nocturnal dangers are about the same as that of Chinatown in New York—which means it is as safe as Times Square at noon. I walked through several of the causeways after midnight in the dripping darkness and aside from a few solitary droping figures in doorways it was as lifeless as Trinity churchyard.

The night clubs are no different from those in Gotham, patronized chiefly by tourists and offering the same treachery and boredom. London, for the most part, is abed by ten o'clock. It is an interesting city, as interesting as any in the world but I am happy to return to Paris in the morning. London is not London without "Spike" Hunt.

Among other things I saw on the flying visit were Buckingham Castle, Birdcage Walk, Old Bailey, the Thames, the Tower of London, London Bridge, Parliament and Big Ben, Hyde Park, the changing of guards at Whitehall, Trafalgar Square and the crowds feeding pigeons and several other sights the yokel always sees.

HASKINS' LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

An Amazing Case.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 25.—One of the most amazing criminal cases known in the history of this or any other country is that of Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Nicola Sacco, avowed anarchists, under sentence of death for murder in Massachusetts.

It has created more world-wide commotion of serious character than any case of which there is a record. It has been dragged out for a longer period than any similar case. It has been the cause of attacks made or threatened upon United States embassies and consulates in Europe, Japan, Mexico, and South America. It has led, more recently, to an attempt upon the life of Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, through a bomb sent by mail, but fortunately intercepted.

It has inspired petitions for executive clemency from millions of people in this and other countries. It has been the subject of thousands of columns of newspaper articles and editorials, and even a book has been written about it by a professor in a famous law school. It presents the extraordinary features of a conviction on circumstantial evidence and of legal technicalities that are to the disadvantage rather than the advantage of the accused.

It is, in short, in every sense of the expression, what the French call a "cause celebre," involving as it does national and international politics and governmental principles, although the crime in question was not in the slightest degree political. What its ultimate effects will be can not even be conjectured until it is known what the end of the case is to be.

That, it seems, is to be determined by Governor Fuller, although he will have an abundance of able assistance and presumptively valuable advice in arriving at his decision. The governor must decide whether the two alien "reds" are to be electrocuted during the week beginning July 10 next, for the legal situation now is such that no court and not even the President of the United States could intervene. There can not be a new trial. The governor can pardon the convicted men or change their punishment to

"SLIM" HAPPY AS HE TINKERS WITH WRENCHES

AIRCRAFT O. K.

By WILLIAM P. CARNEY.

LE BOURGET, May 25. — Captain Charles A. Lindbergh was back in his own sphere today, completely happy as he tinkered with wrenches and drills, working as an ordinary mechanic upon his plane, which has been standing in a hangar here since Saturday when Lindbergh arrived on his epochal flight from New York.

The grinning youth seemed hardly able to restrain himself when he arrived at the hangar this morning to work on his machine. He spurned offers from mechanics of overalls and jumpers and unmindful of his new clothes started immediately climbing over the plane, examining damage done by souvenir hunters and making arrangements for materials and tools with which to repair the plane.

The young flier made no effort to hide his satisfaction at being back in the world of motors and struts and gasoline and oil.

Tires of Receptions.

"I wish I could stay here all day and I wish I could fly a little," Lindbergh said as he started to work.

"My only chance of being alone is to go up on a flight, but unfortunately I cannot do that now because I have too many engagements commencing at noon."

Then Lindbergh outlined his engagements for the day, which include a reception by the chamber of deputies, and there was no doubt left that he has found his life of receptions and honors during the past three days more tiring and more exacting than the 33 hours he spent on his solo flight across the Atlantic.

Foch's Aide On Job.

As Lindbergh, draging a stepladder with him to enable him to reach parts of the plane, worked busily upon the giant machine, French mechanics gathered and stood in their grimy overalls admiring the hero of the hour and remarking upon his intimate knowledge with the mechanical workings of his machine.

Several French mechanics had been assigned to aid Lindbergh, but their admiration exceeded their energy and for the most part they stood by as awe-inspired onlookers while the American boy adjusted and tinkered, apparently tickled to death to do all of the work himself.

Marshal Foch's aide, Captain Hospital, acted as interpreter to Lindbergh, but not with a great deal of success. Lindbergh knew only the English mechanical phrases and Captain Hospital knew only the French phrases, and there was a good deal of laughing, expostulating and sign language going on between Lindbergh and the French mechanics as the American attempted to indicate his wants.

Damage Repaired.

With good humour and apparent willingness to undergo any handicaps as long as he could remain with his machine, Lindbergh stumbled over the little groups that had gathered about in a desire to help him, but who actually impeded his work. Always courteous whenever he alighted from a step-ladder upon the toes of some gaping French mechanic, Lindbergh apologized and there was an exchange of courtesies which would have made the mechanics at Garden City, where there is no mincing of language, gasp with surprise.

Damage done to Lindbergh's machine by souvenir hunters has been repaired. Mechanics have patched up the holes cut in the canvas by the crowds of curious that swarmed into the airdrome Saturday night despite the efforts of the police to keep them out.

A crowd got within the fenced enclosure containing the machine this morning and started cutting strips of canvas from the wings of the plane but they were quickly routed by the guards.

Vaults High Fence.

Lindbergh finished working on his plane at 11:30 and leaving the hangar vaulted a high fence, instead of seeking the gate, much to the enjoyment of the assembled admirers. He then proceeded to visit other hangars on the field and was in his glory inspecting commercial planes and watching mechanics at work on motors. Captain Richard White, naval attache, suggested to Lindbergh that he get into his automobile and drive from hangar to hangar. "You get the car and ride along and pick me up later" answered Lindbergh, which White did.

The young flier admitted that he found the constant receptions very tiring and he feared that today would be an even more tiring day.

When the International News Service correspondent gave the flier a message from his mother in Detroit, saying she was not coming to Paris, Lindbergh smiled and said, "Thank you, I knew that. Please tell her I'll advise her in plenty of time when to go to New York to meet me. I wish I could say right now when I'll go, but I don't know."

One-armed Player Smashes Home Run For School Team

WASHINGTON, May 25.—If Ned Sterling, center fielder on the Leonardtown, Md., prep school team, had two arms he probably would be a second Babe Ruth.

As it is he has only one arm, but he slashed a home run in a game here with Georgetown prep. He also had a single to his credit, and his fielding was brilliant. Leonardtown won, 12 to 7.

LOS ANGELES, May 25.—Paul Kelly, movie juvenile, was found guilty today of manslaughter in the death of Ray Raymond, song and dance man, whom he was charged with killing with his fists. The conviction carries a sentence of from one to ten years' imprisonment.

The jury brought in its verdict at 10:10 a. m., after deliberating nearly 24 hours.

Solon Farrall declared that he did not favor the sale of the lot but if it were to be sold that is was worth $75,000. He said that the property had been purchased for city hall purposes and should be used to that end.

"The lot is worth more than $50,000—let's keep it" was the advice of Councilman Goodballet.

The ordinance was passed on first reading with opposition but was killed when a move to suspend the rules was made, Hughes being the only member to support the measure.

Repealer on Second Reading.

Sale of the lot, owned by the city, opposite the city hospital at a figure not less than $4,000 was authorized. The service-safety director was instructed to advertise for bids and to sell the property to the highest bidder. It is said that an offer has been received by the city from a party who wishes to use the lot as a residence site.

Repealer of ordinance, No. 2061, passed last June, prohibiting the obstruction of streets and alleys, was passed on second reading without a dissenting vote. However, when an attempt was made to suspend the rules in order to put it through on third reading, Kelly and Poole voted "no," blocking the action. Hayes declared the ordinance was a little too drastic and that another measure should be drafted which would eliminate some of the more stringent regulations. Kelly replied that the measure was based on the state law which prohibited obstructions and that the city could gain nothing by removing it from the statute books.

A petition asking for the surfacing of Smithfield street from McKinnon to Orchard Grove avenue, was received. It was signed by persons representing about 75 percent of the abutting property, Service-Safety Director Moore declared. The ordinance committee was instructed to bring in the necessary legislation at the next meeting.

COURTESY OF NEW YORK TIMES

Deputies Cheer Lindy

Leaving the chamber, Lindbergh's progress was a triumphal reception as he made his way through the boulevards. Crowds thronged about him and cheered wildly when he stopped at the offices of Le Matin building and entered.

Seemingly unimpressed by this great ovation, Lindbergh went to the upper stories of Le Matin building for a view of the city, and looked out a long time as the broad expanses spread before him.

"This is more like the Paris I have dreamed about and read about and I am beginning to feel for the first time that I am in France," he said.

Leaving Le Matin offices Lindbergh was again besieged on all sides by his admirers as he proceeded to the American embassy.

Paris seems unable to get enough of Lindbergh and he made his way to the embassy with slow progress. At the embassy he decided to take a well earned rest.

While in Brussels, Lindbergh will be a guest at the American embassy.

PARIS, May 25.—Any reputation the French people may have had for fleeting fancies is belied by their consistent and persistent adoration of Captain Charles A. Lindbergh.

The American ace was just as great a center of attraction today as he was in the dusk of last Saturday evening, when he zoomed down out of the skies, completing the greatest solo flight yet recorded in aerial history.

The French masses have continued to pay their tributes to Lindbergh, and French officialdom has paid its respects, and now French politics will offer its bit of admiration. Tomorrow Lindbergh has a program that is awaited by hundreds who have not yet had their chance to shout their "vives" at him. He is to be officially welcomed by the city of Paris, with all of their glittering, clanking pomp and ceremony that is generally accorded only to royal visitors or high official dignataries.

French Cavalry Escorts Hero.

The flying mail-man is to be carried to the city hall in an open carriage, with an escort of French cavalry clattering by his side, and he will be kissed on both cheeks and again told how great a man he is. Even the center doors of the city hall will be opened for his entrance, and the opening of these doors is an event of more than passing interest.

To Lindbergh all this is a matter of mere obligation. If he had his own choice he would steal away from it all and get back to the hangars and the planes at Le Bourget, but he realizes his duties as an unofficial ambassador and he is carrying out these duties remarkably well.

The Parisian newspapers, generally rather careful of their space, continue to devote colums to Lindbergh, his comings and his goings, and to editorials upon his feat and his subsequent receptions.

Observers of international courtesies and niceties are amazed at the rare tact which Lindbergh, inexperienced in the ways of diplomacy, has shown, and it is generally admitted that this youth through his natural and inborn courtesy and kindness has outdone any effort towards establishing better Franco-American relations than could have been offered by even the most experienced of the American diplomatic corps.

Bleriot Entertains "Slim."

"A king of courage" was the title bestowed upon Lindbergh today by the Petit Parisien, in a leading article that was marked by its frankness.

Louis Bleriot, who was the first man to fly across the English channel, entertained Lindbergh at luncheon today. Among the guests were Minister of War Painleve and several other members of the cabinet, Ambassador Herrick and the French aviator, Captain De Letier D' Oisy.

Adolph Zukor, leaving for New York on the S. S. Majestic today, announced that Lindbergh had definitely rejected his offer of a $300,000 motion picture contract. "He told me definitely that he would not accept any theatrical movie offer, but he would consider a commercial offer connected with aviation," said Zukor.

A crowd of more than 500 waited in front of the Bleriot apartment where Lindbergh lunched today, hoping to see him and demanding his appearance on a balcony. The apartment, however, is on a court and Lindbergh could not hear the cheering demands made by his admirers.

Scene Compared To Armistice Days.

Lindbergh, the boy, spoke and then stood uneasy and shy as General Girod addressed a great tribute to his feat in uniting the hearts of two nations.

Ambassador Herrick was overcome with emotion at the scene and after a brief speech he was forced to return to the embassy and leave Lindbergh to the care of others.

Surmounting his natural shyness and suppressing his dislike for public speaking, Lindbergh arose to the occasion as he arose to the difficulties of flying across the Atlantic—he spoke before the French chamber—an honor extended to but few Americans heretofore.

Addresses French Legislature.

This lad, who a fortnight ago was unknown and who still loves the grime of the hangars and the whirring of motors tearing through space more than adulation, arose and addressed the French legislature, and did it in a manner that would have been a credit to men of greater experience in public life.

"About 150 years ago Ben Franklin was asked what use the free balloon was," said Lindbergh, "and replied, 'what use is a new born babe.'

"Less than 20 years ago Bleriot, your countryman, flew across the English channel and people said, 'what good is this?'

"It seems to me that we have served a wonderful purpose in bringing together two peoples and two continents in a friendship that has existed more than 100 years."

Then Lindbergh, the boy, having for the first time since he made his flight admitted his belief that he had actually accomplished something worthy of world attention, withdrew, his short speech being wildly acclaimed but being all too short to suit his listeners.

Earle Foxe and Nancy Nash in "Upstream."

Earle Foxe, popular comedian, has the leading masculine role in "Upstream," a John Ford production for Fox Films, at the Strand theatre, today and tomorrow. Nancy Nash, who had a featured role in "The City," plays opposite Foxe in this comedy-drama of American theatrical life.

The story, a screen version of "The Snake's Wife," written by Wallace Smith, was adapted by Randall H. Faye. The scene is laid in New York and London. The plot centers about the activities of a presumptuous young actor who achieves greatness as a Shakespearean tragedian by virtue of some timely advice given by an older star. Comedy and tragedy are blended in the lives of a group of "professionals" who live in a typical boarding-house in Forty-sixth street.

In addition to Foxe and Miss Nash, the cast includes many well known names.

McDiarmid sued the company and Roach after Roach and the late George E. Clark, plain clothes policemen, it was alleged, mistook McDiarmid for a highwayman while he was enroute home, at 4:30 a. m., January 28, 1923, from work at a Dayton rubber factory, and shot McDiarmid four times.

Youth of the Atlas

BY MARSHALL P. HALL
AUTHOR OF "THE VALLEY OF STONE" and RIDDLE OF THE CRAG" COPYRIGHT

SYNOPSIS.

LARRY GRENFALL, American traveler and student of Eastern magic, receives a telephone call from

BEN MANSOUR, cosmopolite and old friend, saying he must see him at once. Larry goes and Mansour tells him he is about to die and that he wants him to go to Morocco, where he, Mansour, is a sherif or native ruler. He is to find the Temple, endure the Ordeal, crush the Group and put Mansour's son on the throne. A Moor appears and gives Mansour a token, a ruby ring which Larry later wears. The Moor also throws into the room a tiny ivory tiger—the Striped Deth. Mansour dies and his body disappears—carried off by the Moors. Larry goes to Morocco, finds

OMAR BEN MEDJAD, who dresses him as a wizerd, and as Youssef el-Habbassi he starts on his travels.

Larry demonstrates his gifts as a wizard to a Moor he meets, who proves to be Omar, who has disguised himself to test Larry.

His next adventure is with a Berber outlaw who asks him to read his future. Larry tells him that three days from the present time he will die by the hands of an unknown assassin.

He reaches the market place of Duk el-Abda.

He again encounters Ben Ahmed, who is determined to kill him. Larry is saved by a knife thrown by a strange hand which kills Beni Ahmed as Larry had prophesied. The stranger beckons Larry to follow him.

The stranger proves to be

CHAPTER FIFTEEN.

"Speak not the name, wizard. Even walls, especially Moroccan walls, have ears and sometimes eyes. I know whom you mean for I have talked with him only recently. It was his counsel that set me to spying on Ben Ahmed and following his every move for the one we both know said Beni Ahmed likely would try for your life and that I was to keep near him and protect you if you seemed trapped. The man we speak of was here today. At this minute, however, he is somewhere on the Forbidden Road, traveling south, unless, indeed, he is dead."

"Then if you saw him and talked with him perhaps he left a message for me?" Larry's voice was eager.

"He left only this word: 'The Forbidden Road still leads south and somewhere, south, we shall meet again.'"

"And you go with me, Allal Abdi?"

"I go with you, as one who sits at the feet of wisdom and seeks to learn of the art of wizards. It is for you to say when we start and once we are on the road I have no doubt we shall see and hear strange things. And if dangers should threaten us, wizard, you must use your power to preserve peace for, having been raised quietly and without the opportunities that are given the young of the hills, I am not overly strong, and it would go ill with me in physical combat, I feel."

"Yet, you threw a knife with marvelous dexterity," Larry reminded him.

"That was because I had to throw it, else see you die, and he whom we both know said that on your survival of all dangers lay the success that which we are fighting to achieve."

"And that," said Larry, "is, in effect, what?"

The boy's eyes widened.

"Verily, you are forgetting your magic if you do not know that it is I whom you are to help to set up as sherif over the Seven Tribes of the Berbers, even as my father would have been had he not been forced to flee, or as I would have been had he died a natural death in his native land and handed down to me his powers; and you should know that in putting me in power you are placing me only where I belong and at the same time you are helping to save civilization in Morocco, for if you succeed in making me the sherif, then you will already have recovered the Sacred Eye."

"I did but speak to test you, beardless one." Larry said, his mind racing. "Full well I know, indeed, that you are the true ruler over the Berbers, over the Seven Tribes of the Alliance; full well I know, also, that the Marabout Group has it in mind to elevate you only long enough to show the people a sherif, and then—" he paused, having no heart to say the words that had come to his mind.

"Slit my throat in the night else tie a silken cord about it or hand me a poison decoction with my couscous," the youth finished calmly. Then:

"Your apparel is most filthy for one of your exalted standing. If you are of a mind to change, there are fresh burnouses here, the one we both know had prepared especially for your use, saying you required many pockets. You are, of course, welcome to what you choose to take."

"I shall accept a clean burnouse and fresh turban gladly, Allal Abdi," Larry said, beginning to cast aside the dirty robes he wore. Allal Adbi ran quickly to a nearby door, pausing only long enough to say:

"I shall be back soon, ready to accompany you on the Forbidden Road; array yourself hastily, and I shall prepare coffee."

The youth disappeared on the words and Larry set about donning clean raiment and disposing of his wizard's paraphernalia beneath his fresh burnouse. He found a stubble of a beard was beginning to turn silky on his chin and sensed that as the days passed he was coming more and more to resemble a true Moor.

Allal Abdi re-appeared shortly after Larry, freshly clad and feeling clean for the first time in days, had placed his last packet beneath his burnouse. The youth bore coffee, cup and cigarets. He poured two cups of the black, aromatic beverage and Larry picked up one, sipping it, the while he drew on his cigaret. And he wondered greatly at Allal Adbi, sipping coffee daintily, much as a bird might have sipped a pool of dew from a lotus leaf.

For Allal Abdi was the first Berber he had ever known who did not smoke!

If the road from Ad Dukkar had been rough, the way south from Duk el-Abda was almost impassable. Towering mountain peaks stalked high toward the blue, blue skies and the road wound circuitously through these, with many a halt and slant that only an agile man, sure of himself, could conquer. No horse nor other beast of burden could possibly have followed the Forbidden Road after it erupted from the south gate of Duk el-Abda, threaded through a narrow, high-walled pass, then headed on into the eternal mountains.

Larry, following in Allal Adbi's agile footsteps and wondering at the stamina the youth displayed, knew that it was roads such as this that had prevented the encroachment of civilization; he knew, also, that unless some event of which none now living had knowledge came to pass it was probable that the far Berber tribes never would be subjugated, but until the very end would pursue their wild, rugged ways, fighting off attacks of all natures.

Pyorrhea's victims are 4 out of 5

A ruthless enemy that gives no quarter is Pyorrhea. Its poisons sweep through the system, undermining health and often causing such serious diseases as rheumatism and neuritis, appendicitis, ulcers, stomach troubles and nervousness.

Four out of five past 40, and thousands younger, pay this heavy toll. But you need not fear these uneven odds.

Go to your dentist at least twice a year. And start using Forhan's for the gums, today. This dentifrice, the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., prevents Pyorrhea or checks its course.

It keeps gum tissue firm and healthy. It protects teeth and keeps them white. Use Forhan's regularly, morning and night. Teach your children this good habit.

Forhan's for the gums

MORE THAN A TOOTH PASTE . . . IT CHECKS PYORRHEA

We make this promise

Everybody wants a sweet, fresh breath. If you try this new, sparkling Forhan's Antiseptic Refreshant once, you'll never go back to ordinary mouthwashes that only hide bad breath with their tell-tale odors. Forhan's Antiseptic Refreshant is a success. Try it.

Teeth That Gleam

Sweet breath — delightful taste

Here is the way to beautify teeth—the best way science knows. Also the way to spring-like breath, and to hygienic mouth conditions. Some 50 great experts have collaborated to combine in this one dentifrice all they know to help you.

One day of use will amaze and delight you. The glistening teeth, the sweeter breath, the nicer morning taste. You will know at once that Phillips' Dental Magnesia is the tooth paste your folks should employ.

But behind all these quick benefits lies something more important. That is magnesia. Not ordinary magnesia, but Phillips Milk of Magnesia in concentrated form. Dentists have advised this for 50 years for daily use in the mouth.

Magnesia neutralizes acids, the greatest foes of teeth and gums. It penetrates where the acids form, through sugar and starch fermentation. It kills those acids instantly. The use of magnesia protects you night and day from acid attacks.

Use this new-day tooth paste to beautify the teeth, to sweeten the breath, and combat mouth germs. It will do those things in the best ways known. But, above all, it will supply the magnesia to fight acids. That is the greatest reason any dentist knows for the regular use of a tooth paste. Please learn—and now—how much this new day application means to you and yours. You will always be glad that you know it.

Five in One

Antacids Cleansers
Antiseptics Polishers

A Serious Drawback.

"Do you know that Clementine is two-thirds married?"

"How's that?"

Only a Few Left.

"But there were no such things as victrolas in Washington's time."

A Good Veteran War Story.

The old campaigner was relating his experience during the late war. A fussy old lady was one of his listeners.

"One night just as we wuz pulling into Wipers—"

"Ypres," corrected the old lady.

"We was about a mile from Wipers—"

"Ypres," said his listener patiently.

"Ypres," put in the old lady.

Irresistible Beauty

Girls are so lovely when their hair fairly entices you to touch it and stroke its luxurious silkiness. That's why it is no noticeable when this part of one's toilette is neglected. There is such a decided contrast.

It is so easy, too, to keep the hair young, alive with its natural color and so soft it feels like maribou, that there is no reason to deny yourself this daintiest charm.

Two things will do it—your hair brush and Danderine. Get one of the generous 35c bottles of Danderine from your nearest dealer, wet your brush with a few dashes of it, and draw it through your hair clear to the scalp, with long, even strokes until each strang is alive and glowing, free from dandruff and that oily film which only Danderine can remove. It takes just a few minutes. There is nothing greasy about it, and it does not dry out the hair so that you have to use greasy things afterward to bring it back to life.

From then on you will enjoy the thrills which come to all girls who keep themselves good to look at, and you will never let a day go past without using Danderine. More than a million girls have made it a habit. It will help to keep in your waves.

TOM MEIGHAN IN SCREEN HIT

The Ceramic screen is the proud possessor of a first rate melodrama today. "Blind Alleys" presents a new departure for Tom Meighan but one in which he wins new honors. As the title suggests, "Blind Alleys" tells the tale of two people, how they become separated and then, after vainly walking through various "blind alleys" finally find themselves reunited after all seems lost.

Frank Tuttle's latest Paramount productions starts with a colorful Cuban wedding. Handsome young Dan Kirby and his beautiful sweetheart, Maria, are being united in the well known bonds of matrimony. Dan has triumphed over Julio Lachados. The happy couple arrive in New York and catastrophes start failing in their path.

An accident causes Dan to drop out of Maria's life and in the interval she almost loses her mind. Finally, she gets a clue as to his whereabouts and sets out—only to become involved with a gang of thieves who promptly hie her away to an empty shack. Dan leaves his hospital room, loses consciousness and wakes up in a shady boarding house.

Oh and that just starts to tell of the thrills in store. As an example of entertaining melodrama, Author Owen Davis has created a winner in "Blind Alleys." Greta Nissen is the bride and Evelyn Brent the mysterious "other woman."

AFTER TWO YEARS OF ILLNESS THIS WOMAN IS WELL

Two years is a long time to suffer with stomach and bowel troubles especially when you have cramps after every meal, accompanied by headaches and dizzy spells. That was the case with Mrs. Elizabeth Welling, 476 Cleveland Road, Cleveland, Ohio, before she took Redwood's Tonic.

Redwood.

"But I am perfectly well again," says Mrs. Welling. "Nobody can imagine what I went through with for two years. Every time I ate gas would form in my stomach and press up against my heart until I could harly get my breath.

"My food felt like a big, heavy lump in my stomach. I was so nervous that I couldn't sleep soundly and would get up in the morning all tired out.

"After taking two bottles of Redwood's Tonic I had a good appetite and was able to eat a hearty meal with no trouble following. My nerves improved and I could sleep soundly. Consequently I arose refreshed and my housework didn't seem hard like it was before.

Redwood's Tepee Herb Tonic is recommended and sold in East Liverpool by Carnahan's Drug Store and by well stocked druggists everywhere.

Unkept Hands Spoil Entire Effect

Every woman should have soft, white, youthful hands to complete the picture of daintiness expected of her.

While eating, dancing, playing cards, in fact, whatever you do, your hands are noticed as much as your complexion. You can't neglect them without spoiling the impression you make by being well groomed in every other detail.

The easiest way to keep your hands soft, white and firm is to massage them with the dainty lotion you can make by simply squeezing the juice of two lemons into a bottle of Orchard White, which you can get from your nearest dealer. It clears and refines the skin, making toil-worn and stained hands look like a queen's.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

PROHIBITION QUESTIONNAIRE OF DOCTORS EXPECTED TO DIE

WASHINGTON, May 25.—As usual when wets and drys get to arguing, nobody knows who had the better of the prohibition debate at the American Medical Association convention, the biggest physicians' gathering in the country's history, which ended here a few days ago.

The m. d.'s evidently were as deathly afraid of the subject as politicians are.

They were perfectly willing to discuss everything else in public. They talked that over in whispers, behind locked doors. There weren't any leaks worth mentioning, either. Docs are trained to keep their traps shut.

All other questions were considered in the cold light of science.

It's rumored that that one generated plenty of heat — none the less so from the fact that the medicos had to keep it bottled up.

THE best information is that the disciples of Aesculapius were split every which way, like most of the rest of us, and if prohibition came to a referendum among them, one man's guess is as good as another's as to how it would pan out.

A few medical Nicholas Murray Butlers did yell for a showdown, and managed to get before the convention a questionnaire which it was proposed to send to every doc in the United States, asking him straight out, in substance:

"Do you believe alcohol has any medicinal value?—yes or no."

The questionnaire was referred to the trustees, to be treated as they think best, whenever they get around to it.

They'll decide an operation is what that questionnaire needs.

The operation will be a success, but unfortunately the patient will croak—that is to say, the questionnaire.

That's a safe bet.

Just how many wet, as compared with just how many dry, members it has plainly is one of the things the American Medical Association is particularly anxious not to find out.

THE docs did, indeed, decide that congress and state legislatures have no business telling them what to prescribe or not to prescribe, or how much or little of anything to prescribe, for their patients.

I HAVE it on the best authority that this declaration was intended neither as a pro-wet expression of opinion nor as an anti-dry jab.

The docs simply mean to say that they claim the privilege of prescribing anything, from bread pills to rat poison, without consulting a human being on earth who can't write "m. d." after his name.

Another sign of mechanical progress is that pedestriana have to be mended oftener than automobiles.—Coshocton Tribune.

Only Choicest of Creams and Candies are Sold By Paradise Confectionery

Home Made Products Contribute to Rapid Growth of Diamond Establishment; Appointments and Equipment Always Kept to High Standard.

Cleanliness in appointments and the handling of products, courtesy that never wears out, the most modern of equipment and quarters, and quality in their candies, ice cream and confections that never deviates from its high standard of perfection combine to place the Paradise Confectionery among the front rank of establishments of its kind in this district.

This high plane has been reached following 16 years of business activity in the Diamond, directed by George Conton and Christopher Spirakis, the proprietors.

Alive to every feature that would serve to better and quicken the manufacture of ice cream, one of their principal products, which is made in the commodious kitchen of their quarters in the rear of the first floor, they operate a refrigeration plant by which cream is automatically frozen without packing and their needed ice produced by it. No labor, save the mixing of the cream, is necessary to complete it.

Pasteurized cream only is used in the manufacture of the ice cream which the Paradise makes and serves; milk, used for the various drinks on their soda fountain menu, also is pasteurized. Flavors for the different kinds of ice cream made are of the best obtainable and include a wide range of the wholesome fruit juices that are used for the purpose.

The Paradise boasts an excellent and constantly growing trade in candy, a considerable amount of which is made by its own candy makers in the kitchen on the first floor. Chocolates and bonbons are made in quantities and during the holidays the hard stick variety is also produced by means of special machinery designed for the purpose.

Always on hand to supplement this large stock of home-made candy is a supply of the best makes of assorted chocolates and candies that can be procured in outside markets.

For the demands of discriminating cigar and tobacco users the leading brands of cigars and all grades of tobaccos are maintained, a sufficient variety being followed to cater to all tastes.

The business and sales operations of the Paradise are conducted in a large room 100 by 25 feet and these quarters it must be said, are always spotless and inviting, clean and kept constantly in a high state of sanitation.

At frequent periods, the large room has been given thorough cleanings and overhaulings.

The Paradise's quarters also cater to the customer's demands for beauty as well as other qualities. The walls are mirrored all the way around in the table serving section, topping sections of white vitrolized glass the whole underlaid by black gray Italian marble.

In addition to the serving tables in the center of the room, attractive booths line the walls, of mahogany finish, providing cozy and comfortable nooks in which the customer can while away a pleasurable few minutes.

The soda fountain in the front of the room, adjoining the cigar counter, is as modern as they make them and over its clean white top is dispensed almost every known soda and soft drink.

Victrola music is always available to add to the attractiveness of a visit to the ice cream parlors.

Ever courteous, accomodating and with a purpose of contributing pure confections to the public the owners of the Paradise Confectionery have built a clientele that includes the best residents of the city and surrounding district. To have made a purchase at the Paradise is a guarantee of satisfaction which, naturally, prompts additional frequent visits.

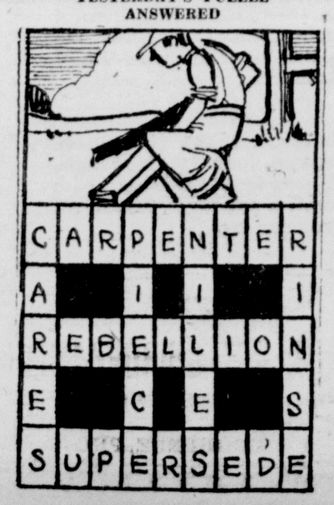
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED



Report Dempsey Will Ask $450,000 for Bout With Sharkey

SCRAP MAY NET AROUND $1,200,000

By Davis J. Walsh.

This was the comment Jack Dempsey wired east today from the mountain fastness of his training camp on the matter of Jack Sharkey's impressive knockout of Jimmy Maloney. He didn't say it was a great thing for himself because that was unnecessary. Dempsey wants $450,000 for meeting the man who beat the man who didn't win.

Rickard probably isn't aware of the situation but the fact of the matter is that Dempsey's price went up as Maloney went down. Miss Taylor's husband was ready to go for the Paulino shot for a mere stipend like $300,000 but a Dempsey-Sharkey bout figures to gross about $1,200,000 and Dempsey will have to be declared in rather heavily or they will have to get another first baseman to throw at.

You see, the boy was born of poor but honest parents and it's been a hard life. They told him the first million was the hardest but they didn't say anything about the other three. It was this oversight that has kept him a poor man. All he has is the first million, or at least, that is the common impression. However, the writer has heard rumors that Dempsey's announced come back is the result of financial stress but how he got that way so quickly after collecting $750,000 in Philadelphia last September was not explained nor is it likely to be.

Dempsey's message contained a denial that he had said Sharkey would knock Tunney out, this item being mentioned merely in line with the policy of keeping the record straight. Within the last year, he has denied everything except that Tunney won the last fight.

As to his financial program, which will be transmitted to Rickard within a week, Dempsey will make no demand that deals in sordid dollars. He will ask for a percentage and I understand that it will be 37 1-2, the cut usually allowed a champion in title fights. In this way, he will get his $450,000 if the gate runs up to $1,200,000 and I don't see how it can miss.

Meantime, any belief that Sharkey will start for less than $250,000 is open to doubt; so Rickard may have to do a lot of slick city talking to close this one. He has Sharkey tied up on one of those blanket contracts for so many fights but it says nothing about so many dollars and that is where the boys may become pestiferous, now that they are up in the chips. It may or may not be significant that Sharkey declined to talk terms the day after the Maloney fight.

All of this, of course, is taking a lot for granted about Dempsey who may change his mind a thousand times between now and August. The ordinary man doesn't change his collar more often. However, a lot of critical money is there and one may be pardoned for suspecting that, that being the case, Dempsey will be there, too.

MEADOWS REGISTERS SIXTH WIN

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, May 25.—As the Pittsburgh Pirates continue to ride roughshod over their rivals in the National league pennant race, their one best bet is Lee Meadows, veteran right hander. The bespectacled gentleman from North Carolina held the Reds to three hits yesterday, winning, 11 to 1, and turning in one of the finest performances of his 12-year career in the majors.

Meadows has yet to be beaten this season and has accounted for six of Pittsburgh's 19 victories. He shared honors yesterday with Pie Traynor, who pounded out four hits in one game for the second time within a week. The execution would have been worse if the Reds had not engineered a triple play, the first of the season.

The Cincinnati team has gone on the rocks again after a short winning spurt and the depression in the frankfurter colony is terrible. The fans are hammering out the anvil chorus again and some of the good burghers are even clamoring for the scalp of Manager Jack Hendricks.

Detroit knocked George Uhle out of the box and downed Cleveland, 6 to 3, taking sixth place away from the Indians. Manush hit a homer.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia staged another slugging match and when the last towel was lifted the Robins were found to be leading, 6 to 5. The relief pitching of Father Bill Doak featured.

BULGERS DOWN NEWELL, 5 TO 4, IN 11 INNINGS

Over 200 of the innumerable district fans who have taken a liking to recreation league ball turned out last night at Newell for the clash between the Bulger Drugs and the Laughlin club and, despite a downpour of rain, stuck until the eleventh inning as the Bulgers finished with a 5 to 4 victory in one of the greatest games of the league to date..

Bulgers' victory breaks the triple tie for first place and leaves the Drugs and Heimies on the top of the crowd. The league and its followers in general are looking forward to the first meeting of these two rivals which is scheduled for June 7.

The Drugs took the lead in the first inning by scoring two runs. They turned in another in the seventh and then Laughlin came through to knot the count with a trio of counters in the eighth.

Both went scoreless in the ninth and goose eggs were handed out in the tenth. In the first of the eleventh, however, the visitors crossed the plate twice and Laughlin came within an ace of tying it up again when one Newell run was scored in the last half of the final frame.

Green was on the mound for the pharmacy outfit while Timberlake heaved the horsehide for the Potters. Greene gave up 10 blows and Timberlake 14.

L. Reese, who worked at first in the absence of his brother, Earl, fitted right into the position. Art Smith was the big sticker with four blows in six times up. He also had seven putouts in left where he was stationed in the absence of Paul White, the regular gardener. Cubberly at short for Laughlin contributed several sensational one-handed stops.

Wise, with three home runs, was the clouting star while Smith, Clark and Werkheiser each had three blows. Hancock kept Laughlin's 10 hits well scattered.

Quinn, of the Powers, led the hitters with three safe blows. Webb and Watson, of the Workingmen's Store, were the chief offensive performers for the losers, with two safe drives apiece. The game was called in the eighth on account of rain.

CITY LOOP LEADERS IN TWO GAMES

Contests Billed Thursday at Chester and Newell.

Two engagements are scheduled in the City Industrial League on Thursday, both involving the three contenders who are leading the race at this particular stage.

Turk Nash will play at Chester and the American Billiards at Laughlin.

Should Laughlin and Turk Nash win, the two teams, now tied for second place, would have another tie in first place, with Chester dropping a couple of notches.

But if Chester wins, the Riley nine will have a two-game lead in front of the others while Turk Nash would go to third place if Laughlin wins or be tied if the Newell club should meet defeat.

Rain completely washed out the American Billiards and Turk Nash last night at Columbian park while Chester and Wellsville played two innings at Wellsville, most of the second frame being staged in a rain.

A downpour at 5 o'clock nearly covered Columbian park, although there was only a slight drizzle downtown.

Chester was leading, 6 to 2, as hostilities terminated in Wellsville.

Both games will be postponed to date agreed upon by managers.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The real pennant fight in the American league, as capital fans figure it, starts Friday.

True, the season has been running some weeks but not so far as Washington is concerned. Walter Johnson has been out of the game with a broken leg. He makes his 1927 debut in New York in the series starting Friday and Washington fandom expects the result to be electrical.

"Big Barney" started his first game of the season yesterday, an exhibition against Baltimore, and won handily, 5 to 2.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TILT POSTPONED

Contest between the Lutherans and the Methodist Protestants of the Sunday school softball league, scheduled for last night at Newell, was postponed until a later date, league officials announced today.

The Christians and the Second Presbyterians are scheduled to play tomorrow night on the Second street playground lot.

INFIELDER IN NEW ROLE

Grimm May Pitch Against Salineville Saturday.

Joseph Dickey, business manager of the Laughlin, Newell, City Industrial league club, today announced completion of arrangements for the first "outside" clash of the season Saturday afternoon at Newell.

Pilot Dailey's squad is scheduled to tackle the Salineville Independents, beginning at 3:45 o'clock.

Club officials announced that Second Baseman Grimm, who has been playing a great game for the Newell contenders at the hot corner, will take a try at flinging against the Salineville aggregation. It will be Grimm's first appearance on the mound here.

Grimm, or in the event that Burris may start, will be caught by Earl Potts, former Chester backstop.

History of Crime and Case.

In 1920 a paymaster and guard carrying $15,000 to a shoe factory in South Braintree, Mass., were held up in broad daylight on the street, murdered and robbed by bandits who made their escape in an automobile. Some three weeks later, Vanzetti, the fish pedler, and Sacco, a shoe-factory worker, both Italians, aliens, and anarchists, were arrested on suspicion.

On July 14, 1921, after a trial before a jury in the court of Judge Webster Thayer, in Dedham, they were found guilty of murder in the first degree on evidence which the judge himself declared to be circumstantial.

Numerous petitions for a new trial were denied, the final adverse decision coming from the Supreme Court of the State, but every legal expedient available to men fighting for their lives was restored to, and such are the processes of justice in this country that it was not until April 9 of this year, almost six years after the conviction, that Vanzetti and Sacco were brought before Judge Thayer and sentenced to death.

Immediately following their conviction, Vanzetti and Sacco became international characters. Through channels of communication of which the average citizen knows nothing the word went forth to radicals all over the world that the men had been found guilty because they were anarchists and not because they had been proved guilty of the crime charged against them, that the jury had been composed wholly of conservatives, that public sentiment at the time had been running high against radicals and radicalism, and that Judge Thayer had been so prejudiced that the men could not have a fair trial. This resulted in a world-wide movement in their behalf.

Last year, after the Massachusetts Supreme Court denied Vanzetti and Sacco a new trial, United States embassies and legations in France, Switzerland, Argentina and Uruguay were attacked or threatened by "red" sympathizers of the defendants, and there were hostile demonstrations against our diplomatic and consular officials at Copenhagen, Sofia, Havana, Lima, Tampico, and elsewhere.

Following the death sentence of the anarchists protests and appeals from this country, from Europe, from South America, and from Japan began pouring in upon Governor Fuller and he has been subjected to a flood comparable with that in the Mississippi valley. One appeal was signed by 20 members of the British praliament. Another came in the name of 500,000 German "reds" and some one assumed to speak for "seven million workers organized in the labor and Socialist internationale."

Evidence Never Reviewed.

It is asserted by men and newspapers in this country who are neither "reds" nor "red" sympathizers that the evidence upon which Vanzetti and Sacco were convicted in Judge Thayer's court has never been reviewed by any other tribunal, that legal technicalities have prevented the submission and consideration of new evidence that would acquit the men or at least create more than a reason doubt as to their guilt, and that if they die they will be the victims of judicial murder.

News papers such as the Boston Herald, Springfield Republican, New York World, Hartford Times, Baltimore Sun, New Haven Journal, Cleveland Press, and Brooklyn Eagle have questioned the guilt of the condemned men, criticised the nature of their trial and conviction, or urged executive interference in view of all the circumstances surounding the case.

A Harvard professor, William F. Hocking, says that the case reveals "the incredible, the essentially disgraceful situation that men may be sent to their death in Massachusetts because the courts refuse to hear relevant evidence." Prof. Felix Frankfurter, also of Harvard, says, in substance, that the men were convicted primarily because they were radical aliens and draft dodgers, and tried at a time when anti-red agitation was at its height; that they had no previous criminal record; that witnesses who undertook to identify them as the murderers were contradictory and inconclusive; that the men had alibis supported by reputable witnesses; and that a new trial was called for by new evidence unearthed which included a gangster's confession that his gang committed the crime.

Not the least amazing feature of the case is the 5,000 word petition written by Vanzetti and addressed to Governor Fuller in which he reviewed the trial and the evidence and said that he was not asking for a pardon nor for mercy, but for justice, and urged the governor "publicly to investigate all the facts of our case and to set us free from that sentence if the findings will so dictate to your understanding and conscience."

He also said that he and Sacco were willing to die for their cause, "but not for the low and sordid South Braintree crime."

Sacco declined to sign this petition, saying that to do so would be inconsistent with his principles as an anarchist.

Whether Vanzetti and Sacco are executed, it is freely predicted that the near future will see changes made in the procedure in criminal cases in the State of Massachusetts.

Back in 1876 when Stark and Columbiana counties joined to buy land and erect a joint county children's home, the land was purchased at $13,000 and now the value of the land has increased to $38,000 according to a detailed report issued by the trustees of that institution.

Original buildings were erected at a cost of $51,000 and since then extensions have been made creating a total cost of buildings of $100,000. The value of these buildings has been placed at $225,000 and the total value of the holdings of the institution has been set at $263,000.

The land held in trust for the institution now amounts to 154 acres, of which 90 acres are in cultivation.

Since the home was opened to the public 2,712 boys and 1,992 girls have been registered. The record discloses mothers of 1,533 boys and 2,330 girls were living at the time of admission.

Where parents have been separated, this record is much higher, as it is disclosed that where this situation was revealed, 2,706 boys and 1,831 girls were made to suffer the loss of a home.

COMMISSIONERS AWARD CONTRACTS

At a special meeting of the county commissioners Tuesday afternoon, Cox and Myers of Kensington were awarded the contract for maintenance of improved county roads in district No. 1 on a low bid of $6,202. This district includes the improved highways in Knox, Butler, Perry, West, Hanover and Center townships.

For maintenance of improved county highways in district No. 2, the contract was awarded to Coppock Brothers of Fairfield township on their bid of $8,200. A similar bid of $8,200 for maintenance work in this district was submitted by John Suffill of Lisbon, but after they were read Suffill suggested to the commissioners that the award be made to Coppock Bros.

Attachment Issued.

The court also ordered the defendant to pay his former wife $10 per week for the support of minor children, the custody of which was awarded the plaintiff. Because of failure of Cable to follow the court order resulted in the attachment for him being issued.
